CITY TO HAIL FRIED AND RESCUE CREW ON ARRIVAL TODAY

SKIPPER ON RADIO TONIGHT

EULOGIZES FRIED'S VALOR

A stirring welcome awaits Captain George Fried and the heroic rescue crew of the steamship America when they arrive this afternoon, straight from their rescue of thirty-two members of the crew of the Italian freighter Florida in snow and gale last Wednesday night 700 miles off the Virginia Capes.

They will be greeted down the bay and receive rousing acclaim on the trip up to the piers of the United States Lines in Hoboken. Tonight, Captain Fried will speak over the radio and on Monday Mayor Walker will extend the formal welcome at the City Hall.

Captain Fried reported last night by radio to the United States Lines that he had passed the Nantucket Lightship at 10 P. M. and was due at Quarantine at noon today. Officials of the line, however, said this estimate was conservative, and that with favorable conditions the America might reach Quarantine by 11:45 A. M.

Previous advices that had set the probable time for arrival at 1 P. M. had caused the city to plan to send the welcoming boat Macom from Pier A today at 12:30. It was then estimated that the America should be at Pier 4, Hoboken, at 4 P. M. The reports of a probable earlier arrival are expected to set the schedule back an hour.

On the Macom will be Grover A. Whalen, as chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests; Mrs. Fried, wife of the master of the America, and Mrs. Anna M. Manning, mother of Chief Officer Harry Manning, who led the lifeboat rescue.

Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commanding the Second Corps Area, and Rear Admiral Louise R. De Steigeur, commanding the navy yard in Brooklyn, will welcome Captain Fried and his men on behalf of the army and navy. Emanuel De Grasse, Italian Consul General, will represent his government, and Judge Francis X. Mancuso will appear for the Italian Society.

Will Be Met at Quarantine.

The official party will board the America at Quarantine and remain on her for the trip up the bay. The Macom will steam alongside and off the Battery the usual water salute will be given to the rescuers. The official party will leave the steamship at Hoboken, so that Captain Fried, Manning and the rescue crew can turn in for much needed rest.

On Monday the rescuers will go from the Hotel Roosevelt, where quarters have been arranged for them, to the City Hall, where Mayor Walker will preside at a ceremony in the Aldermanic Chamber at 12:25 P. M. The Mayor will speak and then scrolls will be presented to Captain Fried, Chief Officer Manning and to Nelson H. Smith, chief radio operator of the America.

Gold medals will go with the scrolls and similar medals will be awarded to the rescue crew. Captain Fried will be called upon for a response. The ceremony will close with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Helen Schafer, contralto. The ceremony will be broadcast by WNYC and by stations of the National Broadcasting Company.

After the ceremony the rescuers will go to the Advertising Club, Park Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, for luncheon. The route from the City Hall will be as follows: Lafayette Street to Ninth Street, to Fifth Avenue, to Thirty-fourth Street, to Park Avenue and to the club.

Walker Eulogizes Captain.

Mayor Walker in a statement yesterday said:

"The great traditions of the American merchant marine, which have won the admiration and challenged the envy of the world, have again been vindicated by that courageous hero, Captain George Fried of the steamship America.

"We are doubly proud of Captain Fried, a New Yorker, who has so nobly upheld the best traditions of the sea. Just three years ago, almost to the day, the world was aflame with the thrill of his courageous and noble fight with a raging gale and a roaring sea in an effort to aid a sinking vessel 350 miles off shore. Even the most courageous skipper would have been disheartened after one day's effort at rescue work in the open sea. But not Captain Fried. He struggled until he succeeded in saving the captain, the officers and twenty-four members of the crew of the ill-fated Antinoe.

"Again his indomitable spirit, still eager for service to his fellow-man,

Mussolini Thanks America For Fried's Rescue of Italians

ROME, Jan. 25 (AP).—Premier Mussolini has asked Italian Ambassador N. G. de Martino to express to the American Government the warmest thanks of the Italian Government and navy for the rescue of the crew of the steamship Florida by the United States Lines steamship America.

The rescue has produced a great impression everywhere. From government circles to private individuals all are praising the valor of Captain Fried and his crew.

The press has been following the heroic deed of the American seamen and posting the latest advices, which were scanned by huge crowds in front of the newspaper offices.

OSCAR UNDERWOOD DIES IN VIRGINIA

Ex-Senator From Alabama Succumbs to Long Illness at the Age of 67.

WAS IN CONGRESS 30 YEARS

Became a Leader Among Democrats, With His Name Linked to Important Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Oscar W. Underwood, former Senator from Alabama, a notable figure in public life for more than a quarter of a century, died today at his Virginia estate, Woodlawn, twelve miles from Washington. He had been in poor health since he retired voluntarily from the Senate in March, 1927. In December he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, and shortly thereafter a stroke of paralysis. He failed to rally from a relapse which occurred a few days ago.

When Mr. Underwood's death was announced in the Senate an immediate adjournment was taken out of respect to his memory, an unusual course with respect to one not of its membership.

Announcement of his death was made also in the House, and that body, in which Mr. Underwood had been Democratic floor leader, paid its tribute by adjourning when it had completed the business in which it was engaged at the time the announcement was made.

Veteran Senators and Representatives recalled how Mr. Underwood had effectively led his party's minorities and majorities without resorting to any disciplinary or coercive measures. He was represented as having been able to lead without seeming to dominate. In this connection it was narrated how he managed to control a rather unruly party spirit in the House of Representatives by the sheer force of a winning disposition.

Sincerity in Tributes Paid.

This placated those of insurgent tendencies and created the impression that he went along with the generality of party sentiment instead of seeking to influence it, whereas the ideas which he carried out were his own. It was apparent from what was said today by men who knew him well that he had made a deep impress on his former legislative associates and that in spite of his retirement his death was a deep loss to the nation.

Seldom has the passing of a conspicuous public man produced such a profound sense of depression as that which followed receipt of the news that Mr. Underwood was dead. Everywhere in administration and Congressional circles, with President Coolidge participating, the disposition and the desire were shown to pay tribute to the greatness of his statesmanship and the nobility of his character.

What was said in eulogy of him was marked by its striking dissimilarity from the conventional motive to speak well of the dead. A deep sincerity was apparent in the tributes that came from officials of the gov-

HUGHES WARNS BAR TO "CLEAN HOUSE" AND SPEED JUSTICE

APPEALS TO BENCH FOR AID

Decries Delays, Favoritism, Archaic Procedure and Misuse of the Jury System.

CALLS FOR UNITED ACTION

Evil conditions surrounding the New York Bar, far more fundamental than those of "ambulance chasing," were cited by Charles Evans Hughes last night when he called upon the full bar, the bench and the community at large to aid in reforming maladministration of justice.

Mr. Hughes expressed optimism that reforms would eventually be made, and cited the speeding up of justice in certain courts as an example of what could be done. But he pointed out that the practices of some successful elder lawyers were corrupting the younger members of the bar, that many abuses still linger in the lower courts, and urged that the principles of law are the fundamentals of a democracy.

He was speaking at a dinner at the Hotel Astor given by the Bronx Bar Association as a testimonial to him before his departure to serve as a member of the World Court at The Hague. Other speakers were Justice Edward A. Finch, William E. Guthrie and Samuel Seabury., Bernard E. Deutsch presided.

Says Lawyers "Must Clean House."

While it is a duty of the whole community to aid, Mr. Hughes warned, in the last analysis the lawyer himself "must clean his own house." While lawyers may be ashamed of conditions, it is the public, their clients, which suffers. "Lawyers," he said, "should realize that their highest privilege is that of the trained servants of democracy. But let all join the work."

The text of Mr. Hughes's address as he gave it out reads:

"When the three bar associations of this judicial department appeared before the Appellate Division petitioning for an investigation of abuses, especially of those connected with what is known as 'ambulance chasing,' we began a new chapter in the history of our bar. We sounded the note of cooperation not simply of lawyers, but of associations of lawyers, thus mobilizing the organized forces of the bar for a definite campaign. We are awakening to the value of this sort of cooperation. What are its objects? What are its difficulties? What should be its methods?

"We wish the entire bar to have a voice, a commanding voice. We desire the concentration of influence. The object is plain enough when there is corruption, when lawyers betray their clients or are false to their larger trust, perverting the machinery of the courts to make it a vehicle of fraud and a device to ensnare the unfortunate. Then the outraged sentiment of the entire bar should find expression in investigation, condemnation and redress. It should clean its own house. It should demand of the courts the purging of their administration. The way to proceed has been shown in the recent inquiries. By our united action the latent powers of the court were called into exercise, the expert service of lawyers was volunteered, and the needed measures of reform both in court rules and legislation have been recommended.

"We need something more than

PEKING, Jan. 25.—Three thousand Shantung troops under General Liu Kai-tai at Lungkow mutinied and thoroughly plundered the city in a ten-hour reign of terror today, and then marched southward toward Wei Thsien.

All foreigners are safely aboard two Japanese merchant vessels in the harbor. The Japanese are rushing a destroyer to Lungkow from Port Arthur.

The Rev. Edward Young, an American Catholic missionary at Yunanfu, Kiang-si, has been kidnapped by Communists, who sent Bishop O'Shea a notice that they will execute the prisoner unless $20,000 ransom is paid inside of three days.

The first move or attempt to suppress the critical foreign press has been made by Nanking, which sent a note to the American Minister asking forcible suspension of the North China Star, a Tientsin daily, American owned, and edited by Charles James Fox, an American. Nanking also asked the French consul at Tientsin to force the Star to remove its offices from the French concession, and instructed the Mayor of Tientsin to stop the Star's circulation and use of the mails.

The complaint is based on an article intimating that Kuomintang Nationalist Party soldiers were implicated in the looting of Manchu tombs.

PLAN 275 NEW SEATS FOR STOCK EXCHANGE

Governors Ask 25% Increase to Handle Rush—"Rights" Valued at $137,500,000.

10,000,000 SHARE DAYS SEEN

Members of the New York Stock Exchange were asked yesterday by the governing committee to authorize the creation of 275 additional seats by fixing a new maximum of 1,375 in place of the present limit of 1,100, which was established in 1879. The plan, which will be voted on between now and Feb. 7, provides that the proceeds from the sale of the new seats shall go to the present members. This means, at prevailing prices, a distribution of, roughly, $137,500,000, or $125,000 to each of the 1,100 present members, assuming that the aggregate value of the Stock Exchange's memberships remains unchanged. Actual sums realized from sale of the rights would, of course, depend upon prices for seats prevailing at the time the rights were sold. The last transactions in Stock Exchange seats were arranged early this week at $625,000, which is the highest price ever paid.

The proposal submitted by the governing committee was adopted after a special committee of five had made an exhaustive study covering several weeks. During that time the sentiment of almost the entire membership was sounded with the idea of determining what plan would be most likely to meet with general approval. Several other plans that were considered were rejected in favor of the one finally adopted.

Although as recently as Nov. 11, 1925, the Exchange members rejected overwhelmingly a plan to increase the number of seats by twenty-five, the opinion was widely expressed yesterday that this latest effort to enlarge the brokerage personnel would succeed. No members could be found who were willing to go on record as opposed to the new plan, while warm approval was expressed in many brokerage offices.

Increase of 25 Held Inadequate.

Advocates of the present proposal contended it had decided advantages over that which was voted down in 1925. In the first place, it carries a direct monetary return to the present membership, whereas it was provided in the 1925 plan that the proceeds from the sale of twenty-five additional seats should go into the Exchange treasury. Many members opposed the old plan, it was pointed out yesterday, because it was not believed that an increase of twenty-five was large enough to meet the growing requirements of the Exchange.

The new plan is summarized in the following resolution passed by the governing committee and which the members are asked to approve within the next two weeks:

Resolved, That the membership of the Exchange be increased by 275 memberships, and that each member of the Exchange for the legal representatives of any member who may then have died) on the date this resolution shall become effective, after it is submitted to the Exchange pursuant to the constitution, shall have the right or privilege of transferring his proportionate part of such additional memberships within three years of said date to an applicant for membership who is approved by the committee on admissions pursuant to the constitution, it being understood that no such applicant shall be considered by the committee on admissions until he has contracted to purchase the proportionate part of such additional memberships belonging to four members of the Exchange, and that on election to membership such applicant shall pay to the Exchange the initiation fee and the contribution to the trustees of the gratuity fund prescribed by the constitution at the time of his election; and it is

Further resolved, That the power to make such regulations as may be necessary and to pass upon all questions that may arise in connection with the transfer by members of the Exchange of their proportionate parts of such additional memberships be vested in the gov-

TRAFFIC PLAN STAYS, WHALEN DECLARES

Asserts That Street Cleaning Bureau Will Seize Parked Cars After Test Period.

OWNERS TO FACE $10 FINES

1897 Law on 'Encumbrances' to Be Used—Garment Area Gets One-Way Pedestrian Rule.

The theatre traffic control plan is here to stay. Police Commissioner Whalen said so last night.

"I can now say positively after these five nights of trial that the new regulations have come to stay," the commissioner declared. "There will be a meeting a week from Monday to discuss their final form. There may be minor variations or modifications, but in its essentials the system has proved itself and will continue to function as at present."

An intimation that the plan established in the theatre zone for a fortnight's trial would be adopted permanently after the experimental period ends a week from Monday night had been made by the commissioner earlier in the day. Last night the storm, a prize fight and the Beaux Arts Ball subjected the plan to its most arduous test.

"We have been looking around for a means of dealing with the parking evil after the two weeks' trial is over," Mr. Whalen began at the earlier interview. This was sufficient to start the questions coming, but the commissioner, reminding his interrogators that a meeting would be held a week from Monday to discuss the fate of the new traffic plan, would go no further than to say:

"From the expression of public opinion that I have heard, it's just taken the public by storm. Everybody is very much satisfied."

Without saying then that his mind was closed, Mr. Whalen left the impression that he was satisfied, not only that the plan was working successfully, but that the complaints from quarters which had protested at its inception were ill-founded or had been satisfied with the modifications and revisions he had granted.

To Avoid Cluttering Courts.

Continuing his discussion of how the parking evil was to be dealt with after the experimental period was over, the commissioner said he would invoke Section 545 of the City Charter, which provides that the Street Cleaning department may pick up "trucks and vehicles" left in the public streets as "encumbrances." To redeem them their owners would have to pay "a fee to be set by the Commissioner of Street Cleaning, not to exceed $10."

"In this way," said the commissioner, "we can avoid cluttering up the courts with more traffic cases and at the same time impose a fine that is heavier than that usually imposed in court."

The section under which Mr. Whalen intends to proceed against motorists who have been parking cars in the restricted zone at the rate of a dozen or more a night was enacted in 1897 and, the Commissioner remarked, upon the "foresight of Colonel Waring, who was Street Cleaning Commissioner at the time."

The commissioner's concern over the parking evil seemed justified last night when ten automobiles were picked up by Department of Street Cleaning wrecking crews and taken to the West Forty-seventh Street station. Most of them were claimed before midnight by their owners, who received summonses.

Earlier in the day Mr. Whalen announced that at noon today he would institute a system of one way pedestrian traffic in Seventh Avenue between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-eighth Streets. Beginning at noon and continuing for an hour or longer as conditions dictate, ten policemen will be on hand to see that those who wish to walk north in those two blocks use the east side of the avenue, while the west side is restricted for those walking south.

"Above all," Mr. Whalen said, "the police will be instructed to keep everybody moving. There will be no rule against left-hand or right-hand turns, but there will be no 'parking.'"

BYRD PLANE IN AIR OVER THE ANTARCTIC 'TALKS' TO NEW YORK

Two-Way Messages by Radio Across 10,000 Miles Establishes a Record.

LINKED FOR ENTIRE HOUR

SAN FRANCISCO ON CALL

Success of Test Opens Prospect of Hearing Stars and Stripes From Over the South Pole.

A world's record in radio and aviation was established early yesterday morning when Commander Richard E. Byrd's plane, the Stars and Stripes, in flight 3,000 feet above the icy wastes that surround the Bay of Whales in the Antarctic, conducted two-way communication direct with THE NEW YORK TIMES radio station in Times Square. The distance between the plane and the receiver was 10,000 miles. It was the first time that an airplane in flight had sent and received messages over such a long distance.

It was 10:30 P. M. in New York when Operator Carl O. Peterson of the steamer City of New York, base ship of the expedition, called THE NEW YORK TIMES on the thirty-four-meter wave length. He said that Malcolm P. Hanson, radio chief of the expedition, would make a test flight in the plane Stars and Stripes at about 3:15 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, which is 8:15 P. M. at the Bay of Whales, in the land that Byrd has named "Little America."

"Listen in and try to hear the plane," said the flash from the Far South. So, while the ether in the North Temperate Zone was comparatively quiet, with most of the broadcasters and amateurs fast asleep, Reginald Iversen, radio engineer at THE TIMES station, saw that everything at his receiver was in shape to establish a record. He tuned the dial to the thirty-four-meter channel and at 3:15 A. M. sharp the operator in the South Polar region kept his rendezvous with the metropolis of the world.

Radioed Warning of Take-Off.

"The plane is now leaving the ice," was the warning for New York to tune carefully, because just a slight turn of the dial over the breadth of a hair would cause New York to miss the plane. "Listen for WFC." That is the call of the Stars and Stripes.

Iversen shifted his dial slightly around the thirty-four-meter mark. He picked up a signal. It was the characteristic 240-cycle note of the airplane flying over the Antarctic.

He eavesdropped as Hanson, an old-timer in wireless, adjusted and tested his transmitter until the electrical meters revealed that it was operating to perfection. Then he called WHD, THE NEW YORK TIMES, 10,000 miles up north. Iversen intercepted the call, which penetrated several climes and crossed the Equator on its flight to Manhattan.

The plane heard the dots and dashes from THE TIMES transmitter. New York was linked by an invisible channel with Little America. Hanson said:

"Congratulations on longest two-way communication with an airplane in flight. Hr msg No. 1 de airplane Stars and Stripes to Commander S. C. Hooper, Director of Naval Communications, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.: Sincere regards to yourself and Naval Research Laboratory and entire Navy Department on occasion of longest aircraft communication ever established. We are in flight, 3,000 feet over Little America, Bay of Whales, Antarctica. Fine sunny night."

The dispatch was signed "Hanson."

The transmission ended at 3:28 A. M., twelve minutes after the message reported that the plane was

President and Mrs. Coolidge To Get University Degrees

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—President and Mrs. Coolidge will have honorary degrees conferred upon them by the George Washington University at its commencement exercises on Feb. 22, it was announced today.

The President is to deliver at that time an address which is being advertised as the last public speech he will make as President of the United States.

He will speak before the budget meeting here next Monday and on Feb. 1 will dedicate the bird sanctuary established by Edward W. Bok at Mountain Lake, Fla.

SALVATIONISTS MOVE TO SETTLE DISPUTE

COURT HEARING ADJOURNED

Continuing Injunction Till Tuesday, Judge Warns Litigation May Hurt Army.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 26.—Informal conversations between representatives of the two factions of the Salvation Army are understood to have been held, with the result that there is considerable hope for an amicable settlement of the differences without further litigation. Nothing is definitely settled as yet, however.

The morning papers say that the remarks of Mr. Justice Eve, when the hearing on the temporary injunction obtained by General Booth restraining the Council from electing a new general was further adjourned yesterday till Tuesday, have been taken to heart by both parties and led to a peace conference.

The justice expressed the hope that matters might be adjusted "without pursuing this litigation" and further said: "However it should ultimately result, one cannot but appreciate that its continuance is calculated to affect prejudicially the great and benevolent institution of which all your clients are members and to which I have no doubt each and every one of them is loyally attached."

The Daily Herald says that it is not improbable that a settlement will be announced when the hearing is reopened on Tuesday.

The Daily Mail says that the belief in the possibility of a settlement is based upon the universal esteem and affection with which every member of the Army regards General Bramwell Booth and upon the offer of concessions which the Army chief made in a letter to the High Council while it was in session at Sunbury.

High Council Present in Force.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—As Mr. Justice Eve made his appeal for peace in the High Court today there were rows of high Army officials in uniform listening intently. Almost all the members of the High Council were present, as well as Commissioner Catherine Booth and Colonel Mary Booth, the two daughters of the old General, who have been leading the fight in his behalf. Commander Evangeline Booth was not in court.

In the course of his appeal the Justice said:

"Although my knowledge of the matter in dispute is necessarily very inadequate and incomplete at present, I think I appreciate the position sufficiently to warrant my expressing very sincerely the hope that

CRITICAL OF BORAH PLAN

He Doubts Neutrals Will Have Many Rights in Future Wars.

THINKS SENATE 'DIFFICULT'

BUT HALE PRESSES FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—President Coolidge believes that the Senate is a difficult body to get action from on any international agreement. His attitude became known today in connection with the proposal made by Senator Borah, as an amendment to the cruiser bill, for the codification of maritime law.

It is President Coolidge's opinion that, theoretically, it would be a fine thing to have maritime law on sea warfare codified. But as a practical matter he wonders what chance there would be to get any Senate to ratify any agreement of that kind. He feels that any one who knows the Senate is well aware that it would be impracticable.

According to one view the President's stricture on the Senate may have arisen from the action of the Foreign Relations Committee in adopting in connection with the Kellogg anti-war treaty an interpretative report which was opposed by the administration.

The President is pessimistic concerning the position of neutrals in future wars. Judged by all developments in the World War, he feels that neutrals in the future will not receive many, if any, rights on the high seas.

Has Not Held Conference Feasible.

He does not know whether anything can be done to clarify the rights of neutrals on the seas. Having thought of the subject many times and talked with State Department officials, in his opinion a feasible time for calling a conference on this subject has never appeared. He finds that work along this line has been progressing in the Pan-American conference, but believes it would be difficult to obtain approval of such a codification of international law by the Senate.

In connection with the cruiser bill now before the Senate, it was recalled by the President that he had recommended the measure in his last message, wherein he stated in detail why the government needed the additional fighting fleet.

In his message he opposed the placing of any time limit on building the cruisers as provided in the House bill and as now being considered in the Senate. His objection, as outlined then and reiterated today, is that the cruisers should not be constructed immediately, because to do so would upset the budget plans and might cause a deficit.

The budget experts, apparently, cannot find enough money to carry out such an extensive naval building program, and the President is doubtful whether Congress can find sufficient funds without crippling the Government's finances. If the Government had a greater supply of money, the President holds, there would be no serious objection to an extensive expenditure upon cruisers at once.

His objection to an extensive building program in one year is related also to the question of replacement, as he considers it a bad financial arrangement for a large part of the cruiser fleet to become obsolete in one year, when replacements could be spread out over a few years. In his view, such a process would be more economical.

It was learned today that the State Department viewed favorably, at first glance, the Borah amendment proposing a recodification of sea laws before the next arms limitation conference in 1931.

Secretary Kellogg said he thought the Borah plan a very good idea, and that, if there could be a conference on recodification, it would be a good thing. The amendment itself, as suggested by Senator Borah and virtually accepted by Senator Hale, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, appealed to Mr. Kellogg in a measure, but he said that since the question was very important and required much study, he did not care to study it offhand.

Hale Fights for Time Limit.

In the face of President Coolidge's opposition to setting a time limit on construction in the cruiser bill, leading Senate supporters of the measure said at the Capitol today that they would fight to "the last ditch" to retain it.

Senator Hale said:

"I wish to state here and now that

Wave of Buying Lifts Stocks 2 to 16 Points; Favorable Reports Bring 5,504,900-Share Day

A wave of buying enthusiasm swept through the stock market yesterday, resulting in net gains ranging from 1 or 2 points up to 16 points, and raising prices, as measured by the averages, to their highest point on record. Sales on the New York Stock Exchange, totaling 5,504,900 shares, were the second largest of the year, having been exceeded this month only on Jan. 4, when the total was 5,582,200 shares.

The market demonstrated its strength and activity from the start, a flood of overnight buying orders having been received as a result of a combination of favorable developments that had been announced after the market's close on the previous day. The week's increase in brokers' loans, amounting to $48,000,000, was much smaller than had been predicted in Wall Street, and the changes in the Federal Reserve Bank's position tended to remove all likelihood of an advance in the rediscount rate in the near future. These changes included a reduction of $64,000,000 in the private banks' borrowings from the Reserve Bank and an increase from 70.8 per cent to 80 per cent in the Reserve Bank's reserve ratio, which placed the ratio about on a level with this time a year ago. In addition, confidence was increased by imports of gold from London and Canada, and by uniformly favorable industrial reports.

While prices advanced throughout nearly all of the list, the biggest gains were made in the high-priced issues that have led the market in previous upward movements. Some of the features were advances of 16 points in du Pont, 14¼ in General Electric, 12¾ in United States Industrial Alcohol, 9¾ in General Motors, 9¼ in People's Gas, 4 in United States Steel, 6¼ in American Smelting and Refining, 4⅞ in Westinghouse, 8½ in Simmons Company and 5¼ in By-Products Coke. The railroad group was an exception to the general upward movement, merely holding steady for the day.

The combined average of fifty representative stocks, as compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES, advanced 3.78 points for the day, closing at a new high record of 242.18. The average of twenty-five industrial stocks also was at a new high record, 352.45, a gain of 7.48. The railroad average, however, moved up only .01 for the day.

Peacemakers Halt Fight in House Lobby; Elliott Hurls Copy of Record at Blanton

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—What promised to develop into a good old-fashioned fist fight between Representatives Thomas L. Blanton of Texas and Richard N. Elliott of Indiana was stopped today by Representatives Edward E. Denison and Thomas S. Williams of Illinois.

The incident took place in the House lobby. As the climax of words exchanged on one of the lobby settees Mr. Blanton and Mr. Elliott leaped to their feet, and the latter, restrained from hitting his antagonist with his fist, hurled a copy of The Congressional Record into the face of the fighting man from Texas. Things were progressing at a rapid pace, with the combatants about to come to grips, when Representatives Denison and Williams intervened.

It was over the shoulder of Mr. Denison that Mr. Elliott hurled the record laden with speeches by Senators and Representatives, among them one of recent delivery by Mr. Blanton.

The trouble between Messrs. Blanton and Elliott started on the House floor. Mr. Blanton took exception to remarks made by Mr. Elliott in debate and later they met in the lobby and continued the argument.

One version of the affair is that "the lie was passed" and that this brought the disputants to their feet in fighting form. Messrs. Denison and Williams, noting the heated exchanges, took seats near by to be ready to prevent a fight.

Representative Blanton was the first to strike a fistic pose, and at this point the Illinois members rushed in.

There is at least one fight, or near fight, in the House in nearly every session.

I have not dropped the time limit provision; that I regard it as one of the most important in the bill, and I shall make every fight that is in me to see that it is retained in the bill."

Senator Hale's demand that the time limit be retained was made on the Senate floor this morning. He said that in THE NEW YORK TIMES of this morning there appeared a statement that he had dropped the time limit from the bill. "But, he continued, there was nothing in the context of the article or in the debate "which in any way bear out this statement."

Optimism was shown by Chairman Hale Yoke over the prospects for the bill. He said he hoped it would be disposed of in a few days, but this cheerful outlook did not produce a similar reaction among the bill's opponents, who indicated that two weeks would elapse before the final vote. No progress was made upon the bill today because the Senate quickly adjourned out of respect to the memory of ex-Senator Underwood.

The adjournment will cause further delay, for it assures a "morning hour" tomorrow, during which the Senate may transact all manner of miscellaneous business until 2 P. M.

Conflict Over Yards Revived.

Fears that debate on the bill would be seriously complicated for a time by the so-called Dallinger amendment, loomed up this afternoon. As drawn by the House, the amendment provided that the first and each alternate cruiser, together with "the main engines, armor and armament," must be constructed in government yards, gun factories, ordnance plants or arsenals.

To this the Senate naval affairs committee attached a further amendment, "except such material or parts," as the Secretary of the Navy could procure by contract or purchase, "at an appreciable saving in cost to the government."

Senator Bingham today introduced an amendment to permit the Secretary of the Navy to use his discretion by providing that the ships be built in navy yards "whenever such building will not involve an appreciable increase in their cost."

The old battle between the government yards and private yards was thus revived, along with determined efforts by friends of organized labor to have the ships built by the government. There was a short but stiff debate on the matter last night, Senators McKellar and Brookhart protesting against the naval affairs committee amendment and Messrs. Hale and Swanson supporting it. Further conflict is expected on Monday.

Senator Bingham asserted this afternoon that the practice he recommended in his amendment had been recently followed to the mutual benefit of the taxpayer and private builder, and had also kept the private contractor from charging "exorbitant amounts," besides giving the navy yards enough work to keep them busy.

"It is well known that private yards build naval vessels more quickly and at lower costs than navy yards," Senator Bingham said.

"If the bill goes through in its present form, the navy yards will virtually be obliged to take away from private yards their present staffs unless private yards increase labor costs and the cost of the ships to a point where they can hold their staffs against competition offered by more attractive conditions in government yards.

"Under present arrangements, private shipyards are barely able to keep going. Shipbuilders are in keen competition with navy yards, and the selection of the builder remains under the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy. It is to continue this practice that the present amendment is offered."

Navy Opposes Amendments.

Some time ago Senator Walsh of Massachusetts obtained a statement from the Navy Department on the Dallinger amendment. The department stated that that amendment would increase cruiser costs materially and that it would be impossible under it to manufacture all necessary equipment except at inordinate expense.

The department said that fire-control equipment, electrical equipment and gun forgings could not be made in government yards, due to lack of mechanical equipment and skilled labor, and also because of infringements upon patents. The amendment, the department stated, might necessitate the reopening at great expense of the armor plant at Charleston, W. Va.

The Senate amendment, the department held, gave the Secretary some discretionary powers, but even then it would be necessary to spend much in preparing some yards for cruiser construction. Without either the Dallinger or the Senate amendment, it was said, the Secretary would have wider discretion, with resultant competition between government and private yards, which would mean a material saving in cost and time in building the ships.

BRITISH RETICENT ON BORAH PROPOSAL

But Invitation to Sea Law Conference Would Be Accepted, It Is Said.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Senator Borah's proposal for an international conference on sea law to precede the naval conference of 1931 has received little notice in the British press. Not one London newspaper will comment editorially upon it tomorrow. This is not because the importance of the subject is not realized, but rather because comment is being withheld until it becomes apparent whether Senator Borah has the American Government behind him.

At the Foreign Office it was said today that no official intimation had yet been received of any such proposal. Though during the past year there have been many expressions of opinion by those who hold opposite views on the question of relinquishment of the right of sea blockade, the British Government has never given the matter official consideration. If invited by Washington to attend such a conference, Great Britain would accept, but what attitude the British delegation would be authorized to maintain is difficult to predict.

The case against any change in the present status was put in the House of Lords over a year ago by Lord Wester Wemyss He voiced the view held by the British "bluewater school" that Britain's safety depends upon her fleet and that in time of war unrestricted use should be made of that powerful weapon.

The fact that because Germany made unrestricted use of submarines Britain nearly starved at the end of 1917 has not altered this opinion, but it has had a powerful effect in less prejudiced circles.

During the last year, in fact, that intelligent section of the public which gives any consideration to such matters has begun to regard the question in a new light. Commander Kenworthy, former naval officer, who is now a Labor Member of Parliament, has declared unequivocally for an international agreement to insure the safety of peaceable commerce in wartime.

Lord Cecil has urged clarification of maritime law in wartime. The aspect of it that interests him chiefly is that which touches possible action by the League of Nations to boycott an offending power.

That stanch Conservative, J. L. Garvin, welcomes Senator Borah's proposal since it bears out his own recent appeal to the government in The Sunday Observer to "open communication with the American Government in order to prepare the ground for a conference on revision of sea law." Such revision was absolutely essential, he declared, to the harmony to which the Kellogg pact aspires.

The trouble is that Senator Borah's suggestion comes at the time when both parties in England are preparing for the general election. Neither, it is held, will desire to commit itself in advance on such a ticklish question as the relinquishment of Britain's traditional power of blockade.

Arguments advanced in favor of Britain's agreeing to concede freedom of the seas are two—the advisability of making such an agreement with the United States rather than engage in warship building in competition with a country whose pockets are deeper and better lined, and, secondly, the fact that the submarine has changed the basis of a blockading power and destroyed much of that advantage Britain traditionally enjoyed in possession of a large navy.

In a future war like the last one, it is argued, Britain might gain as much from protection of neutral shipping against enemy submarines as she would lose by restriction of her own power to enforce a blockade.

Commander Kenworthy will ask Prime Minister Baldwin on Monday whether the statement in the speech of the First Lord of the Admiralty, W. C. Bridgeman, last week, that it was no use making further naval limitation proposals to America while such suspicion of England's motives prevailed there, represents the policy of the British Government. Mr. Bridgeman's statement has been roundly condemned by Liberal opinion here.

Commander Kenworthy will also ask Sir Austen Chamberlain whether he proposes to make any reply to Secretary Kellogg's note of last September rejecting the Anglo-French compromise, but leaving the door open to alternative proposals.

ITALY WILL BUILD 13 NEW WARSHIPS

Program Adopted Calls for Four Cruisers, Four Destroyers and Five Submarines.

ROME, Jan. 25 (AP).—The Council of Ministers, with Premier Mussolini presiding and holding seven of the thirteen portfolios, today decided on a program for laying down two battle cruisers of 10,000 tons each, two light scouting cruisers of 5,000 tons each, four destroyers and five submarines. Construction will begin in June.

The council was largely devoted to naval affairs, for besides the regular members there were present Admiral Sirianni, Under-Secretary of the Navy; Admiral Marquis Thaon di Revel and Admirals Acton and Burzagli. Discussion lasted from 10 A. M. until 2 P. M.

The council also decided that the light scouting cruisers shall have a corresponding armament of the Condottiere type. Italy already is building four vessels in that category.

The decision met only acclaim in governmental and newspaper circles. It was hailed as a measure necessary for the security of the nation and no word was breathed concerning the expense of the undertaking.

The newspaper Tribuna, always a leading Fascist organ, said that the project did not constitute a new fact because it had been foreseen in the speech which Premier Mussolini delivered at the closing session of the old Parliament.

"The failure of the Geneva Naval Conference was caused by the impossibility of reaching an accord between the United States and England upon the limitation of cruisers of less than 10,000 tons," said the newspaper.

"Then the United States determined upon its present great program for the construction of fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers, England retained her building program intact, and France hastened the realization of hers, which is devoted exclusively to fast, light craft and which a few weeks ago received the full sanction of the Chamber of Deputies."

The article argued that if the signing of the Kellogg pact for the outlawing of war occurred in the midst of this naval expansion it was no fault of Italy, and this country could have no responsibility for the contradictions resulting from such a state of affairs. It was emphasized that the Italian program was the last to be adopted and that without it Italy would have found herself in a condition of grave inferiority.

Governmental circles said that the list of new war craft would in no way infringe upon the tonnage limit which Italy accepted at the 1922 disarmament conference in Washington. She agreed then to a limit of 175,000 tons for capital ships, holding herself on a parity with France, it being understood that limits for other craft would be agreed upon later.

STARTS MODEL PULP MILL.

Willingdon Opens an Experimental Plant at McGill University.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—Viscount Willingdon, Governor General of Canada, pulled a switch lever in the basement of the new Pulp and Paper Research Institute at McGill University this afternoon, thereby setting in motion for the first time the miniature pulp mill which the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association has installed for experimental purposes in the pulp and paper laboratory there.

By the same act he formally opened the building which has been erected and is to be operated by the joint efforts of the Pulp and Paper Association, McGill University and the Dominion Government for research into cellulose chemistry, the utilization of forest products and the advancement of the pulp and paper industry.

GRIP CLOSES POLE SCHOOLS

WARSAW, Jan. 25 (AP).—Influenza continues to ravage Poland and many schools have been ordered closed.

Dr. Bogucki, Vice President of Warsaw, died today from the disease, which he had contracted from his wife, who died a week ago. He had made a name for himself in fighting plague in China and the Far East.

MADRID, Jan. 25 (AP).—Premier Primo de Rivera was ordered by his physician tonight to remain in bed for two days more. He had a slight setback in his battle with influenza.

GILBERT DEPARTS FOR POST IN BERLIN

MLLE. LENGLEN GOING HOME

Schwab a Passenger.

S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations, sailed last night on the French liner Paris, to return to Germany after a short visit to this country. Mr. Gilbert boarded the liner a few minutes before she sailed, and in a short interview with reporters in his cabin, declared that he was returning to Germany without any instructions or any agreement governing his relations with the international commission of economic and financial experts of which J. P. Morgan and Owen D. Young were recently named members.

Mr. Gilbert pointed out that he was not a member of the commission of experts and as a government agent for supervising reparations would have no official connection with the body. Asked specifically if he had had any understanding with Mr. Morgan or Mr. Young he answered in the negative, adding that he might be called into conference with them and, if so, would be glad to contribute the advantage of his experience in reparations.

Mr. Gilbert was accompanied by his wife.

Mlle. Lenglen Sails.

Another passenger on the Paris, one who had made every effort to obscure the fact of her sailing—was Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis star, who sailed for home accompanied by her mother and Baldwin M. Baldwin, California sportsman and son of the famous "Lucky" Baldwin. The appearance at the gangway of the couple, who have been reported to be planning marriage, was responsible for an altercation between Baldwin and several newspaper photographers who tried to take pictures.

As the couple approached the booking office at the gangway, a flashlight boomed, lighting up the entire pier and startling Mlle. Lenglen and Baldwin, who rushed toward the photographer, pushing the camera aside.

Mlle. Lenglen's escort found himself faced by another cameraman standing halfway up the gangplank and as he hurried toward the cameraman, another flashlight boomed and the two engaged in a tussle which, the photographer later charged, resulted in the breaking of his machine.

The couple then proceeded aboard after Mlle. Lenglen had intercepted and admonished the cameraman to "let him alone."

Mr. Baldwin was later interviewed in his cabin by reporters. He refused to disclose when he expected a divorce suit to be completed, and, while not denying that he intended to marry Miss Lenglen eventually, parried all questions with the answer:

"You can answer that yourself."

When asked point blank for the second time if he and Mlle. Lenglen would be married, he replied: "Why do you suppose I am sailing?"

Schwab on 31st Round Trip.

Another passenger on the vessel was Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, who sailed on his eighty-first round trip crossing of the Atlantic. Mr. Schwab recalled that he first crossed the Atlantic forty-three years ago and said that he had been accompanied on the last thirty voyages by Dr. S. A. Brown, Dean of the Medical Department of New York University.

He declared that the business outlook for Bethlehem Steel was exceedingly good for the next year and added that it was unwise to predict any further ahead than that.

He said he was worried, "as all good business men are," about the unusually great amount of speculation at the present time. If a crash does come, he said, "we will not have so many people able to buy. It is the large number of small buyers that mark the trend of business."

Mr. Schwab said that he thought the country should have the cruisers asked for by President Coolidge and that "although a pacifist" he believed the country should keep position with the other countries of the world. The outlook in commercial shipping for this country appears bright, he said.

LEGISLATURE TO PRESS M'PHERSON INQUIRY

California Lawmakers Make Plans to Reopen Case Involving Evangelist.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 25 (AP).—With the aid of a District Attorney's files and a grand jury's manuscripts a legislative committee laid plans today for a new investigation of the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnaping case.

More than two years removed from the time it first fell into the hands of a grand jury, the case, as it appears before a special session of the committee tomorrow, threatened to engulf not only the evangelist this time but also a Superior Court judge.

Paralleling the committee's announcement that upon the outcome of its examination may rest the disposition of possible impeachment proceedings against Judge Carlos S. Hardy, the District Attorney's office said today that tomorrow's session also would determine whether it might undertake a new investigation of the case.

Wayne Jordan, Assistant Chief Deputy District Attorney, announced that any important evidence of the case not previously revealed in his files would be the basis for a recommendation of grand jury action. Colonel Thomas Cooke, foreman of the county grand jury, after turning the transcript of the case taken two years ago to Chairman Walter Little of the State committee, said his jury would be ready to reopen the case if the evidence presented at tomorrow's session justified such action.

STULTZ SEEKS COMMISSION.

Flight Companion of Miss Earhart Applies to New Jersey Guard.

Wilmer A. Stultz, who flew the Friendship across the Atlantic with Miss Amelia Earhart, was among those who have applied for commissions in the New Jersey National Guard.

The application filed by Stultz has been approved by Major Gen. Quincy A. Gillmore and Lieutenant Kellogg Sloan, chief of the aviation unit, and forwarded to the examining board with a recommendation for a captaincy.

Negotiations between Mayor Walker and Ogden L. Mills, Under Secretary of the Treasury, are expected soon to break the deadlock between Postmaster General New and the city administration over the location of the proposed new Federal Building, housing the downtown postoffice and the government courts.

A long-distance telephone conversation between Mayor Walker and Mr. Mills on Thursday was concerned with an offer by the city to deed to the government an alternative site to take the place of the block bounded by West Broadway, Barclay Street, Vesey Street and Church Street, the site upon which Postmaster General New has thus far insisted. Through Mr. Mills an effort is now being made to obtain the Post Office Department's approval of the site named by Mayor Walker on Thursday. Its location was not disclosed yesterday but it is understood to be neither of the two sites already suggested in place of the block desired by Mr. New.

Mr. Mills, it is understood, would be willing to have the present Federal Building site surrendered to the city in exchange for the block just south of the location favored by the Postmaster General or the block just north of it. Mayor Walker's principal objection to the site approved by the Postoffice Department is its cost, which is estimated at a minimum of $2,000,000. The city would be compelled to condemn practically all of the property now on the site.

Business interests now located on the ground which Mr. New wants the city to acquire and turn over to the Federal Government have protested. Several civic organizations, however, have urged that the city comply with the request.

GEORGE PEABODY SUED BY BROOKLYN WOMAN

George Peabody, grandson of the late George Griswold Haven, for many years president of the Metropolitan Opera Real Estate Company, and son of Stephen Peabody, wealthy retired broker, of 5 East Seventy-eighth Street, was arrested there yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Murphy in a suit for $250,000 damages for breach of promise filed in Kings County by Miss Florence H. Matthews, described as a member of an old Brooklyn family. Mr. Peabody, who was graduated from Yale in 1919, was released upon giving $500 bail fixed by Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn.

Justice Callaghan issued the civil arrest order on an affidavit by Miss Matthews asserting that Mr. Peabody, who was divorced in 1918 by Mrs. Grace Allen Peabody while he was a Captain in the United States Army Reserves, deceived her when she was expecting to wed him by going to Greenwich, Conn., on Sept. 23 last and marrying Ruth Maude Daily. She charges that Mr. Peabody represented to her in telephone calls to her apartment at about this time that he was unable to see her because he was trying to elude Federal officers.

Miss Matthews asserts that in October, 1925, when Mr. Peabody was unmarried, he promised to wed her in September, 1926, and established a home for her, allowing her a certain sum for support and maintenance. She says he kept postponing the date of their marriage until finally she heard by accident that he had married another. She alleges that for two weeks prior to Peabody's marriage in September he called her on the telephone almost daily, giving as an excuse for his failure to marry her that he had been ill and was also engrossed in business matters. Miss Matthews says that on Sept. 21 Peabody telephoned at midnight, talked nervously and said he had had some trouble. She said she urged him to tell her the nature of the trouble and that he replied:

"Don't you understand? I can't talk now. It's a Federal matter. It's the backwash of the Sag Harbor matter—the bootlegging—and I'm afraid I'm going to Atlanta."

She alleges he told her he would wire her money, and sent her $75 from Greenwich. She said she telephoned his father's country place at Southampton, L. I., and learned by chance from a maid that Peabody had been married and was on his honeymoon in the Berkshires. She said he wired on Sept. 29 that he would "be home Monday night or Tuesday morning," but he failed to do so.

The plaintiff alleges that the defendant's actions have caused her great mental and physical shock and humiliation, because he had promised to introduce her to his family and assured her she would live in the comfort to which he was accustomed. She asserts that Peabody has an income of not less than $20,000 a year, being employed by the Texaco Company, of which his father is a large stockholder, at $5,000 a year and commissions. She believes he has a substantial allowance from his father and says that his mother, Mrs. Cornelia Haven Peabody, who died Feb. 19, 1926, left him a share of her large estate.

TO SELL BUILDING TO YALE.

New Haven County Historical Society Will Get $500,000.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 25.—A formal vote to sell to Yale University for about $500,000 the New Haven County Historical Building and real estate at the corner of Grove and Temple Streets was announced today by the officials of the association.

Its acquisition by Yale will give it possession of the entire block bounded by College Grove, Temple and Wall Streets, upon which a new fraternity house for St. Anthony Hall and two dormitories known as the Sheffield-Vanderbilt dormitories have been already constructed, as a gift from George W. Vanderbilt.

The erection of other dormitories for the Sheffield Scientific School is expected soon.

Negotiations for the sale to Yale of the Historical Society property has been in progress for several years. The society will erect on Temple Street near its present building a building costing about $500,000, plans for which have been already drawn by Architect J. Frederick Kelly and approved by the Yale architectural committee, of which James Gamble Rogers is chairman.

SEEK ISADORA DUNCAN KIN.

Dancer's Executors Issue Public Notice for Missing Brother.

STUTTGART, Germany, Jan. 25 (AP).—Augustin Duncan, brother and heir to the late Isadora Duncan, dancer, cannot be found.

Investigations as to his present whereabouts having failed, lawyers here in charge of the estate of his sister issued a public notice calling on him to communicate with them.

The estate consists mostly of real estate in and near Paris. Augustin Duncan was formerly a resident of Stuttgart.

Rumano-Vatican Concordat Made.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 25 (AP).—A concordat between Rumania and the Vatican recognizing the official status of the Catholic Church in Rumania was concluded today and will be submitted by Premier Julius Maniu to Parliament next week for ratification. It is understood to provide for the appointment of a Papal Nuncio to Rumania and a Rumanian Minister to the Vatican, free teaching of the Scriptures in Catholic schools and churches, nomination by the Pope of Rumanian candidates for bishoprics and protection of Catholic church property.

COAST GUARD OFFICER CITES RULE TO SHOOT

Says at Elmire Trial in Hanson Slaying Orders Are to Stop Autos by Necessary Means.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—Coast Guardsmen have the right to stop automobiles at any time or place and use firearms if necessary, Lieutenant Clifford D. Feak, assistant to the Chief of the Coast Guard Intelligence Service, testified in Federal court here today.

Lieutenant Feak took the stand in the capacity of an expert for the defense at the trial of Bontawain Frank L. Beck and Glenn Jennings, Coast Guardsmen, charged with manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Jacob D. Hanson, Niagara Falls Elks' Lodge secretary, near North Tonawanda last May 6.

In firing on the Hanson car Jennings was merely following out rules laid down by the government, Feak declared. Mr. Hanson was fatally shot on Lewiston Hill as he was returning from an Elks party at North Tonawanda after having escorted Miss Margaret Deering to her home in Lewiston. He failed to heed the command to halt of Jennings and Chris Dew of a patrol on watch for rum-runners.

Under questioning of United States Attorney Richard H. Templeton, conducting the defense, Feak explained the difference between a command and an order as it applies to the Coast Guard service. This evidence ostensibly was introduced for the benefit of Beck, who, although six miles from the scene at the time of the shooting, was charged with manslaughter because he issued the order to his men.

A command from a superior officer, Feak said, must be obeyed implicitly by his men, but in following out an order they might use their own judgment as to details.

Feak also upheld the right of the Coast Guards to wear other clothing over their uniforms. Jennings and Dew were attired in overalls and sheepskin coats when they hailed Hanson. Feak declared the insignia on their caps was sufficient display of their authority.

The morning session was consumed with arguments over the reversal of Judge John R. Hazel's decision to dismiss the indictment against Beck. He reinstated the indictment yesterday afternoon after dismissing it at the morning session. Mr. Templeton contended this violated the law against double jeopardy. Judge Hazel finally ruled that the indictment would stand and that Mr. Templeton could enter an appeal when the trial ended, if he so desired.

Adjournment was taken this afternoon until 10 A. M. Monday, when Jennings is expected to take the stand.

ACCUSE NESBITT AT TRIAL.

Detectives Tell of Trailing Advertising Man in Divorce Suit.

W. Burgess Nesbitt, advertising man, was accused of misconduct with three women by private detectives testifying yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Townley at the opening of the trial of the divorce action brought by Mrs. Henrietta W. Nesbitt, who lives at the Savoy Plaza. The wife, who is receiving $1,000 a month temporary alimony, asks custody of their fifteen-year-old son, Frank.

The detectives told of trailing the defendant on Aug. 13 and 21 and Sept. 29 and 30, 1928. The women were described as Miss Verna Allan of Brooklyn; Miss Florence Kyle, Nesbitt's secretary; and an unidentified woman. According to his wife the defendant is employed by the Barron Collier advertising agency at an annual salary of $100,000 and a bonus of $40,000. Examined as to his financial status during the afternoon, Mr. Nesbitt said his income for 1927 was $130,000. The trial will continue on Monday.

FARM ANIMAL VALUE RISES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—The Department of Agriculture announced today that reports received indicated that the total value on Jan. 1 of all farm animals was $5,952,713,000, as compared with $5,512,508,000 on Jan. 1, 1928, and $5,033,321,000 two years ago.

The increase in value in live stock in 1928 amounted to $440,205,000, or 8 per cent. The increase over Jan. 1, 1927, was $919,392,000, or 18.3 per cent.

The value of horses and colts was $981,331,000; mules and mule colts, $447,721,000; all cattle and calves, $31,306,637,000; cows and heifers 2 years old and over kept for milk, $1,845,675,000; sheep and lambs, $500,058,000, and swine, including pigs, $714,760,000.

LAWYER ACCUSED OF FRAUD.

Leroy B. Delaney Named in France by Mrs. S. Barton French.

NICE, France, Jan. 25 (AP).—Leroy B. Delaney, American attorney, who was an aviator during the war and since has practiced law in Paris and Nice, was arrested today on charges preferred by Mrs. S. Barton French, society leader of Paris and New York. She charged misappropriation of part of a sum of $38,000 which she commissioned him to draw in New York in 1926.

Leroy Delaney is the son of Major John Carroll Delaney of Harrisburg, Pa. He married in 1926 Mrs. Gladys Ballard, formerly of Louisville, Ky., after serving as her attorney in her divorce suit. Delaney had obtained a divorce from his French wife a short time before.

Mrs. French, although listed in the New York Social Register, has spent much of her time abroad for many years.

BYRD TRIES RAMMING ICE TO CUT A DOCK

STORM IN AIR MAY HELP

Thickness of Ice Delays the Work—Men and Dogs Go Through in Soft Spots, but Are Saved.

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BAY OF WHALES, Antarctica, Jan. 26.—Yesterday Commander Byrd made a valiant attempt to reach the ice barrier, to cut a passage through the heavy pressure ice with the City of New York to a low place where the steamer Eleanor Bolling could be easily unloaded.

The ice was too thick, however, and after a day of ramming and battering the ice, under which the old ship stood up nobly, he was forced to quit and await a little aid from the weather. It appears now as if it might be coming, as a storm is brewing which may shift to the south, and if it does this part of the bay ice should go out.

We left the berth where the ship had been made fast to the edge of the floe because the ice in that spot was getting soft. Several men went in up to their waists during the morning, and finally Norman Vaughan, who has been carrying heavy loads in the last few days, went in up to his shoulders while he was standing alongside his team preparing to start in with a load of coal.

Goes Down Like a Shot.

Vaughan went down like a shot before he could make the slightest attempt to spring aside and hung there in the icy water, his arms outstretched, until Eddie Goodale, another of the drivers, pulled him out.

Dripping and half frozen from his icy plunge, Vaughan ran to the ship and up the plank and into the boiler room to strip his clothes off and thaw out. In a few minutes, he was out again ready to start.

In the meantime his sledge, weighted with heavy coal bags, had been sinking lower and lower in the ice, which bent in around it, until the top was level with the water, despite the efforts of other men to hold it up.

They also were in imminent danger for a time of going in, but managed to pull the coal bags off and drag the sledges to safety.

That decided Commander Byrd, however, to seek a safer spot, and as the lead on the east side of the bay had opened up to within a few hundred yards of the low part of the Barrier, he determined to attempt to smash a way through there in the hope that he could make a passage for the Bolling.

The City of New York pulled along the edge of the bay ice under steam until out in the open lead. With Commander Byrd sitting on the main topgallant yard and Sverre Strom in the crow's-nest, the ship was headed south parallel to the Barrier and about 300 yards out from it, where there seemed to be a series of openings that led on a gradual curve inward toward the Barrier.

Hits Ice With Full Power.

The ship hit the ice with all the power in its engine and easily cut its way through for some distance.

The ice became heavier until it checked the forward movement. Then we began to back up and ram ahead, making a few feet each time.

Once the ship was caught midships by a big cake that folded under other ice, and as the bow was jammed tight at the same time, it was as if she were held in a vise. Men went over the side with bars and pole axes and shovels and finally broke the ice loose so that the ship could move again.

As if to make up for this delay, the ship went ahead with renewed speed for some distance, the bow lifting up and smashing down again through ice five and six feet thick, rolling a little from side to side and shivering with the smash of ice against timbers.

Some dog teams appeared about this time heading for the ship, and the City of New York was laid alongside the ice for half an hour while they were loaded with coal bags and sent away again.

Bursey Pulls Himself Out.

This time Jacob Bursey and his team went through the ice not far from the ship, but he and his dogs pulled out again. While men were running do his aid, Bursey lay on the edge of the hole braced against his sledge so that it could not go in and saved the precious coal. The ice here was much thicker, however, and safer than at the previous disembarking point.

When the sledges were loaded, the ship was turned eastward toward the barrier, almost at right angles to its former course through the ice. Then it showed what a lot of thick ice a ship can break up when it is handled carefully.

We were working against ice that was ridged and heaved up with pressure, so much so that in places there were cakes standing like pillars fifteen feet above the surface. It was also ice that was confined by pressure ice on two sides and by the Barrier on the other, which make the task much harder. Commander Byrd was skeptical as to how much he could accomplish, but felt that if the Barrier could be reached and the ice broken up so that it might move out more quickly, it would help greatly in unloading the Bolling, which is now the greatest problem facing the expedition.

No Impression Made on Pack.

The ship went full speed ahead into this mass of twisted and upheaved ice, pieces of which were at least ten feet thick below the water line. Time and again the bow would ride up on one of these huge floes forcing a way between uplifted and jagged cakes of pressure ice and slide off again when the engines were reversed without apparently making any impression upon the blue glittering mass, which we could see below the water.

Two or three times this would be done, and then the ice would crack and slowly be forced aside. A yard at a time the ship made its way toward the barrier in this way, reeling under the shocks and swaying rapidly aside when a stubborn cake deflected it as it charged forward, until the barrier was only 100 yards away.

But it might just as well have been a mile, for a point was reached where we could not go any further and Commander Byrd decided to back out and go back to the last point where coal had been unloaded.

Most of the day and a good part of the evening was spent in this attempt and it did some good, for the ice has been split and broken so much that a good southerly wind might blow it out and we hope that this will happen.

The Eleanor Bolling is coming more slowly, so as to economize on coal, and there will be about two days for the ice to move before she arrives.

NEW PNEUMONIA SERUM.

Dr. S. A. Brown Tells of Its Value in Some Forms of the Disease.

A pneumonia serum has been developed by medical scientists working at Harlem Hospital in New York, according to Dr. S. A. Brown of New York University, who sailed last night on the steamer Paris.

Dr. Brown said the experiments were being conducted by Drs. William H. Park and J. G. M. Bullowa. The research is being financed by Lucius N. Littauer, glove manufacturer, who recently gave $1,000,000 "to humanity."

He said the serum was better and more effective by far than any ever used before and that within a year would be perfected to a form suitable for commercial purposes.

The greatest disadvantage of serums in present use for pneumonia forms 1 and 2, he said, were that they were too bulky and not easy to use. The serums being perfected at Harlem Hospital were in concentrated forms and have been proved to be more effective by at least 28 per cent, in actual treatment, he said. Thes erum is not suited for types 3 and 4.

Dr. Brown said the development was of greatest importance and predicted that within a few years the new serum would be used as commonly as anti-toxins. He said he understood the city had recently appropriated $10,000 to manufacture it.

MARBLE STRIKE AVERTED.

Workers Hear of Pay Rise and Five-Day Week Agreement.

The marble workers' strike for increased pay and a five-day week, which was scheduled to start today, was called off last night when announcement was made to a mass meeting of 3,000 in Bohemian Hall, 321 East Seventy-third Street, that an agreement calling for general pay rises and a five-day week throughout three months of each year had been reached. The streets near the hall were crowded with parked automobiles during the meeting.

According to the agreement, cutters and setters of the Reliance Labor Club will receive $13.50 a day and carvers $14.50. The White Stone Association polishers and rubbers and sawyers will get $12.10, a 10 per cent increase, and the Compact Labor Club of Helpers will receive $10.45 daily under the new agreement. The new wage schedules are said to affect about 3,000 marble workers.

D. P. PERKINS ASKS DIVORCE

New York Publisher Seeks Freedom From Former Mrs. Galloway.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 25 (AP).—Donald P. Perkins, New York publisher and resident of Westport, filed an action in Superior Court here today, asking divorce from Minnie Boyd Galloway Perkins of Westport and custody of their three children. The complaint alleges Mrs. Perkins has been habitually intemperate.

Mrs. Perkins, the widow of Ernest Galloway, the artist, and the publisher were married July 20, 1912. Just before the marriage Perkins inherited $50,000 from the estate of his prospective wife's parents, who were killed in an automobile accident.

ACCUSER OF WIFE HELD IN BANK THEFT

R. A. Wood of Detroit, Who Said Mrs. Wood Plotted to Have Him Killed, Is Arrested.

"IDENTIFIED" WITH AIDE

But Prosecutor Says Both Men Have Strong Alibis as to $75,000 Held-Up.

DETROIT, Jan. 25 (AP).—Ralph A. Wood and Cecil Holt, accusers of the former's wife, Grace M. Wood, of having inspired a plot against his life, today found themselves accused as two of the five men who on Dec. 17 held up and robbed the Sturgis (Mich.) National Bank of cash and securities totaling $75,000.

Arrested early this morning, Wood in his home in Wyandotte, a suburb, and Holt in the county jail, where he had taken refuge after an alleged attempt was made upon his life, they were taken to Centerville, the seat of St. Joseph County, in which Sturgis is located, and arraigned. They were held by Justice Charles L. Haner under $50,000 bail, which neither was able to furnish immediately. Examination was set for Feb. 5.

The warrants against Wood and Holt were sworn out after James W. Parrish, manager of a five-and-ten-cent store in Sturgis, and Miss Helen Craine, bookkeeper of the bank, had identified them in an impromptu "show up" in a downtown hotel here. Wood and Holt were brought to the hotel and ushered into a well-lighted room, ostensibly to confer with Prosecutor James E. Chenot.

Meanwhile, Parrish and Miss Craine and Roy Borchert, a farmer, viewed them from the window of a darkened room across an areaway. Mr. Borchert said he could not identify them, but Parrish declared Wood was the one-armed man who stood guard at the bank door and Miss Craine identified Holt as the man who climbed over the wall of the cashier's cage and scooped up the money and securities.

Placed in Detroit at Time.

Mr. Chenot, who has been handling the assault case against Mrs. Wood, said his investigators had obtained information that, if substantiated, would place Wood and Holt in Detroit at the time of the bank robbery. He asserted tonight that a strong alibi had been furnished for both Wood and Holt.

Heads of three departments in a large department store here said Wood was in the store at the time the hold-up took place at Sturgis and said they endorsed checks with which he paid for purchases. Records of the Cadillac Motor Company, where Holt is employed, showed he punched his time card at the regular hours that day and employes in the office where he worked said he was present throughout the day.

Who gave the authorities the first information that led to the arrest of Wood and Holt was not certain. Captain Fred Armstrong of the State Police at Lansing said Ambrose Hagerty, employed as a bodyguard for Mrs. Wood, informed him Wood had participated in the hold-up.

Hagerty was shot and killed by Wood in the frustration of the alleged plot against the latter's life. This was on Jan. 9. A few hours after Hagerty's death, Mrs. Wood and Taylor Pierce and William Thompson were arrested on charges of conspiring to kill Wood. The police ambuscade and the arrests were the result of information supplied by Holt, who said he had been engaged by Mrs. Wood with Hagerty, Pierce and Thompson to dispose of Wood.

Captain Armstrong said Hagerty asserted that he received his information from Wood's wife.

Five Men in Sturgis Hold-Up.

In the hold-up of the Sturgis bank, four men entered while one remained in an automobile outside. One, who was one-armed, took up his position at the door. Another stood in the middle of the floor; another near the cashier's cage while the fifth vaulted the cage. All were armed with sawed-off shotguns.

Walter Reich, the teller, and Miss Craine were the only employes there. Four patrons were forced to lie on the floor. The latter included Parrish and Borchert.

Mr. Reich was struck on the head with the butt of a pistol when he showed reluctance to open the cash compartment of the vault. He opened it and the man inside the cage scooped up the money, dashed out of the bank and with his companions disappeared on the highway toward Detroit.

about to go aloft. Iversen broadcast an acknowledgment that all words had been picked up. No repeats were necessary because Hanson sent each word twice and the signal was fairly strong, although nature tried to block the record by an unsuccessful attack of fading.

A few minutes later Hanson advised that he was about to shift the plane's transmitter to function on the sixty-five-meter wave. Silence followed. This wave did not reach New York. It was not an effective wave to cover such a long distance.

At 4:15 A. M. Iversen again picked up the signals from the plane on the thirty-four-meter channel, which this time succeeded in talking with the radio men at the Mussel Rock station of the Robert Dollar Company, twelve miles from San Francisco, which reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES as follows:

"Mussel Rock Radio Station, Robert Dollar Company, established two-way radio communication with Byrd plane Stars and Stripes, exchanging following messages single at twenty-five words per minute without difficulty: 'WPG Fairchild plane Stars and Stripes, Bay of Whales, Jan. 25, to Ralph M. Heintz, San Francisco: Congratulations to you on performance of your airplane transmitter on occasion of establishing this world's record for two-way and one-way aircraft communication. We are 3,000 feet over Little America, Bay of Whales, Antarctica, in Fairchild plane Stars and Stripes.' Signed Hanson."

Mussel Rock replied:

"To Hanson, airplane Stars and Stripes, WFC: Wonderful luck, and I surely am proud to be so fortunate as to be a party to this remarkable accomplishment. Mussel Rock, per Fred Roebuck."

The Transmitter Equipment.

Radio men rate signal strength from 1 to 10, the latter figure denoting a very loud signal. Hanson reported on this basis that the Mussel Rock signal strength was 7, and Mussel Rock reported the intensity of the signal from the plane was of 6 degrees intensity.

The radio transmitter that made the new record was built by Heinz & Kaufmann at San Francisco. It is described as a high-frequency and intermediate frequency transmitter employing one 50-watt oscillator tube, which is about as powerful, so far as electrical rating is concerned, as an ordinary incandescent lamp. The Stars and Stripes is equipped with what is termed a fixed doublet antenna, reaching from the tips of both wings to the tail and into the fuselage. This is for short-wave transmission,

EINSTEIN'S THEORY TRACED TO SOURCES

With Aid of Eddington and Weyl Formulae, He Made New Space Concept, Says Interpreter.

CURVE SHORTEST LINE IN IT

WAS LED ON BY INTUITION

By HANS REICHENBACH,
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—Gravitation and electricity are the two basic elements which regulate all physical phenomena. Gravitation rules mechanical phenomena—the falling of a stone as well as the movements of the planets.

It was Sir Isaac Newton's achievement to discover this universal importance of gravitation, which he formulated into the law of universal mass attraction. Professor Albert Einstein, by his universal relativity theory, effected a similar achievement on a higher scientific scale—that is, he concentrated a larger field of phenomena into one unit by identifying the phenomena of gravitation with the universal characteristics of space and time.

Therein lies the importance of this theory, because the ideal of natural science rests on the amalgamation of all knowledge into one vast unit; and the relativity theory meant a far-reaching advance in this direction.

Decisive Step Was Missing.

But the last decisive step was still missing, because the laws of electricity remained separate from the laws of mechanics. The tenets of electricity had not been changed materially since the Scottish scientist James Clerk Maxwell gave it an ingenious mathematical formula, and although Einstein interposed Maxwell's laws mathematically into his universal theory of relativity, they nevertheless had there an independent position; they were, so to speak, not subordinated to the central universe as expressed in the field of equilization of gravitation.

For a long time, therefore, it has been the aim of Einstein to re-form the tenets of electricity in such a manner that they would merge with the tenets of gravitation, and all the laws of gravitation and the laws of electricity would appear as the consequence of a final unified field law.

This is the aim of Einstein's new theory, which he has now completed. [A New Field Theory]. It uses as an aid a peculiar mathematical source which, in its origin, goes back to the Zurich mathematician Weyl and the English astronomer Eddington. It was found that the non-Euclidian geometry of Riemann, despite its mathematical intricacy, was not sufficient for the founding of such a far-reaching formula. All these theories demand far-reaching exactions of the human imagination.

Parallel Lines Nonexistent.

The space outlined by Riemann differs greatly from ordinary space in that there are no parallel lines; if one prolongs two apparently parallel lines far enough, for instance, those of the edges of a room, they intersect; and if one shoots a projectile with the greatest possible speed straight ahead, it will return after a trip into space over a period of a few million years from the other side of the room.

This space, however, was not sufficient for Einstein's purpose; he altered space once more. He created a space in which parallel lines exist but they have another characteristic, namely, that if one draws a straight line between two points it is shown by measuring with a ruler that this line is not the shortest distance between these points but, compared with a certain curved line, makes a detour. For comparison's sake may imagine certain phenomena upon the curved surface of the earth. If a ship sails from Europe to America over the ocean straight toward the West it takes a longer route than if it sails on the earth's great circle, which first leads toward the northwest and then southwest.

Dr. Einstein has inculcated into the phase a field composed of gravitation and electricity. There exists now only one field, and the division into gravitation and electricity as we have known them before appears from now on as a superficial decomposition of the field of force which, in principle, is unified and subject to one single law.

Dr. Einstein is able to formulate this law; but curiously he cannot, at the present moment, say in extenso what this law means physically. This is dependent on the peculiar form of mathematical argumentation which Dr. Einstein gave his theory.

Fortunate Sagacity Figures.

The type of space outlined by Einstein loses in this theory its basic geometric significance, it being used only in the sense of a computing machine from whose internal accuracy one expects a solution of a puzzling problem which one cannot master by direct intuitive reasoning.

Even if such procedure appears unsatisfactory for the intuitive thinker it seems to possess the right of existence in modern science; indeed, it has happened repeatedly that the machine of conception which man created for himself has become wiser than its creator, that it brings automatically a result to the open, which substantively thinking man is not able to solve.

Similar tendencies played a rôle at the inception of the universal theory of relativity. The accomplishment of the explorer consists here in fortunately finding that algorism which bears a solution within itself. It is less conscious thinking than instinctive cosagacity which helps along this path, not, however, without a certain amount of luck.

How far this sagacity has helped this time cannot be fully seen yet, because Einstein's new theory has not been fully calculated to its last consequence; physical deductions are still lacking and the final verdict regarding its correctness or incorrectness cannot be made. But if any research worker possesses the gift of fortunate sagacity it is Einstein, and therefore the scientific world will have to deliberate over Einstein's theory very thoroughly.

CAPTAIN OF FLORIDA FOUGHT SEA 11 DAYS

SHIP GOING DOWN, SENT S O S

By GIUSEPPE FAVALORO,
Captain of the S. S. Florida.
By Wireless to The Associated Press.

ON BOARD THE S. S. AMERICA, Jan. 25.—We left Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 10, 1929, for Naples with general cargo and deck lumber. On Jan. 11, while securing lumber, lost a man overboard in the Gulf of Mexico. From Jan. 12 to Jan. 19 had boisterous weather. On Jan. 20, at noon, the wind changed to northwest with force, fresh with heavy waves and heavy rainfall.

Proceeding in an easterly direction on my course at 6 P. M., it seemed the wind and sea was increasing in force and green water was breaking fore and aft over all. In order not to lose my deckload, I decided to head into the sea, which was coming from the southeast.

At 8 P. M. a whole gale set in from the northwest. I decided to turn south to avoid the heavy sea and storm. At 11:30 P. M. I noticed that I had lost control of my ship, which did not answer the wheel, and at the same time the chief engineer advised me that the chain of the rudder was broken.

Steered All Night by Hand.

The chain broke near the steering engine of the ship. I ordered to steer by hand by the emergency steering gear aft. I steered this way all night. At the same time, the chief engineer was trying to repair the steering chain with an extra link.

On Jan. 21, 1929, at 3 A. M., we steered again with our steering engine until 9:30 A. M. The chain of our rudder broke again. I ordered again to steer with the emergency steering gear aft on the poop deck.

One green sea boarded us aft and washed me and fifteen men violently off the poop deck, with danger of going overboard. We found ourselves clinging to stanchions, railings and whatever could be found. Many injuries were suffered by this boarding sea. With the chief engineer and all hands available we started again to repair the steering chain.

All hands turned to aft to put the chain back in place. It was impossible to replace the chain of the rudder because the rudder was swinging free. The emergency steering wheel was totally lost overboard by the boarding sea. The ship lay in the trough of the sea.

Saw All Hopeless, Sent S O S.

This happened in Lat. 37.38 degrees N., Long. 59.10 degrees W., on Jan. 22, 1929. I saw everything was in vain, what I was doing, and heard what all my officers were saying, so I sent an S O S for help, and it was answered by the American steamer Dannedaike, who stated he was coming to assist me.

During the night the Dannedaike sent out an S O S that he was in peril and advised me that he could not come to my help. I sent another S O S, which was responded to by the steamer America. In the meantime violent seas swept away my bridge, chart room, lifeboat and part of the deckload, breaking my bunker hatch.

The ship listed more to starboard, right down to the gunwale. I advised the S S America of my danger and the peril of my crew. He answered that he would be at the side of us on the morning of the 23d.

We were working our pumps regularly, as we shipped plenty of water through the bunker hatch. I tried my best to repair this bunker hatch with danger of losing life. My crew, willing and courageous as they were, did not care to take this risk.

On Jan. 23, 1929, we were in continuous communication with the steamship America, but I was unable to give them my exact position, as all my instruments were lost overboard.

At noon, with our spare instrument, I observed the meridian and communicated with the America to calculate my last latitude, not having on board any navigation books.

All my crew's quarters were logged with water. The only section of my ship in working order was the wireless room.

Going with the engines slowly to keep my bow to the sea the commander of the America determined my latitude and informed me that he would be at my side to help at 5 o'clock. In the meantime I attempted once more to replace the chain of the rudder, but all through being convinced of the vainness of my attempt and the peril of the ship.

The ship still had a bad list to starboard. It was impossible to work aft with the danger of being washed overboard in the meantime. In the morning the wind calmed, but the sea was mountainous and continually breaking over my decks fore and aft.

The ship was listed so badly that the water was entering my bunker hatch. At 6:12 I sighted the America and said that my crew was saved. In accord with the America the salvage of my crew was started. I had my crew in lifebelts ready for the boat from the America. I placed lights on the lee side at the rail. These lights were not working properly due to short circuit of my cable lights.

Great Manoeuvre by America.

It was a great manoeuvre on the part of the America as I could do nothing to help. I had no rockets and could make no great light for him to see. In approaching he came abeam to windward and put a lifeboat in the sea manned by volunteers and able seamen.

In a few minutes he came to the lee side of my ship, just in time. The wind started up from west-northwest and the sea increased. The lifeboat came up, manoeuvring with great skill, and threw a line to the boat. We started getting off into the boat. I counted my men one by one and was finally assured that all were on board the boat.

Next to the last man was the chief engineer. Then I threw myself into the sea, bringing with me the ship's papers and giving my last good-bye to the Florida, which was sinking rapidly. The operation of saving the crew was performed very quickly with the intelligent direction of Mr. Manning and skillful aid of the lifeboat crew. I have much praise for this lifeboat crew.

WESTCHESTER PUSHES UNIFORM AUTO LAWS

44 Municipalities Join to Name Committee to Draft Ordinances to End Traffic Congestion.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Confronted with an increase in motor vehicle traffic of approximately 25 per cent a year, and also with varying traffic regulations in adjoining communities, representatives of forty-four municipalities of Westchester County met here today and appointed a committee to draft ordinances providing uniform traffic laws. Fifty-three representatives of towns and villages, representatives of civic organizations, attended as well as County Engineer Charles McDonald of Tarrytown, Sheriff Thomas V. Underhill of White Plains and Lee T. Eastman of New Rochelle, chairman of the Citizen Traffic Committee.

A special committee of nine members, headed by Public Safety Commissioner Alonzo P. Cooper of White Plains, was appointed to draft ordinances, which will contain uniform provisions on control of traffic by lights, speed ordinances, control of parking on main highways and miscellaneous provisions relating to street openings and the blocking of streets and highways with building materials.

Twenty-two of the forty-four municipalities of the county have adopted resolutions binding them to adopt ordinances that may be drafted by the committee.

Mr. McDonald said surveys of traffic in Westchester revealed that there were approximately 125,000 cars registered in the county, an increase of 17 per cent over the 1927 registration, while road traffic had increased 25 per cent over the 1927 figures. He recommended that the speed limit be raised, asserting there were only four municipalities which allowed a speed of as high as twenty miles an hour.

BOYS PLAY AT CARDS IN WILD WEST STYLE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—Two 15-year-old boys sat down to a game of cards as played in the gambling halls of the old West.

Hyatt Stoutenburgh placed a rusty horse pistol, a family relic, on the table near his hand. John Reynolds put his trust in a .22-calibre revolver minus a trigger.

The game started. Then, to carry out the tradition of the frontier days, they started an argument. As it waxed hot Stoutenburgh picked up his pistol.

"This," he said, "is the way they used to do it in the old days."

He leveled the gun at Reynolds and pulled the trigger.

When the smoke cleared Reynolds was found with a bullet through the forehead. He died a half hour later. Stoutenburgh later recalled that he had shown Reynolds how to load the pistol and had forgotten to remove the charge. The police said the shooting was accidental.

Baldwin, Once Pankhurst Foe, Will Unveil Emmeline's Statue

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP).—The revenge that time exacts was seen today when Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister, consented to unveil a seven-foot bronze statue of the late suffragette, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst.

The statue is to be erected in Westminster this Summer, the funds being raised by public subscription.

SHIP OFF AZORES SENDS CALL FOR AID

S O S of Italian Freighter Capo Vado, 600 Miles Southwest of Islands, Picked Up Here.

OTHER CRAFT IN DISTRESS

Tanker Dixiana Aground Off Cuba and the Ferndale, Near Bermuda, Reports Broken Rudder.

Another ship sent out an S O S, and two more reported themselves in trouble but did not call for help yesterday. The S O S came from the S. S. Capovado. The S. S. Dixiano was aground off the southern coast of Cuba; the Fernlale, a motor ship, reported she was without a rudder some 600 miles southeast of Bermuda. Neither of the two latter appeared to be in a serious plight.

The Radio Marine Corporation reported last night that it had intercepted the S O S from the Capo Vado at 13:40 Greenwich time, giving its position as Lat. 31:23 degrees N., Long. 48:46 degrees W. No other details were in the message.

Robert C. Herd & Co. of Baltimore, the agents for the Cia Genovese di Navigation a Vapeur of Genoa, owners of the freighter, said she is bound for Baltimore from Polar, Russia, with a cargo of manganese ore and is due at that port Monday. She usually carried a crew of thirty-five men.

The position given in the message is some 600 miles southwest of the Azores and 750 east of Bermuda.

The tanker Dixiano reported that she was hard aground near Zarza De Fuers Cay, off Cuba, and the Warbler, left Key West early yesterday to assist her. The Warbler went to the aid of the Dollar liner President Garfield and on Wednesday pulled that vessel off a Bahama coral reef.

The tanker is owned by the American Sugar Transportation Corporation, 117 Wall Street, and at the offices it was said the Dixiano was in smooth water. A tug was standing by and the chances were, officials said, that the tanker would be free before the Warbler reached the scene.

The drifting ship is the motor vessel Fernlale, of Norwegian registry. The rudder and the stern frame of the vessel are reported broken. The salvage steamship Relief, of the same wrecking company as the Warbler, put out yesterday from Norfolk to assist the Fernlale.

The Dixiano is of 4,323 tons and was bound from New Orleans to Jucaro, Cuba, to take on molasses. The Fernlale, which is of 2,525 tons, was cruising the Caribbean, picking up a cargo of soya beans. Neither carries passengers.

The mystery of the disappearance of the trawler Seiner, which left New London sixteen days ago with provisions for fifteen days, remained unsolved yesterday. Twelve Coast Guard boats were searching for the missing fishing boat and yesterday her owners, the Portland Trawling Company of Groton, Conn., ordered all ships of its fleet to join in the hunt.

The trawler has been out of radio contact for five days, but the owners were confident yesterday that the Seiner would make port.

"There are a thousand things that may happen to a vessel at sea," said John Graham, president of the company. "Any one of them may have befallen the Seiner and we have no reason to suppose that the boat has met disaster."

He refused to make known the personnel of the trawler on the ground that to do so might alarm the men's relatives.

The trawler Mariner, disabled a week ago while fishing on Georges Banks and later buffeted by gales, was towed into Boston yesterday by the trawler Plover, The Associated Press reported.

HOME TOWN HAILS FRIED.

Worcester Mayor and Chamber Wireless Pride in His Exploit.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 25 (AP).—Mayor O'Hara and the Worcester Chamber of Commerce have sent wireless messages to Captain George Fried, a native of this city, expressing Worcester's pride in his rescue of the thirty-two aboard the imperiled Italian freighter Florida.

The Mayor's message read:

"In behalf of the citizens of Worcester, I extend to you congratulations for your courage and seamanship. The City of Worcester is proud of you."

The Chamber of Commerce wirelessed:

"Worcester proud of you, we offer congratulations."

Radio via R. C. A., Steamship America,
B. Chatham, Mass.
Mayor Michael J. O'Hara,
Worcester, Mass.:
Many thanks your kind message from my home town."

Dannedaike at Bermuda Today.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 25 (AP).—The American tanker Dannedaike, which has been slowly making her way toward Bermuda after being in distress on the night of Jan. 22, notified authorities here today that she expected to reach Murray's Anchorage early tomorrow morning. The ship had started to the aid of the Italian freighter Florida, but had to abandon the attempt because of her own peril. She was proceeding under her own steam.

saved the captain, officers and crew—thirty-two in all—of the Italian steamship Florida. He has won new laurels and has placed additional glory on the American flag.

"Speaking for the people of the city of New York, I am sure I express their sentiments when I hope for Captain Fried and his courageous rescue crew every honor and glory that can be bestowed on them. New York will welcome an opportunity to do its share, and we impatiently await their arrival to emphasize anew our loving devotion to those who typify the noblest characteristic man possesses—his willingness to make every sacrifice to save human life.

"Captain Fried proves heroes are made of stuff that is not transient or temporary. More power and long life to those who think in terms of humanity first, and leave cargo for secondary consideration. Once a hero, always a hero."

Marconi Sends Congratulations.

Senator Guglielmo Marconi in a radio message from Rome to David Sarnoff, vice president of the Radio Corporation of America, praised Captain Fried, as follows:

"Please convey my most sincere congratulations to Captain Fried and the wireless operators for most gallant rescue of my countrymen on Florida. You will understand I am also proud of important part wireless has again played in the rescue of life at sea."

In forwarding the message to the America, Mr. Sarnoff added his own congratulations.

A radio message to David A. Burke, general manager of the United States Lines, received last night from a committee of passengers on the America, reported that a purse of $560 had been turned over to the lifeboat crew. The presentation was made at 8 P. M. last night. Testimonials to Captain Fried and Chief Officer Manning were turned over at the same time. The committee was headed by Charles S. Dumont and Captain James B. Black.

The time of Captain Fried's broadcast tonight will be determined this afternoon after his ship is docked. Chief Officer Manning also will speak. Their description of the rescue will be over WOR, which will also be linked up for Monday's ceremony at the City Hall.

Operators Bowman, Maas and Smith, the wireless men on the America, have consented to appear tonight before the microphone of Station WEAF and tell the story of the S O S watches, it was announced early this morning. The exact time of the broadcasting was not given.

SENATE ACTS TO HONOR CAPT. FRIED AND CREW

Copeland Offers Resolution to Commemorate 'Noble Deeds' —Celler Moves in House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Steps were taken in Congress today by two members of the New York delegation with a view to awarding appropriate honors to Captain George Fried, Chief Officer Henry Manning and eight members of the crew of the United States Lines steamship America who took part in the Florida rescue.

Senator Copeland offered a resolution requesting the Senate Commerce Committee to advise the Senate "what appropriate action should be taken by Congress to commemorate the noble deeds" of the officers and men of the America. In a brief speech Mr. Copeland said the America stood by the sinking ship and "took off thirty-two men in the face of a terrific gale, and established a maritime record for physical bravery and endurance."

The Copeland resolution said, in part:

"The country has been thrilled by the latest story of bravery at sea and has another occasion to hail an achievement of Captain George Fried."

A resolution offered by Representative Celler provides that the "thanks of Congress" be extended to the officers and crew of the America. A similar resolution was offered in the House yesterday by Representative Black of New York.

RESCUER FACES ARREST.

Quartermaster Trettin Deserted Her and Son, Wife Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 25.—Walter Trettin, quartermaster of the America, who was one of the Florida rescue crew, faces arrest tomorrow when his ship reaches Hoboken. Trettin's wife swore out a warrant two weeks ago, charging non-support.

She laid his alleged abandonment of her and their 4-year-old son to his lifelong love for the sea. They were married in 1923 after meeting as employes on the estate of a German coffee merchant near Hamburg.

"He is a hero to the world, but he is far from a hero in his own home," said Mrs. Trettin tonight, adding, however, that if the quartermaster returned and made amends she would not press the charge against him.

ALMA RUBENS PUT IN A SANITARIUM

The Actress Stabs and Slightly Wounds Doctor Riding With Her in Ambulance.

Special to The New York Times.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 25.—Alma Rubens, moving picture actress, twice escaped from an ambulance transporting her to a private sanitarium today, following an attack by her upon a Hollywood physician.

The actress stabbed Dr. Emil W. Meyer twice in the right shoulder with a paper knife. After wounding the physician she made her first break toward liberty and ran screaming down Hollywood Boulevard.

Dr. Meyer and another man overtook Miss Rubens after a chase of several blocks and overpowered her. Another break by Miss Rubens occurred a few blocks away. She again was overtaken.

At the sanitarium she is registered under the name of Genevieve Driscoll.

Mrs. Driscoll, who said that she was Miss Ruben's aunt, stated that Miss Rubens had suffered a complete nervous collapse as a result of overstrain during the making of motion pictures.

Dr. Meyer informed police who were hastily summoned by pedestrians, that he was not seriously hurt.

Miss Rubens is wife of Ricardo Cortex whom she married soon after obtaining a divorce in Los Angeles, in 1925, from Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman, physician, writer and motion picture producer of New York.

TO GREET QUESTION MARK.

Washington Prepares Big Reception to Record-Breaking Plane.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A welcome similar to that accorded Colonel Lindbergh and the army round-the-world flyers on their return to the national capital, will be given the crew of the army transport plane Question Mark, which is scheduled to land at Bolling Field at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Secretary of War Davis will head the official welcoming committee, which also includes the three air secretaries, F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War; Edward P. Warner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and William P. MacCracken, Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

It will abandon the scheduled stop at Langley Field and fly direct to Washington. A squadron of five planes from Langley Field will meet the Question Mark near Hampton Roads and escort it in.

ADMITS HE KILLED WATERS.

W. H. Hooker Confesses Slaying Accountant in Nicaragua.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Jan. 25 (AP).—Waldo H. Hooker, a salesman for the International Agency, confessed today killing Bayard Waters here on Dec. 3 in a desire to keep covered a shortage in his accounts which Waters was auditing.

Waters was only 19 years of age. He was the son of Sir Thomas W. Waters, a native of Texas, who was knighted by the King of Denmark last year for his services as Danish Consul. The young man was working in the evening over the books of the agency.

Hooker said that he found him there at about 7 P. M. and killed him with a hammer. Hooker attended a theatre later that night and was present at Waters's funeral.

The shortage probably does not exceed $1,000.

STEAMER GEORGIA IN TOW.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 25.—The tugs Spartan and Comet late this afternoon took to New York City the steamboat Georgia, which was crippled off the New Haven middle breakwater early this morning, and after a hurry call transferred her forty passengers to the City of Lowell.

An examination of the Georgia before it left here showed that the only damage was the broken propeller, which caused it to drift. The transfer was made on a calm sea and without trouble.

Indications are that the Georgia will resume service Monday.

Deny Passport to Croatian Leader.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Jan. 25.—A telegram from Zagreb says that when Svetozar Pribitchtevitch, the leader of the Independent Democrats belonging to the Peasant-Democrat coalition, applied for a passport to enable him to visit foreign countries the police refused to issue it.

PORTRAIT OF WEST, ARTIST, COMES HERE

WAS TOKEN OF FRIENDSHIP

Picture of Mentor of Gilbert Stuart, Owned for Decades by Family, Is Obtained by New York Dealers.

A portrait of unusual interest to American artists has just come to this country from England, it was learned yesterday. It is a portrait by Sir Thomas Lawrence of Benjamin West (1738-1820), the American artist who was a founder of the Royal Academy and friend and mentor of Gilbert Stuart as well as many other American artists who went to London to study.

West appears on the canvas as a gentle, thoughtful old man, seated beside a table in his studio. In his left hand, resting on the table, are his spectacles, looking as if he might just have taken them off to relax. The portrait was painted by Lawrence for the old president of the academy as a mark of friendship and hung in West's gallery in London until his death. For decades the portrait remained in the possession of West's descendants. It has now been obtained by the Enrich Galleries, 36 East Fifty-seventh Street.

Although born at Springfield, Pa., West spent the greater part of his life in London. After desultory study he set up at the age of 18 as a portrait painter in Philadelphia. Later he spent a year in New York, and in 1760 went to Italy.

Although he won success during his three years in Italy, he moved to London in 1763. There he was encouraged by Sir Joshua Reynolds, and in 1772 George III appointed him historical painter. In 1792 West became the second president of the Royal Academy, succeeding Sir Joshua. He is remembered especially as a teacher, adviser and friend of young American artists who came to London to study. Gilbert Stuart became acquainted with him in 1778 and lived and worked with him during the next four years. Sir Thomas Lawrence himself became president of the National Academy in 1820. Another portrait of West which he painted hangs in the National Gallery in London.

FISHERMAN CATCHES 17 BOTTLES OF WHISKY

But Customs Men Seize Them in Spite of Protests That Ancient Law of Sea Is Violated.

The prohibition act shattered yesterday the once firm faith of William Janus of Atlantic Highlands, N. J., in that ancient tradition of the sea which deals with the right of a fisherman to keep whatever finds its way into his nets, destroyed his belief in his own "fisherman's luck" and even created a doubt of the benvolence of his government. As he walked out of the office of Collector of the Port Elting, Janus was an angry and a disappointed man.

He had been fishing and dragging in Gedney Channel near Orchard Light off the Highlands for many years, and although his luck never had been more than mediocre, he at least had not been interfered with by any branch of the government. Thursday, however, in his thirty-foot sloop he was stopped by a customs patrol boat during one of the happiest moments of his life as a fisherman.

A short while before he was boarded, Janus had been dragging for crabs and had snagged a barnacled bottle of excellent Canadian Club whisky, the appearance of which indicated that it had rested at the bottom of the channel for four or five years. He cast his net again. When the net was pulled in a second time there were sixteen bottles in its mesh, each encrusted with shells and barnacles.

It was a good day's work, Janus felt, and he headed for home. In the Narrows, J. J. McArleney, in charge of the customs craft, came alongside and discovered the liquor. The whisky was taken to the Barge Office and Janus was brought before Collector Elting.

After hearing the fisherman's story, which was corroborated by McArleney, who said the barnacles testified to the age of the bottles, Mr. Elting released the fisherman with a warning that such catches should be turned over promptly to the government. Janus could not see the justice of such procedure and said so with emphasis. It might be prohibition, he declared, but it was not in accord with the ancient traditions of the sea.

PACELLI OFTEN SEES POPE.

Pontiff Seeks Quick Accord on the Roman Question, It Is Thought.

ROME, Jan. 25 (AP).—Ernesto Pacelli, the advocate, who played a prominent part in negotiations for the settlement of the Roman question, has been visiting Pope Pius twice daily of late, leading to the belief in some quarters that the Pontiff wishes to decide on all the various points under discussion in order to hasten the conclusion of an agreement.

Sometimes the conversations have been only between the Pope and the advocate Pacelli, while at other times they have taken place in the presence of Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, and Mgr. Borgomgini Duca, Secretary of Extraordinary Affairs at the Vatican.

Rumors today that Signor Pacelli, Father Tacchi-Venturi, the Jesuit priest who is an authority on the Roman question, and Premier Mussolini himself were in the Vatican today, led to a semi-official Vatican communiqué which stated that it was a sheer coincidence that the advocate and Father Tacchi-Venturi found themselves together in the Vatican, and "as to the coming of Premier Mussolini, it is hardly worth while to add that it is pure fantasy."

Auto Injures Ten Rumanians.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 25.—As a detachment of gendarmerie was marching today from the gates of the barracks close to the Foreign Office here a motor car rounded a corner and hit the centre of the column. Fifteen gendarmes were flung to the ground and only five were able to rise. Ten were removed to a hospital suffering from fractured skulls, broken legs and internal injuries. The chauffeur was arrested.

78 ROYAL VISITORS IN EX-KAISER'S PARTY

He Decrees Helmets and Spurs for Kings and Princes at Birthday Fete Sunday.

WILHELM DENIES WAR GUILT

In Interview, He Cites Scholars to Show That Germany Was Not Solely to Blame.

SAYS ALLIES BROKE 'TREATY'

Asserts "Preliminary" One Limited Reparations to War Damages—Calls Atrocity Stories Lies.

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 25.—"Uniforms, helmets and high boots." Thus must visiting male royalty be caparisoned on the Sabbath morning, according to "regulations governing the seventieth anniversary of his Majesty Kaiser William" drawn up and posted today by the all highest himself.

Seventy-eight royal personages are on the visiting list—forty-eight kings and princes and thirty queens and princesses. How the women must appear is not given in the official rules, but it is noted that the uniforms must be "peace" uniforms, even though garnished with helmets and spurs.

At Doorn the prefix "ex" is never attached to Hohenzollern royalty, and so in the long printed document, couched in a form similar to general army orders issued at great general headquarters during the war, it is noted that his Majesty the King of Saxony, her Majesty the Queen of Greece and their Imperial Highnesses the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Germany will arrive at such and such an hour at Doorn House. The list concludes with the arrival of the court pianist, plain "Herr" Wolfram Zeller.

Wilhelm Aloof, Hermine Smiles.

Despite the precautions taken to keep royalty comfortably distant from the plebeian world—many extra police are now on duty at Doorn House—it was our luck to meet both the all highest and his wife this morning as they strolled along snowy paths through the park. Separated by a frozen moat and a barbed wire fence, Wilhelm turned his back and both stood their ground.

The former Emperor's appearance gave a suggestion that his clothes as well as his life are now modeled from those of his illustrious ancestor, Frederick the Great. He wore a long gray overcoat and a high double-peaked cap similar to that in which Frederick is often portrayed. Also he had abandoned his ordinary walking stick for an old-time staff almost as tall as himself, which seemed to fit into the pictures of Kings on parade as turned out by old masters.

Wilhelm stalked on alone, but the "Kaiserin" remained to wait for several of her children who were having a fine romp in the snow with a big police dog.

Inasmuch as she then stared in our direction we doffed our hat and bowed. Such a bright smile and return bow greeted our gesture as to lend support to a theory current here, namely, that if Hermine had her way all the pomp and privacy would be thrown into the discard, that Wilhelm's second wife would be glad to court popularity by publicity, but that the imperial protocol of Potsdam is still well oiled and in working order within the boundaries of the Doorn estate.

The birthday party has been progressing since last Sunday when generals of the old army came to pay their respects, and will continue over Sunday until Tuesday, with a series of state luncheons and dinners both at Doorn House and the residence of Count Bentinck at Amorongen, where the Kaiser first was lodged after his flight from the Fatherland. By Sunday the guests will be so numerous that Count Bentinck has again come forward with an offer of shelter.

The Merry Hohenzollerns.

That Hohenzollern royalty can make merry in this tenth year of grace since the great débâcle of their fortunes was evidenced after today's lunch at Doorn House when three minor Princes decided to take the air and went for a walk in the village. One of them, while dressed in full uniform, with spurred boots and glittering orders, presented the somewhat incongruous spectacle of also wearing a brown derby hat. Villagers stared and press photographers were attracted until finally another of the trio sensed the sensation and suggested that his royal cousin "remove the lid," which was accomplished by the young Prince handing the derby to a valet who had been sent chasing after with the proper headgear.

The former Crown Prince with his entire family and other sons of the former Kaiser will arrive tomorrow. Only his daughter, the Princess Victoria, Duchess of Brunswick, arrived today. The only notable absentees of the entire clan are the Kaiser's brother, Prince Henry, who is ill, and his sister Victoria, whose recent "unfortunate marriage" with a Russian puts her right out of the family set. In the absence of Henry a toast will be offered at Sunday's dinner wishing Wilhelm many happy returns of the day by the next highest in rank, "his Majesty the King of Saxony," after which Wilhelm will cut the cake.

Wilhelm Grants Interview.

DOORN, Jan. 25 (AP).—On the eve of his seventieth birthday, former Emperor Wilhelm II, speaking through a friend and co-worker, Baron Ulrich von Sell, gave the chief of the Berlin Bureau of The Associated Press, who visited Doorn, an interview.

While presenting the interview through a spokesman, the former Emperor himself dictated a foreword which he signed.

The text of his foreword follows:

To promote the welfare of the German people and to preserve the peace in the world—this has ever been the supreme law governing my actions. In the firm faith in God the all just, I therefore hope to live to see the day that shall free us Germans from the burden of the false accusation of having unleashed the greatest of all wars.

WILHELM.

In the interview the former Emperor speaking through Baron von Sell, declared that "the preliminary treaty of Nov. 5, 1918," bearing directly on the reparations problem, had been broken and that he had observed with satisfaction that the thesis of Germany's sole guilt for the war was becoming more and more untenable.

Growing Sentiment, he denied German cruelty in the conduct of the World War and revealed maxims that guided him during the thirty years of his reign.

Says Allies Broke Treaty.

Asked how William II regarded the development and present status of the reparations question, Baron von Sell left no doubt that his sovereign considered the Allies as having violated a treaty.

"In estimating this question," he said, "his Majesty proceeds from the fact that the settlement of the reparations problem rests, to begin with, upon an evident breach of treaty. According to the program of President Wilson, the central powers were not to pay any war reparations, but were only to restore the occupied territories. When Germany, in October, 1918, declared herself ready to accept this program, the Allies expanded the obligations of Germany to include the damage rendered to their civil population through submarine and air attacks.

"It was on this basis that the preliminary treaty of Nov. 5, 1918, was concluded. By its terms Germany would have had to pay about 20 milliard gold marks, according to the estimates of Keynes, or 40 milliards, according to the estimates of the Italian statesman Nitti.

"Indicating the Treaty of Versailles, nobody paid any attention whatever to the limitations of this preliminary treaty. It was simply decreed that Germany was to be held liable for all the Allies' costs incurred in the war. The basis for this action was furnished by the thesis of Germany's guilt for the war—an unscrupulously invented lie. German reparations already delivered and the losses of territory incurred through the dictate of Versailles exceed many times the sums estimated by Keynes and Nitti, and still there is no end in sight.

"During the negotiations which are about to be opened it should be remembered and again and again emphasized that there is in existence a preliminary treaty which was treated as a 'scrap of paper' also, that there is no such thing as a German responsibility for the war, upon which the reparations stand or fall."

Views on War Guilt.

This logically led to a discussion of the war guilt question as viewed by the former monarch.

"Does his Majesty see any evidence of a change of public opinion outside of Germany in estimating Germany's guilt for the war as compared with the views current in 1919?" Baron von Sell was asked.

"Most decidedly his Majesty does," was his rejoiner. "How could it be otherwise? For the documents published since 1919 from German, Russian, Serbian and other archives have long brought irrefutable proof that the thesis of Germany's responsibility for the outbreak of the war is no longer tenable. His Majesty is able to note with satisfaction that no conscientious investigator today still defends the thesis, embodied in Article 231 of the Versailles treaty, of Germany's sole guilt in the war.

"I need but to remind you of Senator Owen and of savants like the American historians, Barnes, William L. Langer and Fay, the Canadian Ewart and many others. In this connection permit me also to remind you of Fay's work, 'The Origins of the World War,' just published.

"His Majesty expects—and it would seem not without foundation—that voices as important as these will, in the course of time, bring about a change of world opinion in favor of Germany, and will finally result in canceling further payments of tribute on the part of Germany."

The discussion now turned to the charge of Germany's method of conducting the war, which finds expression in the phrase, used in the Treaty of Versailles, alleging that Germany is responsible "likewise for the cruel and inhumane manner in which the war was conducted."

Baron von Sell was asked: "This concerns his Majesty in a very particular manner; what has he to say in reply?"

The Baron replied:

"Today, a decade after the war, the cruelties with which the Germans were charged have long been unmasked as lies and have been made to appear ludicrous. Does any sensible person today still believe in the mutilated hands of Belgian children, the crucified Canadian, the German shrapnel stuffed with pictures of saints, the poisoned bonbons thrown from airplanes by German fliers, the explosive lead pencils distributed among French children, the corpses of warriors used to gain fats, glycerine and fertilizers, or the bones of Italian soldiers ground for obtaining phosphorus? Today, after all, it is a matter of common knowledge that in Belgium, even before a single one of the alleged atrocities had been committed, a commission had been created as early as Aug. 5, 1914, to make findings on German atrocities—in other words, that the atrocity commission was called into life before the atrocities themselves."

Calls Allies Inhumane.

"But what of the submarine warfare?" the interviewer persisted.

"Let us consider merely the practical side and omit any discussion founded upon the law of nations, as this would lead us too far," was the reply. "To be sure, some 26,000 nationals of the Entente lost their lives through submarines—without a doubt a regretably high figure—but what is this in comparison with the 800,000 dead which were demanded as the toll of England's unlawful hunger blockade of the German civilian population? Who ever mentions these atrocities? Who speaks of Saralong, King Stephen, of the behavior of the English at Scapa Flow?

"No, the atrocity propaganda was never anything different from an unclean means of conducting the war. Germany and the German Emperor had nothing to do with it. They are now in a position to meet this war measure, which knowingly makes use of the lie, with terrible counter-accusations."

Foch Back to Normal Meals.

PARIS, Jan. 25 (AP).—Marshal Foch has made such improvement that his doctors announced today that he was now allowed to eat normal meals and that no further bulletins would be issued until Sunday. There will be no general consultation at the patient's bedside until Monday, when it will be decided whether he has progressed far enough to permit him to receive visitors. Premier Poincaré, by his own request, will be the first person admitted to the Marshal's presence. It has not yet been decided when the Marshal will leave for Southern France to recuperate, nor has the place been selected.

FLOUNCES FEATURE NEW PARIS MODELS

Deep, Circular Peplums, Forming Tiers Above Upper Skirt, Have Been Revived.

BLACK ENSEMBLES SHOWN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Flying draperies and esthetic dancers flutter across the fashion stage as Paris presents the first of the Spring and Summer style collections. This "mold and flare" silhouette is developed with a straight, loosely belted waist, falling to a low hipline, where a full effect is given.

The methods of obtaining this fulness distinguish the new models from those of the Winter. Flowered chiffons in pastel shades or darkly colorful early English flower designs have flying godets and pointed panels. Other models have deep flounces or double tiers attached midway between hip and knee. Yteb features chiffon flounces and vertical tucks. Groult uses a circular cut.

Deep circular peplums, forming tiers about the upper skirt before dropping in trailing tabs at the back have been revived. The heavier silks have circular peplums above swaying, circular skirts. Circular flounces on printed silks are sometimes put on in a slanting line high to the waistline at the right, dropping low at the left hip. A buckled belt is then placed at the left.

The skirts of sports frocks are usually pleated with the pleats stitched down, giving a molded hipline.

Harlequin costumes abound. Groult presents an evening ensemble with a robe de style skirt made with alternating wide stripes of pink and black satin. The wrap of pink metal moire hugs the body half way to the knees where three drooping, circular tiers burst into a piquant flare. The middle tier is in black moire and the high collar of black fox.

Black and beige have ousted navy blue for the darker street ensembles, with printed facings and matching frock. White is most popular for sports wear which Champ Communal combines with vivid little unlined jackets in a new uncrushable silk voile. All plain pale shades are fashionable for sports dress. Rouff uses French gray and Yteb copper and topaz shades.

IDLE LOOT IN CAPE TOWN.

Unemployed Stage Demonstrations as Parliament Convenes.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 25 (AP).—Demonstrations by the unemployed, set to coincide with the opening of Parliament today, culminated in serious disturbances. In the crowded quarter of the city unruly elements were looting shops which sell food and damaged other stores. One policeman was knocked unconscious and mounted police were summoned to quell the outbreaks.

The tone of recent daily metings of unemployed has been distinctly hostile to the government, and Thomas Boydell, Minister of Labor, has been particularly singled out for his alleged failure to solve the unemployment problem.

At the opening of the sixth and final session of the present Parliament the Earl of Athlone, Governor General, in the speech from the throne said that the legislative work would include an amendment to the customs laws in conformity with the new Mozambique Convention, the treaty with Germany and ratification of the Kellogg-Briand pact.

The government also intended, the speech continued, to provide funds for investigating the possibility of converting coal into oil, a question regarded as of vital importance to the Union's industrial future.

SEES ACCORD ON ESTATE.

Lawyer Expects C. W. Smith to Share in Mrs. Carlton's Legacy.

Amicable adjustment of the $2,000,000 estate left by Mrs. Josephine Winslow Carlton, wife of Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, so that Clifford Warren Smith, her son, may receive a share was predicted last night by Bennett E. Siegelstein, who announced that the 31-year-old husband of Clair Luce had given him power of attorney last night before sailing for London on the Paris.

Reports of rifts in the family were denied by Mr. Siegelstein, who said relatives of Mr. Smith had given up their objections to his marriage to the former Follies girl. She went to London last year and is now on the London stage. Mr. Smith sailed to join her. Mr. Siegelstein is also her attorney. He denied reports that Mr. Smith had been cut off with $300 following the marriage and said he would try to increase his income from his grandfather's estate to $100,000 a year. Charles Anderson Smith, the grandfather, left $32,000,000.

NEW YUGOSLAV HOUSE SEEN

Change in Building Taken to Forecast a Bicameral Parliament.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Jan. 25.—A significant indication of at least one change in the Yugoslav Parliamentary system, if absolutism abdicates in its favor, is foreshadowed in a statement published here that the plans for the new Parliament House have been suddenly changed.

The building, which is now in course of construction, was to have consisted of one large hall, with the usual subsidiary rooms as party offices. Pending the construction, Parliament sits in a former schoolhouse. Now comes news that the Minister of the Interior has ordered the construction of two large halls instead of one. If, as there is little doubt held here, this means that King Alexander has decided that in the future Yugoslavia is to have an upper as well as a lower house instead of a single chamber government, the change would be one which independent observers have long considered essential to the improvement of political life.

KING'S CHEST CLEARED OF EMPYEMA MENACE

His Physicians Now Expect to Be Able to Move Him to Seaside Early Next Month.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The first bulletin on King George's condition issued since Tuesday informed his subjects today that his improvement is continuing and his chest is now free of the organism which caused the empyema from which he suffered for several weeks.

The text of the bulletin is as follows:

The improvement in his Majesty's condition as noted in the last bulletin continues. A bacteriological test shows the right chest is now free of the infecting organism.

HUGH M. RIGBY,
LIONEL WHITBY,
DAWSON OF PENN.

News that the local infection had now entirely disappeared was regarded by the King's doctors as particularly cheering, for it means that the royal patient is now suffering only from the weakness which the disease has brought in its train. Though the date when the King will be transferred to Bognor has not yet been settled, the progress he has made in the last few days indicates that the first week in February will be selected. He is expected to stay there about three months.

Today's bulletin is the first since the beginning of the King's illness from which the signature of Sir Stanley Hewitt was absent. Sir Stanley, who had kept a nightly vigil at the palace for five or six weeks, caught cold on Wednesday and is still confined to his home.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP).—For the first time throughout the illness of King George only one of the chief doctors was in attendance tonight.

PAY AS YOU ENTER CAR TRIED OUT BY B. M. T.

One-Man Coach Has Turnstile for Fares, Automatic Doors and Safety Devices.

A "subway station on wheels" was put on regular schedule yesterday on the Vanderbilt Avenue surface line by the B. M. T. for experimental operation. Equipped with the most modern safety devices, "1500," as the car is designated, also has an automatic turnstile for fares. The car was built at the B. M. T. shops.

It is designed as a front entrance carrier, with exit facilities at both the front and rear. Passengers boarding the car pass behind the operator to a turnstile just inside the body of the car, which is released by inserting a nickel, or a token for transfer passengers. The turnstile operates with less noise than those used at subway stations and is of lighter construction.

The car doors are operated by pneumatic engines interlocked with the motorman's brake valve. The doors can be opened only when the brakes are applied and the car is stopped. Power is cut off until the doors are closed.

The rear exit doors have treadle steps and platform plates, which also are interlocked with the brake valve so as to function only when the car is stopped. In addition a "selector valve" at the motorman's position also controls the rear door.

The weight of a passenger on the treadle plate opens the rear door when the brakes are applied and the selector valve is in position to permit operating the door.

It is impossible for the operator to start the car while the rear door is open. This door will remain open only while weight is applied to the platform treadle plate or the treadle step.

The car is also equipped with "dead man's button," so that if the motorman releases his pressure on the handle the brakes are automatically applied.

At the B. M. T. offices it was said that the car had been operated successfully during the rush hours yesterday.

WOMEN VOTERS IN SESSION.

Manhattan League Holds First of a Series of Meetings at Club.

The first of a series of meetings under the auspices of the Manhattan League, League of Women Voters, took place yesterday afternoon at the Women's Cosmopolitan Club, 125 East Fortieth Street. Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, national president of the league, discussed the changed attitude of women throughout the country toward politics. A genuine interest now in legislative work, she declared was a direct outgrowth of the educational work of the league and other womens' organizations.

Mrs. Julia Hicks Carson, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters, talked on the Newton bill and others for which the league is working in Washington. Mrs. F. Louis Slade presided. Mrs. Alfred Herrfeldt, first vice chairman of the Manhattan League, had charge of arrangements for the meeting.

Young Democratic Club to Help Build Up Party in the State.

The New York Young Democratic Club will cooperate with Governor Roosevelt and State Chairman M. William Bray in their plans to build up the Democratic party in this State, John W. A. Kelley, its newly elected president, announced yesterday.

The new officers of the club will be installed today at a luncheon at its headquarters, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street. Besides Mr. Kelley, they include Cleveland E. Dodge, Jonah J. Goldstein and Ferdinand B. Sanford, vice presidents; H. Spencer Bregoff, secretary, and Harold Harper, treasurer. Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan of the Court of Special Sessions and William Lewis Butcher will speak at the luncheon.

West Point Choir to Sing Here.

The Cadet Chapel Choir of the West Point Military Academy, which numbers 150, will come to this city this afternoon to sing tomorrow at the 4 o'clock service in St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church. They will sing the two West Point hymns, "Alma Mater," and "The Corps," and an anthem, "The Light, the Truth and the Way," by Koschat. The cadets will be under command of Captain W. S. Eley.

$200,000 in Stamps Stolen While Berlin Officials Eat

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—While the executives were having lunch two burglars stole $200,000 worth of stamps from one of Berlin's post-offices in broad daylight today.

Disguised as postmen the thieves opened an iron door, filled two post sacks with hundreds of packages of stamps weighing 220 pounds and got away.

The raid took less than twenty minutes, but this was not surprising, as the thieves found the keys in the locks of the closets where the stamps were kept.

HUNT BOSTON CLERK FOR $50,000 SHORTAGE

Ex-Employe of Shawmut National Bank Is Sought Here by Federal Agents.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Federal authorities expect to arrest in New York tomorrow, Basil E. La Place or Newton Center, who is charged with the embezzlement and misappropriation of from $50,000 to $150,000 while manager of the automobile loan department of the National Shawmut Bank here.

Walter S. Bucklin, president of the bank, in announcing the shortage today, said that the bank is fully covered by insurance.

Federal officers here learned tonight that La Place is under surveillance in a New York hotel, where he is registered under a fictitious name. The warrant for his arrest was issued at the Federal court here today. It was applied for by the Department of Justice after national bank examiners had made a report of their investigation of La Place's accounts.

La Place had been employed by the bank about fifteen years, having started as a junior clerk when a boy. He grew with the bank, and officials say that he built up his particular department. He resigned by letter fifteen days ago.

At the bank it was known that he owned an expensive home in Newton Center, but officials had been told that he or his wife had inherited some money, while neighbors in Newton understood he had made a "killing in the stock market."

TARIFF STIRS ARGENTINA.

Proposal to Raise Our Duties on Hides and Meats Assailed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 25.—While Argentina is attempting to convince the United States of the injustice of increasing the duties on casein and linseed another unpleasant surprise has come in the report that the Ways and Means Committee of the United States Congress is considering proposals to increase the duties on preserved meats, hides and cattle by-products. The Epoca, organ of the party in power, bitterly criticizes what it calls the American lack of vision and disputes American statements referring to Argentine competition with producers of the United States.

The Nacion, in an editorial to be published tomorrow, urges Argentina to formulate a policy to protect national production. The editorial says the tendency of the world today is toward industrialization as in the United States and toward strong protection. It says the era of pleasant words has passed into history and Argentina must realise the cold facts and take immediate steps to prevent the annihilation of her production and export trade.

Exports of preserved meats from Argentina to the United States last year increased tremendously and the United States is an important market for Argentinean hides. Many business men here are convinced that the protected tariff increases are directly aimed at Argentina. Producers and exporters are much disturbed and are planning to make strong representations to the Argentine Government to oppose the proposed increases.

GERMAN HENS 'UNPATRIOTIC'

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—German hens are unpatriotic, according to a statement by Dr. Hermann Dietrich, Minister of Food and Agriculture. Though they cackled as loudly as foreign hens, they were averaging only eighty eggs annually while the foreigners are laying 180, he told the agricultural committee of the Reichstag today.

Because of this slothfulness, he continued, Germany was obliged to import 3,000,000,000 eggs last year, which was 500,000,000 more than in the previous year, though the number of fowls increased from 72,000,000 to more than 75,000,000, the census shows.

One committee of members suggested that perhaps the hens had not adopted mass production methods, while another expressed the belief that foreign influence is at work sabotaging German egg production.

CHURCHILL A 'FREE TRADER'

His Self-Designation Causes Stir Till Baldwin Approves Speech.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (Canadian Press).—Political gossips were busy this week with talk of a split in the Baldwin Cabinet due to a remark by Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a speech at Manchester.

"I suppose," said Mr. Churchill, "that in this audience the majority are free traders, as I am myself."

Premier Baldwin, however, expressed approval of the speech, saying that it proved a man could be a free trader and "supporter of safeguarding" at the same time.

Conservative declarations indicate that basic planks of the government's platform in the coming campaign will be the extension of imperial preference and the establishment of protection or "safeguarding," with benefits to industry in lowered taxes of $130,000,000 a year.

BROWNE AMPLIFIES ATTACK ON CONTRACT

Links Kenny's and Berry's Sons With Concern That Is to Supply Radiator Covers to City.

Supplementing his charge at the Board of Estimate meeting on Thursday that "Kenny is behind Klearair Radiator, Inc., which got a contract to supply city hospitals with radiator covers, Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, made public yesterday a copy of a commercial agency report stating that William F. Kenny is a director of the company and that his son, Thomas Kenny, is treasurer. It was Mr. Browne's remark, "Kenny is behind it," which angered Mayor Walker and brought about adoption of a resolution rescinding Browne's right to stand at the rail, a privilege which he has enjoyed for fifteen years.

The president of the concern is said to be George D. Berry, who, Mr. Browne says in his statement, is the son of Controller Charles W. Berry. Mr. Browne said:

"I am not aware that it is a crime for any Kenny to be interested in any corporation doing business with the city, or a crime or any reflection upon the members of the Board of Estimate for voting, whether they knew or did not know that any Kenny was interested in this or any contract.

"The questions at issue are:

"The radiator screens in question are patented, and to order such is a violation of the city charter.

"No bids were asked for, and it is proposed to give such contract for $50,000.

"If produced J. D. Gerken & Co. who agreed to furnish the same or better screens for $20,000, and Tuttle & Bailey will furnish them for $15,000, and I have no doubt that with competitive bidding they can be furnished for $10,000.

"The report of the secretary of the Board of Estimate, after investigation, said the screens intended to be ordered were patented and that 'the price was high.'"

Australians to See Inauguration.

One hundred and fifty members of the Young Australia League, ranging in age from 14 to 17 years, who landed in San Francisco last week, are to arrive here March 1 and will go to Washington to witness the inauguration of President Hoover. According to information yesterday at the office of the Commissioner of Australia, 25 Broadway, the boys will visit many of the larger American cities.

TOKIO ENVOY RENEWS NANKING CONFERENCE

Though China Will Demand Shantung Evacuation, There Is Hope for Tariff Accord First.

JAPAN CONSIDERS TERMS

It Is Believed Likely to Approve Them Before Feb. 1, Nanking's Date for Customs Autonomy.

TOKIO SCORED AT GENEVA

By HENRY F. MISSELWITZ.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 25.—The Sino-Japanese treaty conversations were reopened at Nanking today between the Japanese Minister, M. Kenkichi Yoshizawa, and the Nationalist Government's Foreign Minister, Dr. C. T. Wang. It is expected that at long last they will reach a definite settlement on at least one outstanding problem and possibly a basis of settlement for one other.

M. Yoshizawa, I understand, called formally at the Foreign Office yesterday and the parley opened this afternoon. It is believed that Dr. Wang's first contention will be that Japan move immediately to withdraw her forces in the province of Shantung, which is known to be the basis which Nanking demanded be agreed upon before reconsideration of other problems.

M. Yoshizawa is reported authentically to be invested with full plenipotentiary powers, which Consul General Chichitaro Yada, who conducted previous negotiations, did not have. Hence a certain spirit of optimism prevails that the conference will make headway after the months of deadlock due to the adamant attitude of both sides.

One thing at least, it is believed, Tokio is willing to do, and that is to sign some agreement, if not an actual treaty, covering the inauguration of China's new tariff schedule on Feb. 1. [On Jan. 18 the Nanking Foreign Office announced that an accord recognizing Chinese tariff autonomy had been reached and M. Yada predicted that it would be signed within a few days]. It is probable that M. Yoshizawa will seek to dispose of this question before taking up the knotty problem of Shantung evacuation. Thus success, at the outset, depends on the National Government's willingness to make at least this concession.

Chinese Circles Optimistic.

Semi-official Chinese circles maintain an attitude of optimism tinged with concern, as well as a certain air of determination not to recede from their long-declared policy regarding Shantung and the Manchurian problems. The conservatives are inclined to the opinion that it would be best to proceed with discussion of the tariff compact first, then evacuation of Shantung, which would be a compromise that possibly would provide a basis for continuance of the conversations.

The presence of M. Yoshizawa, coming direct from Tokio, is taken, anyhow, as an indication of Japan's sincerity definitely to proceed to an amicable settlement of these questions, which frequently the past year have threatened to break out into actual violence.

The greatest precautions are being taken at Nanking to guard adequately Japan's envoy during his sojourn at the capital. Certain radical elements, it is feared, are planning to cause riots similar to the recent student affair on Takejiro Tokonami's unofficial visit.

Draft of Accord in Tokio.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—Draft notes embodying the Sino-Japanese tariff agreement are being examined by a committee of the Privy Council, which will report to the plenary meeting of the council Jan. 30. It is expected that the council will make a favorable report, which would permit the new tariff to come into operation Feb. 1.

Baron Tanaka, the Japanese Prime Minister, again was subjected to pertinacious heckling in the budget committee today on the assassination of Chang Tso-lin.

M. Nakano, a member of the Opposition, said that if any Chinese were asked who murdered Chang Tso-lin they simply smiled at the question. M. Nakano asserted that official reports on the killing had been in Tokio since October and appealed to the Prime Minister to publish them in order to vindicate Japan before the world.

He made no specific charges but blamed the Japanese for handing over to the Chinese the section of railway where the explosion which killed Chang Tso-lin occurred and declared one of two Chinese alleged to have been shot by Japanese sentries on the morning of the murder is living in luxury today in Mukden.

The Prime Minister steadily refused to add to his previous statement that the affair was under investigation.

GENEVA PARLEY ENDS IN ROW.

British and Japanese Delegates Resent Chinese Opium Charges.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 25.—Japan's intervention in Shantung, as well as her alleged protection of illicit dealers in narcotics in China, was assailed today at the League of Nations opium conference by the Chinese delegate, Wang King-ky.

Great Britain also was mentioned and the representatives of Tokio and London resented the remarks so strongly that the meeting adjourned until tomorrow without acting on M. Wang's recommendations.

Proclaiming that young China has always supported the United States viewpoint and closing with a eulogy of the work of Bishop Charles H. Brent of Western New York, M. Wang placed before the commission five strong proposals to place positive restriction upon the traffic in narcotics in China.

Filled with attacks upon foreign influences declared to be responsible for China's narcotics problem, the speech drew emphatic protest from the Japanese and British delegates, who demanded that it be excluded from the League record, or, if permitted to appear, that it be shorn of political references. Although the delegates witnessed the not-uncommon spectacle of Premier Mussolini's representative, Signor Cavasmal, appearing in the role of apostle of free speech in support of China, the discussion became so violent that the meeting and a decision upon the speech were adjourned. Doubtless some agreement can be reached outside the commission, observers believe.

The part of M. Wang's statement to which the British delegate, Mr. Delavigne, most strenuously objected was that in which he referred to Formosa as the source of drugs imported into China and in which he protested against unequal treaties and customs restrictions which, he said, forced China to make her fight against opium in her own territories mainly through the agencies of foreign powers. China furnishes no foreign country with narcotics, does not grow coca leaves nor manufacture morphine, heroin or other drugs, he declared, and has ratified The Hague convention and started a campaign against opium and other narcotics in a law promulgated Sept. 17, 1928.

M. Wang's speech also contained a violent protest against Japan's intervention in Shantung.

The Chinese delegate concluded his speech by asking the commission to send five recommendations to the Council, as follows: First, that all interested powers should forbid opium smoking in their Far East possessions; second, after complete abolition of consular jurisdiction, the powers should withdraw their protection to those nationals who engage in the illicit drug traffic; third, on the territory of their concessions, the powers should accept collaboration with Chinese police in order to check the traffic; fourth, the powers should promulgate laws limiting the manufacture of morphine, cocaine and other drugs to the amount needed for medical purposes, conforming to the Hague convention; and, fifth the proposed inquiry by Great Britain should be extended to all countries producing or manufacturing opium.

FOUR ESSEX CHILDREN SLAIN

British Police Search for Ex-Policeman, Father of Two Victims.

ROMFORD, Essex, England, Jan. 25 (AP).—The bodies of four children, cousins, between the ages of 2½ and 6½ years, were discovered with their throats cut in a shed on undeveloped land in this neighborhood today.

The eldest boy and girl were children of Sidney Percy Gray, 32 years old, a former member of the Metropolitan Police of London, and the other boy and girl were children of Gray's sister. The police are now searching for Gray, who was last seen yesterday afternoon walking on the street with the four children.

Gray was a policeman for eight years, but in trying to save an old woman who had heedlessly stepped into the roadway in front of a fire engine he was knocked down by the engine and suffered serious head injuries. He spent a long time in a hospital and a period in a home for the mentally deranged, having since been pensioned.

Two Youths Hold Up Dentist.

Two youths held up Dr. Charles Goldfarb, dentist, in his office at 253 Seventh Street, yesterday afternoon, bound and gagged him with strips of an apron used to cover the clothing of patients, and escaped with $10 they took from his pockets. They entered at 2 o'clock, and said a dentist friend, a Dr. Hirschkowitz, had sent them to borrow some instruments. Dr. Goldfarb turned to get the instruments and one of the youths drew a pistol and ordered him not to make any outcry.

RUSSIA AND REICH SIGN NEW TREATY

They Agree to Set Up Commission to Which All Disputes Will Be Submitted.

POLAND WORRIES MOSCOW

Her Demand That Baltic States Sign Protocol at Once Rouses Fears of Possible Hostile Bloc.

By WALTER DURANTY.

MOSCOW, Jan. 25.—A treaty was signed at the Soviet Foreign Commissariat today between Germany and Soviet Russia by M. M. Litvinoff, Assistant Commissar of Foreign Affairs, and Ambassador Herbert von Dirksen and others. The two States pledge themselves in the treaty to submit all disputes between them to a joint commission consisting of two Germans and two Russians, which is to meet normally once each year but may be convoked at any time on the request of either government. It will be in no sense a "commission of arbitration," but what the Germans call a "commission of mitigation," that is, one to examine conflicts and suggest means of settlement.

The new treaty, in the negotiation of which Germany took the initiative, is one result of the protracted negotiations here in December. It is a natural adjunct to the Soviet-German "Berlin treaty of non-aggression and neutrality" signed in April, 1926, which mentions the desirability of some such convention.

Uneasy Over Poland.

In out-Kellogging Secretary of State Kellogg has M. Litvinoff overdone it? Uneasiness has been increasing here by the Polish Ambassador's declaration that M. Litvinoff's protocol, if signed at all, must be signed simultaneously by all the interested parties. This statement seems to show that Poland will reject the procedure for signing the protocol as proposed by M. Litvinoff last Sunday.

According to M. Litvinoff's perhaps overambitious plan, the Soviet Union and Poland must jointly sign the protocol in Moscow; then and only then would the Soviet invite Estonia, Finland and Latvia (Lithuania having already been invited) to adhere individually to Moscow's protocol, transmitting their acts of signature to the Soviet Foreign Office. Through Poland the Soviet would also invite Poland's ally, Rumania, to signify her adherence to Moscow direct.

Fear of Baltic Bloc.

In this way all the business would be done in Moscow, the Soviet Government as the protocol's "originator" playing a presiding, if not dominating, rôle.

Commenting today on the Polish Ambassador's declaration, the official Izvestiya reveals a fear that Poland, exploiting the probable objections of the Baltic States and Rumania to M. Litvinoff's procedure, may profit by it in order to realize a scheme which the Soviet Foreign Office has been trying for years to prevent, namely, the formation of a Baltic bloc which, under Poland's leadership, might then insist on a round-table conference to discuss the signing of M. Litvinoff's protocol. Izvestiya denounces Poland for her attitude, adding that the "Soviet will draw the proper conclusions because the character of our protocol does not admit of delay."

RUSSIA IS RECOVERING GOOD TRADE BALANCE

Industrial Exports Are Counted On to Replace Wheat Sales in Financing Purchases.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 25.—The Bolsheviki are making a terrific fight to substitute industrial exports for Russia's wheat exports, which, according to some expert opinions, have gone off the world market possibly for several years.

Soviet trade returns for the October-December quarter show that at least for the moment they are winning that fight.

The figures for that quarter give exports valued at 169,600,000 rubles and imports valued at 166,800,000 rubles, or an export surplus of 2,800,000 rubles. The corresponding quarter of 1927, it is true, showed an export surplus of 4,600,000 rubles, but the imports in that quarter were valued at 6,300,000 rubles less than in the quarter under review; moreover, the decisive factor, 30,000,000 rubles' worth of cereals, then were exported. Those cereals, plus 20,000,000 rubles' worth more, had to be reexported six months later. Therefore, as the Soviet had counted on heavy grain exports to finance imports of raw materials and industrial equipment during the financial year from October, 1927, to September, 1928, that financial year ended with a depressing adverse trade balance of 184,000,000 rubles—a deficit which would have been catastrophic but for heroic squeezing of the home market in order to mobilize commodities for export.

Now, in this quarter, without any wheat exports whatsoever, the Soviets has succeeded again in swinging over its trade balance. This is a remarkable achievement, even when allowance has been made for the restriction of the home market it implies.

This is such as to show an increase of 30,000,000 rubles or 51.3 per cent over the corresponding quarter of 1927. Industrial exports now form 49 per cent of Russia's total exports, against 35.3 per cent in the same quarter of 1927 and only 25 per cent before the great war [when the total foreign trade, of course, was much greater]. Timber exports increased 69.3 per cent, oil 38.3 per cent, iron 82.3 per cent, coal 103 per cent; the exports of cotton goods, of which the scarcity is so great here, none the less increased "some hundredfold."

More than 22,000,000 rubles under this year's "State plan" is devoted to financing those branches of industry which are destined to produce exportable goods. Fourteen per cent of all investments in industry during 1928 will be concentrated to this end.

So the battle is going on. The Soviet, seeing several years ahead an agrarian crisis during the period of the forced socialization of agriculture, makes a gigantic effort to replace wheat exports by industrial goods. All from now on depends on whether or not these industrial exports can be forced up to a point where they can continue to finance the purchase of raw materials and the minimum necessary equipment at the same time as paying for wheat imports which may become necessary. But that is another story.

HABIBULLAH LOSES HOLD EVEN IN KABUL

Fact He Is Persian Alienates Tribal Support and Causes Swing to Amanullah.

OTHER PRETENDERS RISING

Nadir Khan, Former Envoy to Paris, May Quit Cannes for Kabul, as He Has Been Named for Throne.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PESHAWUR, India, Jan. 25.—It is already apparent the establishment of the fact that Bacha Sakao, the new Afghan King, is not a Pathan, but a Persian, has caused widespread hostility. It is also clear that he has failed to make his government a going concern even in Kabul. Government services there have ceased to function, it is learned today. It is probable that Bacha Sakao could not direct affairs of State, however much he tried, because of his inexperience.

Consequently, an appreciable feeling of revulsion favors the return of King Amanullah, who abdicated two weeks ago, and whose labors for Afghan well-being seem to be regarded more highly now than when he was ruling. But his former handicaps to popularity have been increased by a doubt whether the monarch who fled from Bacha Sakao is worthy of Pathan allegiance. Amanullah thus needs to persuade his former subjects that his retirement to Kandahar was merely a tactical move or else to re-establish his credit by warlike achievements. Meanwhile, among the Ghilzais of Southern Afghanistan and the Mangals numerous pretenders are reported to be in the field.

Wireless to Kabul Restored.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAHORE, India, Jan. 25.—General unrest in Kabul is reported today and serious trouble is expected when the weather permits. The Shinwaris now state definitely that they will not accept Habibullah Khan since he is not a Pathan. He is bound, therefore, to have considerable difficulty in consolidating his position in the Pathan villages.

The general situation in Afghanistan is chaotic and intriguing is constant. More bloodshed is considered likely. Amanullah is mobilizing his forces. The Shinwaris are in power around Jalalabad and now control Dakka. The Ghilzais around Ghazni are an unknown quantity. No one knows whether they will join Amanullah, Habibullah or work on their own.

No airplanes have been flown since Inayatullah was brought to Peshawur, the weather being unsuitable for landing at Kabul. The Foreign Office at Kabul, however, has again been reopened and the wireless is working between Kabul and India.

Nadir Khan Trying to Return.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CANNES, France, Jan. 25.—Prince Nadir Khan, former Afghan Minister to Paris, who has been mentioned as a possible successor to Amanullah, stated in an interview today that he had no ambitions in that direction. He said, however, that he would like to join his family at Kabul. One of his brothers, formerly the Afghan Minister to Moscow, has gone to Paris to obtain visas, but Nadir was informed today that London had refused to grant visas to Afghanistan until further notice.

Nadir appeared hurt at the decision and may travel via Russia instead.

Amanullah's Rails Nearing Port.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KARACHI, India, Jan. 25.—A shipload of German rails which were ordered by Amanullah before the revolution is due to arrive here soon. There is much speculation as to what will happen to it and to hundreds of other orders which are now being executed by British and Continental firms under Amanullah's instructions.

500 NETTED IN CHICAGO IN NEW POLICE DRIVE

Commissioner Launches Expected Week-End Round-Up a Day Early, Filling Cells.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—More than 500 persons were held in police station cells throughout Chicago at 11 o'clock tonight as a result of another week-end round-up of the city's lawless element, launched at 8 o'clock in the evening, with the promise that it would outdo that of last week, when more than 2,000 men and women were taken into custody.

The order for a renewal of the drive, the purpose of which is not only to keep down crime and to drive gangsters and hold-up men out of Chicago, but to discourage the reported influx of underworld habitués from New York and other cities, was given secretly by Police Commissioner Russell. Renewal of the police attack had not been expected until tomorrow night.

Within a few minutes after the police squads set out, continuous calls for patrol wagons came into every station. Three hours later more than 200 arrests were reported in five districts of the South Side. In other districts there was a flow of batches of twenty-five and fifty persons picked up in known haunts.

Beer flats, speakeasies, vice and gambling dens, poolrooms, hotel lobbies and night clubs were searched for men with criminal records. Many of those arrested will be held for the "show-up" at Police Headquarters Sunday and Monday morning.

Commissioner Russell gave orders that the men arrested were to be asked about their employment, their families, their places of residence and the circumstances attending their arrest. This procedure, he said, was to seek to prevent injustice being done to persons taken merely because they were in bad company.

every effort will be made to adjust these differences without pursuing this litigation."

Apart from the Judge's comment today's proceedings were brief. Harry B. Valsey, for General Booth, said the evidence in answer to the affidavits was complete but that the General had not been able to file his own evidence in reply. He therefore applied for a further short adjournment, and the motion was ordered to stand over till Tuesday.

Here's a new one—

A New York University professor commenting on Einstein's latest says that his hypothesis opens visions of persons being able to float in air.

Naturally, this starts us thinking of what will be the fashions in floating costume.

While we dare not venture a thought as to feminine attire, our best guess for men going South is an alpaca coat and an ulster—both may be needed. Take along a bathing suit, for water floating may be surer than air.

For the present in this climate, however, one of our men's sack suits is about the thing whether you stick to terra firma or go aloft, and several thousand have had their prices clipped to show substantial savings.

Boys', too!

PARAGUAY STIRRED BY NEW BORDER ROW

But Stories of Four Brazilians Being Killed Are Not Confirmed in Rio de Janeiro.

ALARM OVER BOLIVIA

Washington Hears of Big Arms Order in Europe and Two Shipments Stopped.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 25 (AP).—Dispatches from Asunción to local newspapers today said that four Brazilian soldiers were killed in a clash between sixty Brazilian troops and a party of Paraguayan civilians escorted by eight soldiers.

The Brazilians, belonging to the garrison at Ponta Pora, attacked the Paraguayans at night and the fight lasted an hour, according to the dispatches.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 25 (AP).—A government statement tonight said that the clash reported at Ponta Pora was between a Brazilian military force and a band of outlaws composed of both Paraguayans and Brazilians in the State of Matto Grosso.

Such bands are not uncommon in the sparsely settled sections of Brazil and they frequently clash with the constituted authorities.

No casualties in the encounter were reported here, and it is evident that the clash was not between detachments of the armies of Paraguay and Brazil.

Arms Orders Alarm Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—Large purchases of arms reported being made in Europe by Bolivia aroused the anxiety here today of the State Department and of Latin-American diplomats, who feared that the differences between Bolivia and Paraguay over their recent frontier clashes might flare up again.

Word from the Chilean Government that it had prohibited about a month ago the passage through its territory of arms said to have been en route to Bolivia and the recent Argentine action in seizing similar shipments destined for the La Paz Government served to reassure the State Department that a situation threatened the tranquility of South America would not be likely to be created again.

The reports which reached Washington were to the effect that an order amounting to several million dollars had been placed by the Bolivian Government with a large British munitions firm and that this order had been sublet in part to the Continental subsidiaries of the British concern. The first shipments were reported already en route to Bolivia.

No arms had been shipped to Bolivia from the United States, it was said at the State Department.

It is understood that the reported Bolivian arms purchase was mentioned in conversations which Secretary Kellogg of the State Department had yesterday with the Ambassadors of Chile, Peru and Brazil and with Minister Diez de Medina of Bolivia. Señor de Medina, it is understood, assured the Secretary of State that he knew nothing of the report.

Bolivia's reported action was deplored all the more here because it was held that, if true, it would constitute a violation of the spirit of the recent protocol of conciliation signed by Bolivian and Paraguayan delegates to the Pan-American Arbitration Conference to settle last month's frontier incident.

Commission Waits on Paraguay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The commission of investigation provided for in the protocol signed by Bolivia and Paraguay at the recent Pan-American Conference to settle amicably the differences arising between them as the result of their border clashes in the Chaco territory will meet here as soon as Paraguay appoints its two representatives on the commission, according to announcement at the State Department today.

The commission will not consider the boundary dispute between the countries and is to complete its task within six months from its organization. It will consist of nine members, two each appointed by Bolivia and Paraguay, and one each by the United States, Mexico, Colombia, Uruguay and Cuba.

The members of the commission so far appointed are:

The United States, Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy; Bolivia, Señor David Alvestigui and Señor Enrique Finot; Colombia, Señor Enrique Olaya, Colombian Minister to the United States; Cuba, Dr. Manuel Marquez Sterling; Mexico, Fernando Gonzalez Roa, a delegate to the recent Pan-American Conference; Uruguay, General Guillermo Ruprecht.

Dr. Juan V. Ramirez, Paraguayan Chargé d'Affaires, said today that his government had offered positions on the commission to eminent statesmen and is still awaiting one acceptance. Dr. Francisco Chaves has already agreed to serve, while the other post has been offered to Eusilio Ayala, a member of the government party, who has not yet indicated his intentions.

ornament and Senators and Representatives.

Republicans were as generous in their praise of his achievements and his personal characteristics, and obviously as saddened by his passing, as were those Democrats who had fought their party's battles under his leadership during his long career in House and Senate. He was the chosen party leader in both bodies.

Lived in Historic House.

Woodlawn, where Mr. Underwood died, was purchased by him since he retired from the Senate less than two years ago. The mansion there was built by Lawrence Washington, nephew of George Washington, and his wife, Eleanor Custis, the famous "Nelly," granddaughter of Martha Washington and adopted daughter of George and Martha.

The house was being built at the time of General Washington's death in December, 1799. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Underwood there was interrupted a year ago when he went to Havana as one of the United States delegates to the Sixth Pan-American Conference. They also made some short trips abroad for the benefit of Mr. Underwood's health. Woodlawn is not far from Mount Vernon.

With Mr. Underwood when he died were Mrs. Underwood, who was Miss Bertha Woodward of Birmingham, Ala., and his sons, John Lewis Underwood and Oscar W. Underwood Jr., the latter a lawyer of Washington.

Congress Learns of His Death.

Senator J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama made the announcement of Mr. Underwood's death in the Senate shortly after that body had assembled and was engaged in discussing the bill authorizing the construction of fifteen cruisers.

"The Senate," he said, "will be profoundly shocked and grieved to learn of the death of a former member of this body and a former leader of the Senate. Oscar Underwood died this morning at 11 o'clock.

"Because of his long service in Congress and his long service as leader of the Democratic membership in the Senate, I suggest to the majority leader that we now adjourn as a mark of respect."

Senator Curtis, the Republican floor leader, then moved the adjournment. In the House Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the Democratic floor leader, made the announcement of Mr. Underwood's death. He characterized Mr. Underwood as "one of the great men of his generation."

Condolence From the President.

Upon being informed of the death of Mr. Underwood, President Coolidge sent the following note of sympathy to Mrs. Underwood:

The White House,
Washington, Jan. 25, 1929.

My dear Mrs. Underwood:

It is with great regret that I have heard of the passing of your distinguished husband, the Hon. Oscar W. Underwood.

I came in contact with him when I became Vice President and learned to have the highest regard for his ability and character. I knew from reports of his long service in the House of Representatives, where he rose to a position of great influence.

It has always been my privilege of regarding him as my friend. The character of his public service made all the country under obligation to him and his personality was such as endeared him to all who came in contact with him.

Mrs. Coolidge joins me in expressing deepest sympathy for you and the other members of his family.

Very cordially yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Mrs. Oscar W. Underwood,
Woodlawn, Acotink, Va.

Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State, made this statement:

"I have learned with deep regret of the death of former Senator Oscar W. Underwood. The long years of his public service, both in the House of Representatives and in the Senate, demonstrated that he was a statesman of the highest order.

"His counsel was sought and advice heeded on public questions which lay beyond the limits of party politics. In the passing of Senator Underwood the country has lost one of its great men and one of its most conscientious servants."

Tributes From Senators.

Senators who had served in Congress with Mr. Underwood paid affectionate tribute to his memory. Republicans were as generous in their praise of his achievements and his personality as were those of his own party. Some of these tributes follow:

Senator CURTIS of Kansas, Vice President-elect and present Republican leader of the Senate—Senator Underwood was one of the finest men I ever knew. I served with him in both the House and Senate. His many friends all over the country mourn his loss.

Senator HARRIS of Georgia—I was shocked to hear of the death of Senator Underwood. He was one of the ablest men in public life in the past half century.

Senator SWANSON of Virginia—I served in the House and Senate with Oscar Underwood and had for him the greatest affection and friendship. He possessed a most capacious mind, untiring industry, sterling honesty and character and was of unflinching courage. He was a gentleman of high ideals and ability.

Senator SHEPHARD of Texas—Senator Underwood was one of the outstanding men in the political affairs of this nation. He was a man of fine character and great ability and I deeply regret his death.

Senator WALSH of Massachusetts—Senator Underwood's death removes from the public and private life of America a man of exceptional ability, remarkable political courage, and a statesman of a type that has apparently been appearing less in public life in recent years, to the disadvantage of our institutions. No Senator of more kindly, sympathetic and conscientious principles has appeared in public service in recent years.

Kept His Word, Says Norris.

Senator NORRIS of Nebraska, leader of the Progressive Republicans—I always had a high regard for Senator Underwood. He was a man of unimpeachable character. I served with him in the House and Senate, I disagreed with him often, but I always found him reliable. His word given privately would always be kept, no matter what the result. I am glad to say that personally we were the best of friends always.

Senator JONES of Washington—I cannot say too much in tribute to Senator Oscar Underwood. I served with him in the House and Senate and I had a high admiration for him. He was a wonderful man, fine, able, fair in every way. I regard his death as a distinct loss to the country.

Senator OVERMAN of North Carolina—I had the greatest admiration, respect and love for Oscar Underwood. The South has lost one of its great leaders.

Senator SIMMONS of North Carolina—Senator Underwood was a prominent and conspicuous figure in the public life of the nation for many years, both as a member and the leader of the House and as a member and leader of the Senate. He served his party and his country with great distinction and honor.

Clear-Headed, Says Kendrick.

Senator KENDRICK of Wyoming—I regarded Oscar Underwood as one of the great men of the generation. No man in either branch of Congress in his day better understood the desires of the country and strove harder to legislate for them. He was clear-headed, sound in judgment and courageous in action. He was of unfailing courtesy and always anxious to promote the public welfare.

Senator PITTMAN of Nevada—He was a good and great man. His whole life was one of patriotic and unselfish service to his fellow men and to his country.

Senator HARRISON of Mississippi—Oscar Underwood, of all the public men I have known, possessed more of the qualities of real leadership. No one was ever more popular with his colleagues and inspired greater confidence among his followers.

Senator EDWARDS of New Jersey—When Alabama, Klan-ridden and infected with super-bigots, refused Oscar Underwood a renomination to the United States Senate, this Southern Commonwealth hastened the death of the most outstanding statesman in the upper chamber of Congress since Webster, Calhoun and John Sherp Williams.

No national legislator of modern times outranked Oscar Underwood in a nation-wide vision of progressive and tolerant America. Oscar Underwood died a martyr to the cause of the Jeffersonian principle of religious freedom and will live in the heart of America as one of her outstanding disciples of a sound and constructive conservatism.

Senator GLASS of Virginia—Underwood was among the ablest and most effective leaders of the House during his service in that body, and in the Senate he was even more seasoned and accomplished in statecraft. Never in haste, rarely ever in a temper, even under extreme provocation, his fine poise and cogent reasoning made him a leader in public affairs whom it was nearly always safe to follow. Personally, Underwood was among the most engaging and lovable of all the public men I have ever known.

Senator HEFLIN of Alabama—I am very much shocked and grieved at the death of Senator Underwood. His death came as a surprise to me, as I had understood he was improving from his illness. I served in the House with him when he was floor leader there and also served in the Senate with him when he was leader of his party in that body. He was a fine, able man, a good parliamentarian and a splendid legislator. His name is connected with one of the great tariff acts, the Underwood-Simmons law. He was hard-working, studious, painstaking and careful. His death is a great loss to the country and to his State.

Tributes by House Members.

Tributes from House members included the following:

Speaker LONGWORTH—I served in the House with Mr. Underwood for about twelve years. He was one of the best men, privately and publicly, that I have ever known. The greater characteristic of his public career was courage always. He always stood for what he believed, and he always voted as he believed when he felt that he was right. He had high qualities of statesmanship, and in the House, as in the Senate, had the affection and esteem of his fellows.

Representative JOHN Q. TILSON of Connecticut, Republican floor leader—As a legislator, Mr. Underwood had some of the greatest elements of leadership of any man with whom I have served in Congress. He commanded the confidence of everybody on both sides of the chamber, and invariably inspired devoted loyalty on his own side which enabled him to put through almost any program that he seriously set his heart upon. He was safe and conservative and a far-seeing statesman.

Representative CRISP of Georgia—I think the country has sustained an irreparable loss in the death of Senator Underwood. He enjoyed the love and confidence of all associated with him. He has rendered great service to the nation in his various legislative capacities. He was a great American.

Representative RAINEY of Illinois—I was closely connected with him in almost the entire period of his service in the House and Senate. I served with him on the Committee of Ways and Means of the House, and so had an opportunity to know him well. He was a splendid gentleman of the old Southern school and a great leader of men. He was one of the greatest leaders the Democratic party ever had in the House and was the greatest leader the party ever had in the Senate. He was a genial and companionable gentleman, loved by all who knew him. His death is a distinct loss to the nation.

Eulogy by Garrett in House.

In giving formal notice of the death of Mr. Underwood to the House Representative Garrett of Tennessee, Democratic leader, as intimate friend of Mr. Underwood for years, after describing the late Senator as "one of the greatest men of his generation," added:

"Mr. Underwood was a man of great intellectual capacity and he had a profound knowledge of the fundamentals of government. He had superb courage, which enabled him always to stand by his convictions. He contributed as much as any man of his time to government, to the public welfare and to the maintenance of the integrity, purity and glory of our great institutions of government."

Mr. Garrett will ask that a day be set aside in the House for memorial services in honor of Mr. Underwood.

The Ways and Means Committee, of which Mr. Underwood was chairman when the Democrats revised the tariff in 1913, and which became known as the Underwood-Simmons act, took action on the Alabaman's death this afternoon. A subcommittee composed of Representatives Bachrach of New Jersey and Crisp of Georgia was named to draft resolutions of sympathy and respect.

OSCAR UNDERWOOD'S CAREER.

He Entered Politics Early in Life—Clashed With W. J. Bryan.

One of the elder statesmen of the House and the Senate, former Senator Oscar W. Underwood, in an active political career of more than thirty-two years, came close to his party's nomination for the highest office of the land on at least one occasion—in 1912. He stood out in both branches of Congress as a leader whose name was linked with many important measures and his reputation for wisdom on questions of taxation was widespread.

Considered toward the end of his career as an ultra-conservative, Senator Underwood revealed himself in many ways a Democrat of the Jeffersonian school. His opposition to the Ku Klux Klan was undaunted, even though it perhaps hurt his chances for the Presidential nomination at the famous Madison Square Garden convention of 1924, and was blamed largely for his eventual retirement from politics at the end of his Senatorial term in March, 1927.

Linked with his hatred of the Klan as un-American was his opposition to prohibition, which he fought during all his years in Congress, and his advocacy of former Governor Smith as the "logical candidate" for the party in the 1928 election. He announced his backing of Mr. Smith several years earlier.

Leader in Tariff Legislation.

Underwood as majority leader of the House and chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in 1913 was responsible for the tariff measure which bears his name and which was superseded by the present Fordney-McCumber bill. Two years earlier, when President Taft had lost control of the lower house to the Democrats, Mr. Underwood put a series of separate measures through Congress reducing some schedules of the Payne-Aldrich tariff schedule by schedule. The President felt called upon to veto each of these as they appeared.

The Senator from Alabama displayed his conservatism by his stand against woman suffrage and the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill and his backing of the measure to lease the operation of Muscle Shoals to private individuals.

The esteem in which he was held even by political opponents was shown in his appointment by President Harding as one of the four United States Representatives to the Washington disarmament conference in 1921 and his appointment by President Coolidge as a member of the United States delegation to the Pan-American Conference at Havana a year ago. The former Senator's duties at that time concerned legal questions and consideration of the international law agenda of the conference.

It was reported a few years ago that President Harding had offered Senator Underwood a seat on the Supreme Court bench, which was declined.

Entered Politics Early.

Senator Underwood was born in Louisville, Ky. on May 6, 1862. He went to the University of Virginia and was admitted to the bar in 1884. A year later he married Eugenia Massie of Charlottesville, Va., who died in 1900. They had two children, John Lewis and Oscar W. Underwood Jr. In 1904 he married Bertha Woodward of Birmingham, Ala.

When Underwood was 3 years old his parents moved to St. Paul, Minn., then a frontier settlement. They lived there for ten years, then returned to Louisville. When first admitted to the bar Underwood practiced for a short time in Minnesota. A relative in Birmingham wrote and pictured to him the possibilities of that growing section and young Underwood went to Alabama.

After working in Democratic circles in Alabama for several years he ran for Congress in 1894 and served continuously in the lower house until 1915, when he ran for Senator and was elected.

With the approach of the Democratic convention in 1912, which finally nominated Woodrow Wilson, came Oscar Underwood's best chance for the Presidential chair. The Republican party was divided. The Democrats had seldom been stronger. It was the unrelenting hostility of William Jennings Bryan, who disapproved Underwood's stand as a wet, which cast the Commoner's weight in the balance in favor of the New Jersey Governor. The South lost its first chance in more than fifty years to name one of her own as President, and Underwood himself declined the nomination for Vice President.

He harbored no resentment against Wilson, however, and early visited him at Seagirt, giving him the benefit of Washington experience and supporting him strenuously in the campaign. Twice more he received votes in Democratic conventions, the last time during the long, hot struggle between Smith and McAdoo in Madison Square Garden in 1924. It was then that Underwood's name became familiar to New Yorkers, dropped out in the booming talent of Governor Brandon of Alabama in the famous phrase that still echoes as the historical memory of that ill-starred gathering.

"Alabama casts twenty-four votes for Oscar W. Underwood," was the cry which rose 100 times, for the State delegation was faithful to its leader to the end.

Opposition to the Klan.

At the same time it was well known that Smith was Underwood's first choice, personal success aside, and equally certain that Governor Smith approved the Underwood candidacy next to his own. Underwood had spiked his own chances when his nominator came out unequivocally for naming the Klan in the party platform as "un-American." In the bitter argument which followed, Louisiana, pledged to the candidate of its neighbor State, held a caucus and renominated him. His "dark horse" opportunity shimmered and died.

Only twice in Underwood's long career, it is recounted, did the Alabama leader lose his suavity and poise. Both of these occasions were caused by William J. Bryan, and in both of them Underwood gave the Commoner the ire amid uproarious applause from the House.

The first evidence of real anger occurred in 1911 after Bryan had charged Underwood with protecting the big steel interests during the discussion of tariff reduction.

"I know this charge is false," the Senator said, "and you, Mr. Speaker, know it is false, and so do the Democrats of this House. I would be untrue to myself and my party if I did not stamp these utterances with the brand of falsehood."

Again Aroused by Bryan.

The second retort to Bryan occurred two years later. Again Underwood had been accused by Bryan of subservience to the interests, this time Wall Street and the "liquor ring." And again Underwood's words were strong and his meaning plain.

The rancors of political life in his adopted State of Alabama, principally because of dry and Klan influence, finally disgusted the Senator, it is reported. In 1926 he announced that he would not run for office again.

In the same year he bought the beautiful and historic estate of Woodlawn on the Potomac River in Virginia, where he died. The estate was once the property of George Washington, who gave it to his adopted daughter Nelle Custis as a wedding present. Situated three miles below Mount Vernon, it was called one of the finest Colonial mansions in the Old Dominion.

TRIBUTE FROM ROOSEVELT.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25. — Governor Roosevelt was deeply affected by news of the death of Senator Underwood, whom he considered one of his mentors in his early political life. His tribute to the Senator follows:

"I first met the late Senator Underwood during the 1912 campaign and, like so many others, was at once deeply impressed not only by his personal charm as a gentleman of the old school but also by his extraordinary grasp and knowledge of the great problems and questions of the day.

"For eight years in Washington I saw much of him when he was more than a leader of the majority party, because Senator Underwood always approached problems more from the point of view of the good of the country man from any partisan outlook. He was far more of a statesman than a politician and this was shown after his party went out of power by his willingness to work with the Republican Administration in every helpful way in solving national problems.

"His passing gives me the profoundest personal sorrow also, for I remember always the time and individual attention which he was always willing to give to a much younger man when I talked with him about perplexing questions. His death is not only a loss of a great Democrat, but also of a great American, who during a long and useful life as a public servant gave unstintingly for the good of his country.

"He will be mourned not only throughout the South but in the North and in the West with equally deep feeling."

SMITH VOICES SORROW.

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 25 (AP).—Commenting on the death of former Senator Underwood of Alabama, former Governor Smith of New York said here today:

"He was a forceful and constructive figure in the political history of the United States, a man of strong convictions and of determination to stand by them.

"I regard his passing as a loss to his nation and I personally grieve because of the loss of a devoted friend."

ALABAMA PEOPLE GRIEVE.

Ex-Senator's Death a Great Loss, Says Governor Graves.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 25 (AP).—A bereaved State today sought consolation for the passing of its most illustrious citizen, Oscar W. Underwood, whose death was announced today at his adopted home in Virginia.

Governor Graves at Montgomery, in an official statement declared "Mr. Underwood's death will be a great loss, not only to Alabama but to the Democratic Party and the nation."

Former Governor Brandon, who headed the Alabama delegation to the 1924 Democratic convention at Madison Square Garden in New York, and failed to name with his Alabama cards twenty-four votes for Underwood," was deeply grieved at the death of Underwood, his personal friend.

The body of Senator Underwood will arrive at 2:35 P. M. Sunday and will be taken immediately to his home. Tentative plans are for funeral services to be held at 11 A. M. Monday with burial in the family plot in Elmwood Cemetery.

Miss Mulrony Wins Sculpture Prize.

In the announcement printed in yesterday's Times of awards made at the thirty-second annual exhibition of the works of members of the Catherine Lorillard Wolfe Art Club at the galleries of the American Fine Arts Society, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street, the name of one of the winners was omitted. The prize for sculpture was awarded to Miss R. W. Mulrony.

MAYOR TOURS CITY ON TRAFFIC SURVEY

Inspects Points Mentioned in Engineers' Relief Program, but Keeps Them Secret.

TO TELL OF PLANS TUESDAY

Will Speak to 1,000 at Luncheon to Be Given by the Merchants' Association.

Armed with the preliminary report and recommendations submitted to him recently by Day & Zimmermann, traffic engineers, retained to make a general survey of conditions in New York City, Mayor Walker yesterday made an extensive tour of inspection of the points designated in the engineers' findings as desirable locations for traffic-relief projects. He was accompanied by a representative of the engineering firm, but kept the locations inspected secret.

The results of the inspection tour, together with the substance of the preliminary report and recommendations, will be revealed by Mayor Walker, it is understood, at the Merchants' Association luncheon in the Hotel Astor on Tuesday, at which he will be the principal speaker.

The preliminary report with its accompaying recommendations it was learned on good authority last night, is virtually a complete summary of the final report to be made by Day & Zimmermann next month. Except for an elaboration of details the preliminary findings are said to cover the entire field of the survey, including recommendations based upon several suggestions made by civic associations which have been cooperating in the effort to rationalize the city's methods of traffic relief.

Mayor Walker last word yesterday at City Hall that he was visiting points mentioned in the preliminary report but did not care to reveal his itinerary because he "wished to observe, unobserved," the conditions referred to in the report.

His address on traffic relief on Tuesday will be broadcast over stations WEAF and WNYC and will be heard by a luncheon audience of more than 1,000 persons interested in traffic relief from the point of view of retail and wholesale business, city planning and general traffic control.

Greek Cruiser Sunk in Collision.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Jan. 25.—The Admiralty reports that the Greek auxiliary cruiser Penelope was sunk in a fog by the English steamship Heathside twenty miles south of Beringas. The Penelope sank within thirty minutes, the English vessel being only slightly damaged. Two Greek sailors were killed by the collision and two badly injured. The remainder of the crew of the cruiser were rescued by the English vessel.

REPORTER ASSAULTED AS PAPER FIGHTS CRIME

Troopers Guard Offices of The Mamaroneck Times After Employe Is Beaten.

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Jan. 25.—State troopers were ordered today to guard the offices and plant of The Mamaroneck Times after the paper's police reporter, Lawrence Campbell, was badly beaten as he left the office last night. The assault against Campbell is said to be the result of a campaign the paper has been waging against vice, speakeasies and lawlessness in general.

Campbell was assaulted by two men as he was returning home from the office after having made his rounds of the police stations. Two men were arrested and one, Henry Martin Engstrom of 14 Plain Avenue, New Rochelle, was held by County Judge Frederick P. Close at White Plains on a charge of second degree assault.

For several months the Mamaroneck paper has been conducting a campaign against alleged lawbreakers, many of the stories having been written by Campbell, and because of this it is thought he was made the victim of the attack.

Campbell identified Engstrom as one of his assailants and said he had been knocked down and kicked in the face.

George B. Forbes, publisher of The Mamaroneck Times, said that threats had been made against him and employes of the paper for several months.

New Home Chlorine Treatment a Revelation in its Simplicity

Out of the Chemical Warfare Service of the U. S. Army several years ago, there came by a strange twist of fate, one of the great peace-time benefits for mankind. This was the discovery of the value of chlorine gas in the prevention and treatment of influenza, colds and other respiratory diseases.

Like many other important discoveries, this one carried the romance of the unexpected. It was practically accidental, starting with the observation that workers in chlorine plants seemed immune from influenza. The great epidemic passed them by.

◆ ◆ ◆

Physicians naturally welcomed the new weapon chlorine in their fight against influenza and grippe. Special gas chambers were prepared. Even home apparatus was devised. But it was complicated. And the whole treatment, in order to be effective, consumed a considerable amount of time.

◆ ◆ ◆

Now the stage is all set for the next step—chlorine gas inhalations at home, without apparatus. A bottle of Zonite, a flat non-metallic dish, and a stove or radiator—that is all. Very simple. And Zonite is available anywhere in the United States.

◆ ◆ ◆

When you heat Zonite over a stove as directed, the chlorine gas released is genuine free, active, nascent chlorine. It is more active in its germicidal qualities than the ordinary molecular chlorine used in the chamber-treatments.

◆ ◆ ◆

Pour into the dish enough Zonite barely to cover the bottom; add a pinch of baking powder to the Zonite. Put it on the radiator. Start inhaling the chlorine vapor as soon as it rises.

◆ ◆ ◆

◆ ◆ ◆

Some people dislike the taste and odor of chlorine, but they will find this nascent chlorine different. No discomfort at all. Very satisfying.

◆ ◆ ◆

Inhale at frequent intervals for a stretch of fifteen minutes. Do it twice a day. For convenience the dish may be lifted from the radiator and the chlorine inhaled while sitting comfortably in a chair.

PARK CASINO LEASE UPHELD ON APPEAL

But Herrick Announces That Tenant Will Take Over the Property on Feb. 1.

As the result of a decision yesterday by the Appellate Division in favor of the City of New York, Park Commissioner Herrick and the Dieppe Corporation in the suit to restrain the lease of the Central Park Casino to the Dieppe Corporation on Feb. 1, by which the higher court affirms the denial of an injunction applied for in behalf of C. F. Zittel, the present lessee, Mr. Herrick announced that the Casino would be taken over by the Dieppe Company on that date.

Alexander Rose, attorney for Samuel Krengal, who brought the injunction suit as a taxpayer, alleging waste of city property and the abuse of power by the Park Commissioner in refusing to renew Zittel's lease and making a new agreement with the Dieppe Company, said that the suit would be continued and that, although there is no appeal from yesterday's Appellate Division ruling, the case would be appealed after a trial if the decision is against the plaintiff.

He also said an appeal would be taken if a motion of the defendants to dismiss the complaint is granted on Monday, and in that case an attempt would be made to take the question of the Park Commissioner's authority to the Court of Appeals.

Mr. Rose said that an important question of fact is raised in the case as to whether $100,000 worth of improvements and alterations which the Dieppe Company has agreed to make in the Casino building as a consideration in getting the lease at $8,500 a year, amount to a structural change which cannot be made under the law without the authority of the Board of Aldermen.

The Appellate Division wrote no opinion in affirming the decision of Supreme Court Justice Ingraham denying an injunction pending the trial of the suit, although Charles L. Hoffman and attorneys associated with him as counsel for the Dieppe Corporation urged the Appellate Division to "definitely dispose" of the questions raised in the case by deciding in an opinion whether the plaintiff has a cause of action, whether the Park Commissioner had agreed to renew Zittel's lease expiring on Jan. 31, and whether the proposed agreement to lease the Casino to the Dieppe Corporation is valid.

Mr. Hoffman said it was "vital" that the Dieppe Company should know definitely its legal status before proceeding upon the expenditure of the $100,000 in carrying out the plans of Joseph Urban for the alterations in the Casino, in order that the proposed leases "may not be held up by uncertainty as to litigation." He said the work should be started at once in order that the new tenant may take advantage of the business during the coming Summer. He contended before the court that the sole question involved was the power of the Park Commissioner to make the new lease and that Justice Ingraham's decision upholding this power is proper. He said that the proposed alterations have been approved by Charles Schmieder, Park Department architect, and Julius V. Burgevin, park landscape architect.

The decision of Justice Ingraham held that no evidence had been furnished as to the alleged "lack of good faith" on the part of Commissioner Herrick in the transaction over the Casino lease and that no illegality or waste of public funds had been proved. Under the new lease the city will receive $8,500 a year rent instead of $5,000 now paid by Zittel, which the latter agreed to raise to $8,500 if the present lease to him should be renewed.

The defendants contended that the Dieppe Company is capable of carrying out its financial arrangements with the city, although Sidney Solomon, who organized it and who was alleged by the plaintiff to have obtained consideration from the Park Commissioner as a "friend of Mayor Walker," has been in bankruptcy due to operations in Wall Street. It was pointed out that A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr. is vice president of the Dieppe Company and Alfred M. Bedell is secretary, and that there is no doubt as to the financial ability of both these men.

One of the grounds asserted by the plaintiff for an injunction was that the Dieppe Corporation plans to turn a public restaurant into a private club, and that cabaret performances, which are now barred, will be permitted.

GEM LOOT PUT AT $50,000.

Expert Estimates Mauboussin Loss in Report to Whalen.

The jewelry carried away from Mauboussin's, 330 Park Avenue, Jan. 17 last by four bandits, who left six persons bound and gagged in a rear room, was worth at least $50,000 to $60,000, Matthew Straton, jewel expert and appraiser for the Police Department, reported yesterday to Commissioner Whalen.

Mr. Straton said it was impossible to estimate the value accurately, since the weights of all of the stones and precious metals were not given in the list of 200 stolen articles furnished to the police by E. F. Bandler, manager of the shop. The $50,000 to $60,000 estimate was most conservative, Mr. Straton declared.

PUBLIC IS CALLED BEST FILM CENSOR

Dr. F. C. Howe Tells the Board of Review That Freedom Will Bring a Higher Art.

ATTACKS REFORM GROUPS

Activities Are Based on Hatred of Pleasure, He Says—Do Forsee Great Future in Sound Films.

The public, not official censors or reform groups, must be the film censor, delegates to the motion picture convention of the National Board of Review at the Waldorf were told yesterday by speakers who attacked all censorship as based on hatred of pleasure and happiness and linked it to religious intolerance in one form or another. Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, social and political worker; Dr. Frederick C. Howe, first chairman of the National Board of Review; the Rev. Cranston Brenton, rector at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine; Dr. Albert T. Shields, Professor of Education at Columbia University, and Colonel Clarence R. Perry of the Russell Sage Foundation, were among those who attacked censorship.

Dr. Lee deForest, inventor of phonofilm, at another session of the conference, painted a glowing future for the talking moving picture and predicted that this new art would become our "unofficial ambassadors" by allowing heads of governments to talk to each other "personally" though thousands of miles away. As an illustration, he explained that a talking moving picture of President Coolidge explaining the American point of view regarding international repetations might have a greater effect than sending J. P. Morgan and Owen D. Young abroad to discuss the subject. Dr. deForest also said that sound pictures would play a major role, far more important than newspapers or the radio, in promoting world peace, and in creating a universal language.

Calls Public Best Censor.

Discussing censorship, Dr. Howe, who was former Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, said the National Board of Review was constantly pressed to fight the efforts of certain moralistic and evangelical groups that do not like "anything related to the theatre and disliked anything that gave pleasure to any one other than themselves." The conflict that exists today, he said, is between the right to be happy in one's own way and that prescribed by law.

"The National Board of Review believes that the public is the best censor and that the public alone can and will command production of good pictures," he added. "The board believes that the instinct of people for that which is right is stronger than the instinct for evil things and that through freedom a far higher form of art can be produced than by censorship through a self-appointed few who at heart hate that which they are censoring."

Dr. Shields asserted that the solution to the problem of censorship lay in intelligent selection of films. In striking at official censorship in any form, he asserted that motion pictures like clothing cannot be created in terms of suitability for every one and that much unfair criticism had been directed at pictures as being made only for immature minds.

Finds Gain in "Morals."

After supporting the views of the other speakers opposing censorship, Mrs. Moskowitz declared that the big motion picture theatre of today was solving the question of morals "with which the motion picture industry has been confronted since the day of the small neighborhood theatre." Well lighted theatres, she explained, did away with many of the dangers of immoral conduct.

"The admission of children into theatres is another moral problem facing the motion picture industry," she asserted. "We still find children outside theatres begging and stealing pennies to pay admission or asking strangers to act as chaperons past the doorkeepers. Once inside, these small children are left to their own devices, facing great personal hazards in the event of fire or other panic."

The need of the American film industry is more variety of plot, J. D. Williams, executive vice president of World Wide Pictures, told the conference. This variety, he said, can best be obtained through competition and for that reason there should be no ban on foreign productions. Mr. Williams explained that at present eight major studios produce pictures for 20,000 theatres and 110,000,000 people in the United States and the fact that the industry is centred in Hollywood leads to an "inbreeding of ideas, tastes and prejudices and results in a sameness and monotony which could best be done away with through the importation of foreign films and the setting up of keener competition."

Following the afternoon session, the delegates went to Roosevelt House, the restored birthplace of the former President where a motion picture, "The River of Doubt" assembled from President Roosevelt's political career and various expeditions was shown. Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of President Roosevelt, addressed them. Last night, the 200 delegates visited the Warner Brothers Vitaphone Studio.

Youth Held Without Bail In Slaying

Francis Breheney, 21 years old, of 37 West 116th Street, was held without bail for the grand jury yesterday by Magistrate Corrigan in Homicide Court, charged with shooting and killing Leo Moore, 18 years old, of 2,217 Eighth Avenue, in a washroom at 100 Gold Street, Jan. 9.

ARGUE CENSOR RIGHT ON TALKING MOVIES

Pathe Exchange and State Clash on Power to Review Sound in Injunction Proceeding.

VOICE HELD PART OF FILM

Inseparable, Officials Say, While Defendant Holds Such a View Is Illegally Read Into the Law.

Supreme Court Justice Glennon heard argument yesterday and reserved decision on the application of the Pathe Exchange to continue an injunction restraining James Wingate, director of the Motion Picture Division of the State Department of Education, and State Film Censor, from rescinding licenses issued for silent films in cases in which sound is introduced later. The case actually hinges on the right of Mr. Wingate to censor talking films.

The argument before Justice Glennon not only covered the right of the film censor to issue qualified licenses instead of giving a full permit to all films that comply with the law barring pictures that are obscene, immoral or incite to crime, but the contention by the State Education Department that any legal action against the film censorship authorities should be brought in Albany County in which the Department of Education has its headquarters. The attorneys will submit affidavits and briefs in the case before Feb. 4, after which the court will announce a decision, either sending the case to Albany County or ruling on the petition on its merits.

The action was brought on the eve of the releasing by Pathe of the film, "Sal of Singapore" early in January, which was licensed last Summer as a silent picture. Later dialogue and music were introduced and the plaintiff applied for additional licenses. Director Wingate issued the license, but a stamp across the face of the papers said that they would be invalid if the film or any part of it were used "in conjunction with mechanical devices for the reproduction of sound or by the use of persons for the utterance of language."

Frederic R. Coudert, counsel for Pathe, argued yesterday that the duty of the film censor is clear under the law, and that in attempting to censor sound he was reading authority into the law which is not there. Mr. Coudert argued that the main duties in reviewing films were performed in the film office of the State Education Department in West Forty-second Street, and that New York is the proper county in which to bring the action.

Ernest E. Cole, Deputy Commissioner of Education and law officer of the department, submitted affidavits by Commissioner Frank P. Graves and Director Wingate in opposition to the injunction application.

Mr. Graves and Mr. Wingate said that when the plaintiff applied for additional licenses the word "sound" was written on the application, which meant to them that the film was to be synchronized with music. They said that if dialogue or spoken parts were used also the license would be void.

"The use of mechanical devices for the reproduction of dialogue or spoken parts necessitates shadows or alterations which render the license issued for the use of a silent film immediately void," they argued. "The facial expression and words emanating from the lips of the actors as portrayed on the screen, are given out through a mechanical device and constitute an inseparable act, and consequently when such sounds are produced in dialogue or spoken parts they become in effect a part of the film itself and must necessarily be deemed to be covered by the statute which requires review by the director of the motion picture division."

The Pathé Exchange made public yesterday statements by well-known editors declaring that talking pictures should be removed from film censorship as much as talking actors are outside that jurisdiction. Among the objectors to censorship of sound films were H. L. Mencken, Arthur Brisbane, Roy W. Howard, Harry Chandler, Joseph Pulitzer, Frank P. Glass and Carl B. Adams.

SEEKS BIG REICH COALITION.

Chancellor Mueller Starts Conferences With Party Leaders.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—In order to have a solid government behind him when the reparations question comes before the Reichstag, Chancellor Mueller began active negotiations today to form a large coalition enjoying the full support of the parties from which the Ministers are selected.

Though no party will be represented in such a coalition which is not already in the present loosely formed Cabinet, the Chancellor wants party guarantees that the proposals of the government will command a majority in the Reichstag.

The Democratic leaders were called to the Chancellery today and further conferences will be held soon with the Catholic Centrist party, the Socialists and the People's party. The Centrists want stronger representation than they now have and their demand may cause difficulties.

As soon as a big coalition is assured Dr. Stresemann, the Foreign Minister, will leave Berlin for a vacation, returning only in time to attend the next session of the Council of the League of Nations.

One of the delays in forming the coalition has been caused by the failure of the Centrists to agree on a leader for their party caucus. This difficulty was settled tonight when Adam Stegerwald, former Prussian Premier, was elected.

"Appraisal of Antiques"

"MANY owners of collections of works of art and antiques greatly under-value their worth," said an authority on appraisals recently. It may be only a window shade or some other small object that passes unnoticed, yet possesses rare value. In event of loss or damage, or when placing insurance, much confusion can result from the uncertainty of value.

An interesting article on the subject of appraisal of antiques appears on the Antiques and Decorations Pages of The Sun today.

If you are interested in home decorations you will want to read this article.

HUGHES WARNS BAR TO 'CLEAN HOUSE'

this sort of dealing with plain abuses. We desire to improve the tone of the bar, to stiffen its self-respect, to secure a wider appreciation of professional standards. These are not the arbitrary standards of a caste. To commercialize the bar, to introduce the methods of solicitation, of mass production, of trading on the opportunities for litigation, is inevitably to encourage frauds and perjuries and to destroy the sense of the personal, fiduciary relation which protects both the client and the court. To preserve the sentiment which subordinates gain to the conception of professional duty, which makes reputation for soundness of advice, for integrity in counsel and performance, for loyalty to the client, to the court and to the law, the most highly prized reward in a career of constant toil amid temptations and incitements to laxity—this is the great object which is fostered in our associations and gives zest to our cooperative endeavors.

Sees Need for "Skillful Surgery."

"With this zeal for the standards of the profession, we are equipped to aid in the never ending task of improving the methods of administration of justice—in the constant pruning to get rid of what is archaic, superfluous and injurious. We need daring and skillful surgery, as well as medicine, and it is a wise conservatism that knows how to employ both.

"The difficulties of cooperation are no less manifest than its needs. The very size of the bar, with its many thousands of members in this great metropolis, is baffling. We have reason to fear that many are coming to the bar who are unfitted to appreciate the requirements of professional duty. We have not only the problems of technical legal education, the special equipment for practice, but the greater difficulties with respect to general culture and ethical training. But this is by no means the worst phase. The example of lawyers who succeed, either despite or by the help of their misdeeds, causes the diseases of the administration of justice to spread like an epidemic. Well-meaning young practitioners are corrupted by their elders who thrive on dishonorable and unprofessional practices.

"Our trouble is not simply in keeping the pestilence out of the temple, but in destroying it inside. How are we to do this, with these vast thousands of practitioners in a community where disregard of law is flaunted on every side? I believe that never at any place or never at any time has it been more difficult to maintain the standards of justice than here and now. We are grateful for the contagion of health, that the leaven of wholesome professional opinion is at work, but we must appraise the task.

"Another difficulty is in the preoccupations of the better men at the bar. In this community, when a man is found who is well trained, dependable, faithful and wise, as a good lawyer should be, the demands upon him mount to incredible burdens. The better youngsters in our law offices become crowded with work. The burden bearers of middle life are bowed down by the multiplying cares of confiding clients. It is a sad spectacle in one sense to see gifted men so absorbed, but it is also inspiring. Despite the large pecuniary returns of success, what a vast amount of unrequited labor is performed by these men at our bar. Once the cause is espoused by a lawyer worthy of the name no effort is too great. The demands of reputation, the sense of obligation, of honor, gives the urge. Yet these overworked men are the leaven of the bar. It is to them we must look for every cooperative effort that is worthwhile. It is the preoccupation of lawyers rather than their indifference that constitutes our most formidable obstacle.

"Another difficulty which we encounter when we come to deal with certain questions is diversity of interests. This is conspicuous in the selection of judges. Lawyers have not one voice. They are divided by their political affiliations. They wish good men on the bench, but they are responsive to the appeals of party associates and political expediency. Then, when we come to broad questions of changes in the law and procedure we meet different opinions conscientiously maintained. Lawyers are experts in criticism. They are the natural antagonists of paper reforms. They are conservatives by training and they are always ready to turn their batteries of reason on what they think are ill conceived proposals of change.

"There is nothing extraordinary about this. If theologians cannot agree, if scientists dispute, why should lawyers be expected to have a common philosophy or to hold the same views as to reforms in law and administration? When we deal with corruption with crying abuses, we may expect unanimity at least in condemning an offense, if not a particular individual. But when measures of reorganization, of reconstruction of the facilities of justice are proposed, differences in conviction, in political philosophy, in predilections, at once appear and the trained combativeness of lawyers has a fair field.

"It is sometimes said that lawyers largely compose our legislatures and therefore they could reform the law and procedure if they would. But lawyers in respect to legislation have not the unity of a single interest. The difficulty increases with the importance of the subject. It is least in minor matters of procedural reform. It is greatest when we consider constitutional changes which would alter radically the judicial organization or dispense with historic arrangements which in the past have been deemed so essential to liberty that they have been protected by the great guarantees of the fundamental law.

"In the face of these obstacles, what should be the methods of our cooperation? At once we observe the importance of maintaining our existing associations which have their roots in local sentiment and to some of which are attached the most precious traditions of service and fraternity. We need every bit of help that we can get from these affinities. We cannot accomplish what we seek without the delightful influences of intimate personal fellowship.

"We need the intensive work of small groups. We cannot have the necessary discussion and planning in great meetings, which encourage the expression of extemporized opinions and foster debate rather than a common effort to find solutions. The committees of our associations furnish this opportunity. I have spoken of the preoccupations of the busy men of the bar. Let me now pay the tribute of affection and admiration to the hundreds of these men who add to their enormous burden of professional work the labors of committees which deal expertly with a great variety of subjects, sifting proposals, earnestly striving to find the better ways of administration in their special lines. In the Associations of the Bar of the City of New York we have nearly 600 at work in these committees.

"Of course some of these committees demand only occasional endeavors. They are established to meet emergencies. With others there is the pressure of unceasing demands, as, for example, in the grievance committee, in the committee on the amendment of the law, in committees dealing with particular courts and in special committees addressing themselves to various urgent problems. This intensive work, culminating in well-considered reports, prepares the way for informing the bar, mobilizing its sentiment and neutralizing such opposition as might otherwise come from mere ignorance or prejudice.

"This is the work that can be done in our separate organizations. But when abuses demand the emphatic protest and remedial action of the bar as a whole or opinions on proposed improvements have crystallized so that we can expect them to be promoted by the profession, we need the cooperation of all our associations to speak with the authority of the entire bar. How shall we achieve this?

"We had not long ago a meeting of the presidents of our bar associations in this city at which the subject was discussed. We decided to recommend the organization of a joint committee, a permanent committee of representatives of the associations, to which could be at once referred any matter in which cooperation was desired. Not that such a committee would usurp authority and assume to act for their associations without their consent, but that it would provide a ready instrumentality for contact, for exchanges of views and for making speedy arrangements in order to secure the necessary authority for united action. Such a loose, flexible agency is much better than an attempt at this time to obtain a formal, rigid organization. It will utilize, without offense or injury to any, the means of cooperation at our command. It will help all and affront none. This marks a new development of the greatest promise.

"We need more than the cooperation of lawyers. We must have the cooperation of the bench. The judges should know as well as the lawyers, if not better, not only where the need of improvement lies, but the best means of securing it. Sometimes a very small change will produce a great result. Observe, for example, what has been accomplished through the work of the Special Calendar Committee under the auspices of the Appellate Division in this district and with the aid of that great leader in our cooperative efforts and in improving the administration of justice, the presiding justice of this department, Victor J. Dowling. In that committee, judges and lawyers have focused their wisdom and great experience on the evils of congested calendars. I think that this has been the most useful effort of our day. Then, we have had the cooperation both in the first and second departments of the bench and the bar in the ambulance chasing injuiries and in the highly important service of Justices Wasservogel and Faber in conducting these inquiries. There is no important reform that cannot be had in the administration of justice if the bench and the bar cooparate to obtain it.

Asks Cooperation of Public.

"We also need the cooperation of the community. I shall not waste time on the repute of lawyers. They never have been popular. But while they are, in general, the object of much public objurgation, they are in particular the trusted advisers, the counselors and fiduciaries of the community upon whose expert judgment and trained talent everyone in trouble calls. Let us not forget that law itself is the vital breath of democracy. Despotism exercises an uncontrolled will. In democracy the power of government is subdued to the principles which have general acceptance, and these principles are embodied in what we call the law. It is the only escape from an unbridled official discretion which is the essence of tyranny. Lawyers should be the expert instruments of democracy and the more complicated its mechanisms, the more elaborate the laws which are the product of democracy's legislative workshops, the more necessary is the service of those who devote their lives to the study and interpretation of the laws.

"But no one should forget that while improvement in the administration of justice is the special responsibility of the bar, because of its knowledge and experience, that improvement is sought for the benefit of the community and not for the benefit of lawyers. Highminded lawyers indeed are disheartened and disgusted by favoritisms, delays and abuses. They feel humiliated by perversions of justice. But lawyers are representatives. The real sufferers from defective administration are the clients—the community itself. Lawyers have everything to give to the community and nothing to fear from its action. If the community, apart from the lawyers, could intelligently reform the administration of justice, the lawyers would have no reason to complain. Unintelligent efforts at improvement would only make matters worse and, even then, the lawyers would suffer the least. They would have even more work to do in the endeavoring to disentangle justice.

"The true point of view is that we are all bound together in society. One member, a trade of profession, cannot say to another member, 'I have no need of thee.' Lawyers should recognize their responsibility not because of any selfish interest at stake, but because they have the knowledge, the experience and the skill which are needed. They have the obligations of their equipment. They should realize that their highest privilege is that of the trained servants of democracy. But let all join in the work. If it is a matter of purging the profession of unworthy members; let the bar attend to it. If it is a question of improving the methods of administration, let the bar aspire not to impose its will on the community, but to be the guide, philosopher and friend of all the people in a common effort for the common good.

"We may congratulate ourselves on what has been achieved. Even with respect to our calendars, there has been a notable improvement. The Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Appeals of this State, the Appellate Divisions, the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in this circuit, are up to their work and deal with cases practically as soon as they are ready for submission. The ambulance chasing investigation and the recommendations of the special calendar committee have resulted in reducing our trial calendars in considerable measure.

"The great work of legal aid to those who have meritorious cases or defenses but are without means, is better organized and supported through our Legal Aid Society than ever before. How important that work is—the helping hand of the bar to our neighbor who needs expert assistance.

Too Many "Archaic Survivals."

"But this is only a beginning. Most serious delays exist in our courts of first instance, and in our lower courts. The need of improvements is obvious. There are other systems of solicitation besides ambulance chasing which should be broken up. Our procedure, especially criminal procedure, has too many archaic survivals. In several instances, what was once a guaranty of liberty is now a fetter of justice. The system of jury trials for many cases is dilatory and expensive, and in our great cities mocks the tradition that supports it.

"We should be active and persistent, but not impatient. It is not to be assumed that all needed reforms can be accomplished in our day. Even if we could achieve what we desire, the old conflict of good and evil would remain, and perhaps our very achievements would produce new difficulties. I am often reminded of the observation of Santayana that in any specific reform we may succeed but half the time, and in that measure of success we may save the friends of reason and have evils to keep the edge of virture clean." But we have not to do with such later evils. The absolute within us demands that we deal with these evils now existing and within our ken. Who is my neighbor? The lawyer need not pause for a reply. His first charge, his lasting obligation, concerns the administration of justice, and his keenest satisfaction should be found in the fellowship and cooperation of those devoted to the task of safeguarding and improving it."

Mr. Guthrie, responding to the toast, "The Guest of Honor," recited the steps in the career of Mr. Hughes, from Governor of the State to the Supreme Court, Secretary of State, twice Plenipotentiary Commissioner of the United States and, his final achievement, membership on the World Court.

The "beauty diet" that made her ugly

SHE was one girl who was going to stay attractive—so she watched her "beauty diet." She counted calories and checked the scales. She shunned this and sought for that and compared each day's complexion with her mirror. But, all the time, she was missing something every diet should have. In the dishes she so carefully selected there was scarcely any roughage. Constipation gained a foothold. Poisons piled up.

Soon, her charm, her strength—the very youth she thought to protect—were paying the price!

Thousands of women and men are paying the price of soft, fiberless meals. Many are dieting—some for overweight, some for underweight, others for better complexions. And yet they defeat their own purposes because constipation continues to poison the system. No other evil is more widespread. It may start with aching heads and blemished cheeks. It often ends with serious trouble and disease.

And more's the pity when it can be so easily prevented by means of a simple cereal. So quickly relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring sure relief . . . safe prevention!

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective

It is roughage that prevents constipation. ALL-BRAN is practically all roughage, or bulk. This bulk carries moisture throughout the digestive tract. Gently distending the intestines, exercising them, sweeping out poisonous wastes. Part-bran products seldom contain enough bulk to be completely effective. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. It is 100% bran. It accomplishes results part-bran products cannot hope to equal.

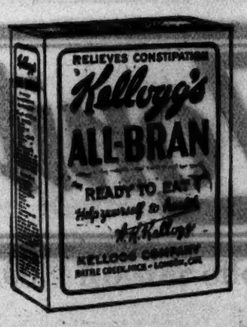
No need for dangerous drugs

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is infinitely better than habit-forming pills and laxatives, whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective—and which sometimes injure the system. A naturally healthful cereal! To enjoy with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Soaking a few moments in the milk brings out its full nut-like flavor.

Use it in cooking too. Recipes on package. Mix it with hot cereals. Sprinkle it into soups. Just eat two tablespoonfuls in some form daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Its regular use will protect your family from the dangers of constipation.

But don't take chances with part-bran substitutes. At best, they can be but partially effective. Insist on genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants, cafeterias. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN



Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

HOOVER EXTENDS HIS FISHING TRIP

CABINET PARLEYS PLANNED

President-Elect Next Week Will Also See Southerners, Including Col. Mann, on Patronage.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25.—Herbert Hoover, isolated in the waters some thirty miles south of here, has prolonged his stay on the fishing grounds and is not expected to return to Miami Beach until Sunday morning. Whether the President-elect is having any luck with the big fish he is seeking is not known, as the only word that has come from the boats in his party was the brief announcement as to the probable time of his return.

On Monday morning he will resume his conferences with Republican leaders, and a number have been asked to call next week at his vacation home on the J. C. Penney estate here. Assistant Attorney General William J. Donovan, who is a leading prospect for Attorney General in the Hoover Cabinet, will be among those to see Mr. Hoover soon.

Colonel Horace A. Mann of Tennessee, who had a prominent rôle in lining up Southern delegates to the Kansas City convention for Mr. Hoover and was active in the direction of the Presidential campaign in the South, is here on vacation and expects to confer with Mr. Hoover Monday.

Has "Program" for the South.

An account printed in local papers is to the effect that Colonel Mann is working out a "patronage program" for the Southern States, in particular the so-called Hoover quartet of Virginia, North Carolina, Florida and Texas, which he will discuss with the President-elect. Colonel Mann does not deny that he is keenly interested in the appointments Mr. Hoover will make in the South.

At the hotel where Colonel Mann is stopping he is known as the "busiest man in Florida," holding many conferences. The identity of the persons with whom he is conferring was not disclosed, but Dr. Work, chairman of the National Committee, who came with the Hoover party, was not, it was said, one of them.

Colonel Mann would not see newspaper men. He sent word that he was not to be disturbed while his conferences were in progress. It was indicated that he may have something to say next week after he sees Mr. Hoover; and there will be no surprise if Mr. Hoover also has something to say about the Southern patronage question, which comes to the fore whenever Colonel Mann's name is mentioned.

That the ascribing of too great importance to Colonel Mann's part in affairs, however, does not "sit well" in some quarters is known. Other men who may be called in when political appointments in the South are made include C. Bascom Slemp, National Committeeman from Virginia; Claudius H. Huston of Nashville, Glenn Skipper, Florida representative on the committee, and R. B. Creager, Texas member of it, all of whom were strong preconvention supporters of Mr. Hoover.

Secretaryship of State Open.

As Mr. Hoover turns to political work again it is probable that several Cabinet positions will be definitely settled before the end of next week.

The main selection still entirely a matter of conjecture is of a man for Secretary of State. No one has been designated, and even Mr. Hoover, so far as he has indicated, does not know whom he will appoint. With Dwight W. Morrow definitely off the list, the talk is again swinging to Henry P. Fletcher, Ambassador to Italy. Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, who is here, also has been suggested. The portfolio is distinctly in the "dress class, and one guess is as good as another."

It was stated that Mr. Hoover still has the proposition open as to whether he will go to Cuba and possibly also to Porto Rico before he returns to Washington. Besides political conferences, the President-elect is expected to begin next week the writing of his inaugural address.

HOOVER GUARD AS USUAL.

Secret Service Chief Denies Special Steps—Miami Police Freed Trio.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—Chief Moran of the Secret Service said tonight that he had not augmented the corps of Secret Service men assigned to President-elect Hoover at Miami, Fla.

He added that there have been no arrests of suspicious people made in Miami by Secret Service agents as a precaution for the safety of the President-elect. Several weeks ago, he said, he had been advised that the Miami police had taken into custody three men as a routine precaution, the trio later being released.

Mr. Moran said he had orders to guard the President-elect with the same care as the President.

Mr. Moran made the announcement about no increase of the Secret Service force when advised of press reports that augmented precautions in protecting the President-elect had been taken because of the arrest of the three men by the Miami police. He said that he had received no request for an increase of the present Secret Service detail with Mr. Hoover.

GEN. SHERRILL URGED AS ENVOY TO FRANCE

Former Minister to Argentina Sought Post in 1921—Warburg's Friends Also Active.

Friends of General Charles H. Sherrill have suggested his appointment by President-elect Hoover as Ambassador to France, it was learned yesterday. General Sherrill, who was formerly Minister to Argentina, was an aspirant for the post of Ambassador to France in 1921, when Myron T. Herrick was named by President Harding.

Invitations have been issued by General Sherrill for a private dinner to Ogden L. Mills, Under Secretary of the Treasury, on Feb. 9. It is expected that his friends will move more actively to recommend his appointment after this dinner.

General Sherrill, a lawyer, is a graduate of Yale University and Yale Law School. He was the intercollegiate and American 110-yard sprint champion and was the originator of the first international interuniversity athletic matches, which began with the Yale-Oxford contest in 1894. He was Adjutant General of the New York State National Guard during the World War.

Friends of Felix M. Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. hope he will be appointed to a diplomatic post. Mr. Warburg was an early supporter of President-elect Hoover for the Republican nomination for President and supported him during the campaign. While Mr. Warburg is not an aspirant for any appointment, his friends have suggested that he might accept the post of Minister to the Netherlands or Ambassador to Turkey.

Signs Mrs. Marshall Pension Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—President Coolidge today signed a bill granting an annual pension of $3,000 to Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, widow of the vice president.

SMITH SEES CIRCUS FIRST IN FLORIDA

He Visits Animals in Winter Quarters Soon After He Reaches Sarasota.

GUEST OF RINGLING THERE

At Luncheon With State Leaders, Former Governor Says He Will Avoid Functions for Rest.

Special to The New York Times.

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 25.—A visit to the animals at the winter quarters of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus here was one of the first things occupying the attention of former Governor Smith on his arrival in Florida today with William F. Kenny and John J. Raskob. That the former Governor and his associates enjoyed the visit was obvious from their long stay at the circus grounds and the expression of amusement and delight on their faces.

The former Governor first was called upon to give loaves of bread to the elephants, until John Ringling, the circus owner and his host, was constrained to call a halt on this, telling Mr. Smith he was spoiling the elephants by feeding them too much. Then the ex-Governor and Mr. Ringling posed for the Movietone, while countless other cameramen ground out news films.

At the barns of the circus, Mr. Smith showed great interest in the fine horses, and when twenty young women riders presented a special act for his approval and that of members of his party, his delight was high. Stepping over to the young women, he insisted upon shaking hands with them. The zebra and the jumping horses and "leaping llama" were put through their paces for the guests.

At the end of the visit former Governor Smith turned to Mr. Ringling and said:

"Mr. Ringling, you have proven yourself a public benefactor of the highest possible type. No man ever did more for humanity than have you in providing this clean, wholesome amusement for young and old of this country. I am sincere in saying that this visit has been one of the most pleasant things that I have done in years, and I have enjoyed every moment of this time at the circus quarters."

Speaks Briefly at Luncheon.

Mr. Smith and his party were guests of Mr. Ringling at a luncheon at the Hotel Elverona. The former Governor spoke briefly to the gathering of State leaders who had been invited to meet him, telling of his pleasure in coming to Florida for the first time, except for having passed through the northern part en route to Biloxi, Miss., in November, and of his intention of remaining for six weeks to rest.

"During the campaign I shook hands at least twice with every man who voted for me," he said humorously, "and I am worn out. I shall be compelled to decline all invitations for public appearances, and much as I regret this, I am compelled for my own sake and that of my health, to refuse any invitations extended. I should like to accept all of them, but just cannot."

In the afternoon Mr. Smith and the other members of the party played a foursome on the Bobby Jones Municipal Golf Course. They spent the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ringling. Tomorrow will be a day of rest aboard the Ringling yacht, broken only by a visit of inspection to the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art.

Remus Compromises Federal Taxes.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 25 (AP).—George Remus, former master of the bootlegging craft, has compromised his tax assessments with the government and was discharged of all tax liens against him today, which totaled $374,175. The liens represented income taxes assessed against Remus for 1918, 1920 and 1921.

EQUITY IS ENJOINED OVER ITS LABOR RULE

Court Holds Ban on Actors' Getting Jobs Through Outside Agencies Is Coercive.

Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman granted a temporary injunction yesterday restraining the Actors' Equity Association from enforcing its rule prohibiting members from obtaining employment through personal representatives or agencies which have no permit from the association.

"It is apparent to me," said Judge Coleman in his opinion, "that the purpose the Actors' Equity Association has in mind is not merely to regulate the agreements between its members and their personal representatives but also coercion to compel personal representatives to agree to abandon contracts previously made, and the means of coercion is the threat to remove their future business. The organization of the theatrical business in New York is such that the Actors' Equity Association can carry out its purpose under such a rule."

Judge Coleman described the association as "a labor union which controls the supply of actors and actresses in the legitimate and musical comedy fields."

The injunction was granted upon the application of William Edelstein, who described himself as a personal representative of actors and said that his business included advising and assisting them in obtaining employment on a percentage basis.

The action was taken against Frank Gillmore, as executive secretary and treasurer of the association; John Emerson, as president, and Grant Mitchell, Grant Stewart and Paul Dulzell, as officers. These men are named individually as well in the action.

Edelstein set forth that as a result of the rule, which was adopted by the association on Sept. 21 last, personal representatives who do not hold permits from Equity can get no business from its members.

Alfred Harding, associate editor of Equity, the official organ of the association, said last night that officers of the organization had declined to comment until they received the text of the opinion. Mr. Harding said Edelstein had obtained a restraining order on Oct. 11 against the rule being enforced against him.

"Federal Judge Goddard vacated this order on Dec. 4," continued Mr. Harding, "as to the association itself, holding that the remedy lay in the State courts."

CHOOSE RIVER ROUTE FOR WASHINGTON ROAD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Decision to build the proposed 200-foot Washington Memorial Highway from the Virginia end of the new memorial bridge, facing the Lincoln Memorial, to Mount Vernon along the Potomac River, rather than over the hills, has been reached by the George Washington Bicentennial Memorial Commission at a meeting in the White House over which President Coolidge presided.

Plans and estimates of cost for both routes were presented to the commission by engineers of the Bureau of Roads.

There appeared to be general agreement that the lower route along the Potomac afforded more beauty than the higher hill route and is more in keeping with proposed developments of river drives around Washington. In addition the lower route, it was estimated, could be constructed for $700,000 less than the hill route, which would require expensive fills and condemnation of costly lands.

This saving will be employed in ornamentation of the roadway and its general beautification. Congress has authorized $4,300,000 for the highway and $2,500,000 has been appropriated. It is planned to open it on the 200th anniversary, in 1932, of the birth of Washington.

Henry Ford telegraphed that he was unable to attend the meeting. He has taken an active interest in the memorial highway.

Paintings attributed to well known artists brought the best prices of the second session held yesterday at the American Art Galleries of the Luis Ruiz Spanish collection, the total for which was $19,670 for 212 items. The grand total to date is $33,870. The final session will be this afternoon.

An example of the seventeenth century Flemish school of painting, "Judgment of Solomon," was sold for $725, the highest price of the day, to F. A. Leahy. Mrs. R. A. Wilson paid $700 for two paintings attributed to David Teniers the younger, "At the Well" and "Boors Carousing." A fifteenth century example of the Spanish school, "The Virgin Mother and the Apostles," was bought by Charles Crocker for $375.

A pair of sixteenth century Spanish pine wood doors studded with wrought iron bosses went to W. H. Wood for $700. Mrs. E. L. Carey paid $325 for a carved, polychromed and gilded sixteenth century var-gueño.

CYRIL VISITS TIRE FACTORY

The Prince was escorted on his inspection by President Harry T. Dunn and F. K. Espenhain, executive vice president, and several other company officials. He expressed wonderment at the perfect organization in American industrial operations.

Holbein Heads Aquarium Society.

The Aquarium Society held its annual business meeting at the Museum of Natural History last night. William Holbein was elected president, to succeed Richard Dorn, who had requested retirement following service in the office since 1908. Charles C. Whedon was elected vice president. E. De Lemos, treasurer, and P. Engel, secretary, were re-elected. F. F. Gagelman was elected librarian and custodian and an executive board consisting of J. Lingg, F. Gagelman and J. Fingerle was appointed.

COOLIDGE CHIDES COMMERCE BOARD

President Criticizes It as a Dilatory Body That Needs Speeding Up.

CITES REGENT EXAMPLES

Fixing Railroad Mail Rates Took Three Years, Then $45,000,000 Back Pay Was Awarded.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—President Coolidge thinks that the Interstate Commerce Commission is a dilatory body whose position would be strengthened if it acted with more expedition.

The move by the Interstate Commerce Commission for a new plan for unification of railroads and its delay in passing on the cost of carrying mails seem to have inspired the President's strictures on the commission.

The President, however, holds that it is wise for the commission to prepare plans for consolidation of the railroads. It is required to do this by law, although the commission every year since the law went into effect has asked for its repeal, according to the President. He holds that one of the difficulties with the commission is getting any action out of it.

In his opinion, the government had a sorry experiment in this regard when the commission undertook to fix the cost of transportation of mails. It took the commission three years to decide this question, and when it was determined it was to the effect that the government owed the railroads $45,000,000 for previous services. The validity of this decision the President refused to accept and he has refused to make payments.

He expects that the railroads will take their case to the Court of Claims to determine the question whether the commission has a right to declare for retroactive payments.

President Coolidge holds that if the commission had been more expeditious in its action this question of retroactive payments could not have arisen.

Regarding the valuation of railroads the President thinks the commission has done that task as well as possible. He regards it as impossible to assess the value of rails because, as soon as one phase is valued, another phase comes up, and the first one then must be revalued. The commission has expended $100,000,000 in that work and produced no definite results.

The President believes that should the commission answer the criticism that it was slow in making its decisions, the reply would be that it did not have enough force and sufficient money. That is the standard reply when any government bureau or official is criticised, in his opinion.

DISCUSS PARTY VIEW ON VEHICULAR TUBES

New York and Jersey Republican Leaders Fail to Agree on Bi-State Policies.

The position to be taken by the Republican legislative leaders of New York and New Jersey on matters affecting the two States, including the question of whether the construction of future vehicular tunnels should be entrusted to the Port of New York Authority or the New York-New Jersey Bridge and Tunnel Commission, was discussed last evening at a conference at the Metropolitan Club.

Those present were National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles, State Chairman H. Edmund Machold, Senate Leader John Knight and Speaker Joseph S. McGinnies of New York and State Leader Arthur Pierson and Senators Wallburn and Abell of New Jersey. No definite conclusion was reached and the matter will be discussed in further conferences.

The conferees also discussed the proposal of New York City to obtain part of its water supply from the upper Delaware River. The New Jersey Senators expressed the opinion that this would be "abstraction" rather than diversion of water, and said that it was a matter of concern to both New Jersey and Pennsylvania. They did not, however, express definite opposition to the project.

HEADS HEALTH INSTITUTION

Bradley Martin was elected president of the Tuberculosis Preventorium for Children at the annual meeting yesterday at 787 Fifth Avenue. Dr. Alfred F. Hess, chief visiting physician, reported that the open-air life at the institution at Farmingdale, N. J., is promoting the health of children who are threatened with tuberculosis. During the last year, he said, there have been gains in weight averaging six pounds for boys and girls within a period of three months.

Mr. Martin reported that in 1928 $10,250 had been received for endowment purposes, of which $5,000 was given by Ambrose Clark for the endowment of a bed.

Besides Mr. Martin the other officers elected were:

erning committee or in a special committee to be appointed by it.

Find Business Forces Expansion.

The special committee's report, upon which the foregoing resolution was based, recited that "the great increase in the business of the Exchange during 1928 clearly indicated that the number of members was insufficient to give the prompt and efficient service on the floor of the Exchange which has been given to the public in the past," adding that "a substantial increase in the number will have to be made in order to rectify this condition." "The addition of 275 members," the report said, "will not, in the opinion of the committee, be too great to meet the requirements of the present volume of business.

"While the floor of the Exchange is crowded and telephone facilities are barely sufficient, certain changes which the committee of arrangements now has under consideration will permit a considerable number of additional members to use the floor without undue inconvenience, and to have adequate telephone facilities." The most important of these proposed changes, it was learned, calls for the installation of a new type of trading post, U shaped and enclosed, which will have accommodations for clerks who may be permitted to assist specialists. The installation of these new posts, it is understood, will begin shortly. They will be different from any with which the Exchange has experimented in the past. They will occupy more space than the present posts and probably fewer will be used.

The Exchange has taken no action on the suggestion that clerks be allowed to go on the floor to assist specialists, but it is expected that such authority will be granted shortly. The New York Curb Exchange now allows specialists to employ clerks on the floor.

1,375 Seats Believed Limit Now.

The special committee that worked out the plan for increasing membership apparently recognized the possibility that another increase might become necessary, but indicated in its report that the number of seats can-not well be increased beyond 1,375 "until the properties which the Exchange has recently purchased are made available for use." The Exchange now owns the entire block bounded by Wall, Broad and New Streets and Exchange Place. As soon as possible it is planned to use additional space in the Postal Telegraph and Blair buildings, which it recently acquired. The Exchange is now using some space in the adjoining Postal Building. Eventually, it is expected, the trading floor will cover the entire block by alterations to the present properties or by the construction of a new building to take the place of the Postal and Blair buildings.

The special committee reported that it received 662 replies to a questionnaire asking the views of members as to suggested plans for increasing the membership. "A study of these answers," the report said, "convinced the committee that a larger proportion of new membership will be absorbed immediately if the membership is increased by 25 per cent than if it is increased by 50 or 100 per cent. These answers also indicated that only a part of the rights will be offered for sale immediately and that a considerable number will be retained by members for a substantial period."

Under the plan submitted by the governing committee, members would have three years in which to dispose of their rights. The governing authorities hope that, in the event the plan is approved, a substantial number of the additional seats will be made available as soon as their sale can be arranged. There is an urgent need for more floor brokers, it was pointed out yesterday.

Secretary to Handle Seat Sales.

Negotiations for the sale of members' rights under the new plan would be conducted in the same way that seat transactions are now arranged. The secretary of the Exchange would act as the agent in such negotiations. Members wishing to dispose of their rights would notify the secretary. Persons desiring to buy memberships would apply through him. There would, however, be no rule to prevent members from negotiating privately for the sale of their rights. No rule has been laid down, so far as could be learned, governing the sale of rights which are not exercised within the three-year period stipulated. Members assumed that their rights would be forfeited if not exercised.

Objections to various other plans for increasing the human machinery of the Exchange were cited in the special committee's report. "The plans which would increase the number of persons authorized to make contracts on the floor, without increasing the present number of members," the report set out, "naturally involve a fundamental change in either the nature of the Exchange or in the method of doing business on the floor of the Exchange. For example, it has been suggested that partners or employes or members might be permitted to make contracts as substitutes for members; that the membership of the Exchange be divided into two classes, only one of which would have the privilege of trading on the floor of the Exchange; and that the inactive members be permitted to lease their trading privileges to persons approved by the Exchange. The committee believes that all of these plans are necessarily impractical, both because they involve certain legal difficulties owing to the character of the organization of the Exchange and because they do away with the individual moral and financial responsibility that exists today, since contracts are made only between members.

See Further Rise in Trading.

"Since the committee was appointed on Oct. 15, 1928," the report said, "the volume of daily transactions on the Exchange has increased and there is every prospect, particularly in view of the approaching installation of a new ticker, that in the future a greater and greater volume of business will be transacted."

The new ticker will be geared to handle transactions of between 7,000,000 and 9,000,000 shares a day. Many members of the Exchange are convinced that the daily turnover within the next few years will run as nigh as 10,000,000 shares.

The committee was composed of E. H. H. Simmons, president of the Exchange; Warren B. Nash, treasurer; Water L. Johnson, Richard Whitney and Allen Lindley.

The plan submitted will be adopted unless a majority of the total membership votes against it. Assuming that 1,000 of the members vote in the poll that will be taken between now and Feb. 7, more than 500 of that number will have to vote negatively to defeat the plan. It would be possible, therefore, for a minority of the members to adopt the proposal should any considerable number fail to vote.

Of the 1,100 existing memberships, only a few are held by estates of deceased members. The representatives of those estates will be permitted to vote for them. Between 300 and 400 of the members are classified as inactive in that they rarely go on the floor of the Exchange to transact business.

Some of the present members bought their seats when prices ranged between $3,000 and $7,000. Among these is William B. Wadsworth, who joined the Exchange in 1869, the first year that seats were salable and when the highest price paid was $7,500. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who is never seen on the floor, bought his seat in 1883, when the maximum price was $30,000.

EIGHT ROUNDS FOR WINNER

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Jack Sharkey did about everything but knock out K. O. Christner in the ring at Madison Square Garden last night before a crowd of 20,000 howling fight fans and won a merited decision over the Ohioan in ten furiously fought, spectacular rounds of heavyweight fighting.

At the very close of the battle, however, Sharkey sustained an injury to his left thumb which may possibly cause a postponement of the Boston heavyweight's scheduled meeting with Young Stribling at Miami Beach on Feb. 27. A cursory examination after the fight led Manager Johnny Buckley to announce that the thumb was only slightly bruised and that Sharkey would leave next Wednesday for Miami Beach. Before he departs for the South, however, the thumb will be subjected to a thorough examination.

The final punch, as the bell clanged to end a contest which set every man and woman present wild with excitement throughout its length, a solid left hook aimed for the jaw, but landing on the bowed head of the plunging Christner, did the damage to Sharkey's thumb. As the blow landed, Sharkey twisted his face in pain and wrung his left hand violently.

Later, after speaking over the ringside microphone, the Boston heavyweight admitted that with that last punch of the fight he had injured his thumb. The extent of the injury will not be definitely known until today or perhaps Monday.

Christner Man of Granite.

Sharkey didn't knock out Christner because Sharkey is not the greatest hitter the heavyweight ranks ever knew, and, more important still, this Christner is a man of granite, or so he seemed last night.

Sharkey received the decision when the final bell clanged and, strangely, there was wide dissension with the award.

Judging by the thunderous jeers which greeted the decision announcement, the crowd thought Christner should have won. None of the judges, however, figured this way.

Judge Tommy Shortell, evidently taking into account the fact that Christner undeniably did all the leading, or most of it, at any rate, voted for a draw. But Referee Jack Denning and Judge George Kelly, satisfied that Sharkey had done the better boxing, hitting and fighting, voted for the Boston heavyweight. And justly so, for there were few who viewed the encounter from seats close to the ringside who could have judged otherwise.

Christner proved himself merely a crude, eager, remarkably strong fighter. He came here with the reputation of being what associates of boxing call "right-hand crazy." If Sharkey won eight of the ten rounds. He lost only the fourth and fifth, two sessions in which Christner's rushing, wild-swinging style seemed completely to overawe his rival. But in every other round Sharkey carried the honors, subjecting his rival to a varied drilling of lefts and rights to the body, left jabs and hooks to the face and jaw, lefts and rights to the head and face and right-hand uppercuts to the chin and body, which must have crushed a less hardy citizen than this Christner.

Sharkey found something of a hurricane in the first round, but jabbed his left to the face often enough to keep Christner's punching efforts harmless. And when he wasn't jabbing or hooking his left, Sharkey was bobbing and weaving and ducking and swaying before the erratic fire of his foe, or drilling home with solid smashes of the left or right to the body, as Christner clubbed his right to the face.

Christner Rallies in Third.

It was the same in the second round, but in the third round, after he had been battered rather freely, Christner closed with an offensive rally in which he twice reached Sharkey's jaw with wild rights, to the unmistakable delight of the crowd. On each occasion, however, Sharkey pressed right in, teeth gritted, driving both hands to the body, and, just before the bell, he grazed Christner's jaw with a swishing right.

The fourth and fifth rounds were a different story. Christner, with utter abandon, piled right into his rival, rushing Sharkey ferociously about the ring, swinging and clubbing with his right hand, trying for the punch to the jaw which he thought would bring him victory as it did recently against Knute Hansen. Four times in the fourth Christner grazed the jaw or landed solidly with his right, and Sharkey was cautious.

Again in the fifth Christner kept tirelessly after his foe, lashing out with right-handers for the jaw, some of which landed while others missed, but all of which made the crowd shout wild encouragement as Sharkey tried unsuccessfully to stem the tide. Near the end of the fifth Sharkey almost upset his foe with a terrific right-hand uppercut to the chin, and the punch turned aside Christner's fire.

From the sixth on through the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth sessions Sharkey held the upper hand. In each round Christner grazed the jaw with his right or landed high on the head, but this Sharkey of last night took those punches fearlessly, exposed his chin to some he had no right to take, and tore right in, fighting like a true ring warrior. He had Christner in distress in the sixth with his varied attack to the body and face, and the punches he swung or hooked to the Ohioan's jaw in frenzied rallies.

No official figures on receipts were given out, but the estimated gate was $70,000. Sharkey's weight was announced as 193 and Christner's 193½.

Jack Gross, Philadelphia's southpaw heavyweight, with a weight advantage of twenty-four pounds and a decided advantage in height and reach, had an easy time winning the decision from Emmet Rocco, Elwood Park, Pa., heavyweight, in the ten-round semi-final.

The Fight by Rounds.

First Round.

Fifth Round.

Christner went close and clubbed his right to the face. Christner drove a terrific right to the jaw and Sharkey a right to the heart. They exchanged lefts to the face and clinched. Christner repeatedly drove his right to the face and head as Sharkey drove lefts and rights to the body. Sharkey uppercut a right to the chin, but Christner rushed in and clubbed his right to the face. Sharkey missed a left hook to the body and Christner clubbed a right to the face. Christner drove a right to the body and then rushed in with several rights to the face. As Christner rushed again Sharkey almost upset him with a right to the chin.

Sixth Round.

Sharkey put a right and left to the jaw and leaped in again with a left and right to the jaw. In a clinch Sharkey hooked a left to the body. Sharkey put a left and right to the body as Christner rushed in. Sharkey hooked a left to the jaw and a right to the face which hurt Christner. Sharkey staggered his rival with a terrific right-hand uppercut and backed Christner to the ropes with a right to the head. Christner suddenly crossed a right to the jaw and Sharkey sent a right to the body. Christner missed a right for the jaw. Sharkey hooked and jabbed his left to the face. Sharkey put a hard left and right to the body and they clinched. Sharkey put another left and right to the body at the bell.

Seventh Round.

Sharkey drove a left and a right to the head and swayed away from Christner's return. Sharkey put a left and a right to the body and crossed a right to the head. Christner grazed the jaw with a right and in a clinch Sharkey put a left and right to the body. Christner drove a right to the head, but Sharkey walked right in and pounded both hands to the body. Sharkey staggered his rival with a right to the jaw and a right to the heart. Christner drove a right to the head and Sharkey sent a right to the body. Sharkey ripped a right to the body at the bell.

Eighth Round.

As Christner drove a right to the face Sharkey hooked a left and right to the face. Sharkey hooked a left to the head and they clinched. Christner drove a right to the face but Sharkey rushed in and pounded the body with lefts and rights. Sharkey twice drove his right to the heart, then he uppercut a right to face and rolled away from Christner's return right for the jaw. In a clinch Sharkey pounded his right to the body in another clinch Sharkey hooked his left to the body repeatedly. As Christner rushed, Sharkey ripped a terrific right uppercut to the chin. Christner crossed a right to the jaw. They were clinched at the bell.

Ninth Round.

Tenth Round.

The men shook hands. After several clinches Sharkey grazed the face with a right uppercut and then went in close and pounded the body. In another clinch Sharkey outpunched his rival to the body. Sharkey tried a right uppercut and it landed under Christner's arm. Christner rushed. Five seconds to Sharkey pounded the body steadily. Christner clubbed his right to the ribs and Sharkey hooked a left to the jaw. Sharkey drove a left and right to the body and they clinched. Sharkey put another left to the body as Christner put a right to the face. Each missed a left for the jaw and just at the bell Sharkey hooked a left to the head.

Ruddy Sets American Mark for 600 Yards Free Style Before Crowd of 1,000.

KOJAC WINS FROM FISSLER

Takes 100-Yard Back Stroke and Winged Foot Water Polo Is Beat Penn by 51 to 16.

The first competitive function in the new clubhouse of the New York Athletic Club was held last night in the form of a water carnival in the 75-foot pool. Some 1,000 persons, including Major William Kennelly, president of the organization, witnessed the meet.

At water polo, the Winged Foot team defeated the University of Pennsylvania, 51 to 16.

Brilliant performances by Raymond Ruddy of the N. Y. A. C. and George Kojac, Boys' Club star, featured. Ruddy, a member of the United States Olympic swimming team, shattered the American record for 600 yards free style in winning a handicap at this distance from scratch in 7:12 2-5 as against the listed time of 7:17 2-5. Ruddy defeated by 50 and 60 yards his clubmates, Edward Lee and William Sanford, each of whom was allotted a handicap of seven seconds.

Kojac, Olympic back stroke champion, won a 100-yard dorsal match from George Fissler of the New York A. C. in 1:01 3-5, just missing his own listed world's standard of 1:01 2-5. He gained the decision by 7 yards.

Later in the evening Kojac engaged in a 100-yard free style trial against time in order to establish a record for the new pool and thrashed the distance in 0:58 3-5.

Joseph Farley, the Winged Foot sprinter, came through in an invitation 100-yard free style sprint. He returned in 0:56 and earned the verdict by three yards from Fred Scheel, his club mate.

The summaries:

SWIMMING.

100-Yard Swim (Invitation)—Won by Joseph Farley, N. Y. A. C.; Fred Scheel, N. Y. A. C., second; John Dryfuss, N. Y. A. C., third. Time—0:56.

JOE DUNDEE BEATEN BY MELLO IN BOSTON

Victor Floors Champion for Counts of Nine Twice—No Title at Stake.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Al Mello of Lowell, New England welterweight champion, took a ten-round decision from Joe Dundee of Baltimore, world's champion, in a bruising, wide open bout that had a crowd of 18,000 at the Boston Garden in an uproar most of the time tonight. They fought at catchweights, Mello scaling 150 and Dundee 147, so the title was not at stake. The receipts were about $35,000.

Using a terrific left hook to the chin, Mello floored the champion for the count of nine in the opening round, had him out on his feet in the eighth, and sent him down for the count of nine again in the ninth round, but each time Dundee came back with a savage attack.

The champion did plenty of punishing on his own account, after recovering from his near knockout in the first round. A right cross and knowledge of infighting gave him the third, fourth and fifth rounds by clean cut margins, while his sledge-hammer right pounded the New Englander all over the ring in the seventh round, before Mello's left again got going to give him the final three stanzas.

In the eighth Mello sent Dundee into the ropes with such force that the champion held on for the rest of the round. Dundee went down before the flashing left again in the ninth, but came back in a whirlwind toe to toe finish. However, the rally was not enough to gain him the decision.

Mello's victory tonight was his second over a member of the Dundee family in recent weeks. Several weeks ago the Lowell boxer administered a beating to Vince Dundee, brother of the welterweight champion.

Eddie Curley, Boston featherweight, gained the verdict over Jake Bertamby of Lynn in the eight-round semi-final. Ernie Martin outpointed Dominick Petrone of New York in another eight-round bout. In a third eight-rounder, Jack Brady of Syracuse won easily from Jack Kane of Boston.

Freddy Lindstrom, Swedish boxer, stopped Mickey McClernon of New London in the second round of a scheduled six-rounder. Billie Cleary of Boston beat Tommy Harper of Medford in the opener.

STRIBLING STOPS SMITH.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan 25 (AP).—W. L. (Young) Stribling knocked out Ralph Smith of California in the third round here tonight. The referee stopped the bout. Stribling weighed 184 pounds, Smith 222.

Smith was knocked down three times in the first round, once in the second and twice in the third before the fight was stopped.

GAINS DEFEATS BELANGER.

Successfully Defends Canadian Heavyweight Title at Toronto.

Driver and Mechanic of Car No. 13 Killed In Argentine Grand Prix Endurance Race

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 25 (AP).—Four of the thirty-four automobiles which started from here at 6 A. M. today in the Argentine Grand Prix endurance race had been forced out tonight, Paris Giannini, driver of No. 13, and his mechanic, Dino Papini, were killed fifty miles from the start when their automobile skidded on a dirt road and turned over three times.

The Italian entry, driven by Alfaro Meos, caught fire soon after the start of the race and was abandoned, as was another Italian entry later. The driver and mechanic of a fourth entry were thrown from their seats by the jolt when their car struck a rut.

The Grand Prix, regarded as the most important racing test in South America, is run over three stages totaling about 1,000 miles, all over dirt roads presenting most difficult conditions. The run today ended at Rosario. Tomorrow's goal is Cordova and on Sunday the racers head back for this city.

A prize of about $4,000 awaits the winner, with awards of $3,800 and $1,800 for the next two places. The majority of the automobiles are of American make, but the drivers are all Argentines or Italians, with the exception of one Brazilian entry. The almost complete absence of hard surface roads makes the outcome exceedingly uncertain, although the team of Bucci and Gaudino, former winners, is the favorite.

Three American cars were the leaders at Rosario today, Gaudino driving one of them, was first in 3 hours 24 minutes and 12 seconds.

HALL BEATS LOTT IN TITLE TENNIS

Defending Champion Is Put Out in Canadian Indoor Semi-Finals in Four Sets.

MERCUR BOWS TO CROCKER

Canadian Davis Cup Star Reaches the Final—Aydelotte-Cutler in Doubles Final.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25 (AP).—Two international finals are on the schedule tomorrow for the Canadian indoor tennis championships. In the singles a young player from the United States, who scored his first great triumph to reach the final round, J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., will meet Willard Crocker, seasoned star of the Canadian Davis Cup team. The doubles final brings Crocker and his partner, Marcel Rainville of Montreal, against William Aydelotte and Merritt Cutler of New York.

Hall staged the biggest upset of the tournament when he won a hard four-set battle from the defending champion, George Lott of Chicago, a member of the United States Davis Cup team and third in the national ranking. Three of the sets went to deuce, the scores being 7—5, 6—8, 6—4, 10—8.

Coming into the tournament with little practice and playing three matches yesterday, Lott could not maintain the steady pace set by his opponent. Crocker's victory over Frits Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa., was less of a surprise. They were rated about on even terms. Where Crocker did the unexpected was in winning so easily, taking the match in straight sets by scores of 6—3, 6—4, 6—2.

Both doubles semi-finals were hard fought affairs, one going to four sets and the other to five. Aydelotte, United States indoor champion, and Cutler had to show their best game to defeat Mercur and Julius Seligson of New York, intercollegiate title holder, 6—4, 6—2, 4—6, 10—8.

Crocker and Rainville also were hard pressed, defeating A. B. Sheridan and Melvin Partridge of New York. After taking the first set they dropped the next two before pulling their game together to win. The scores were 6—1, 3—6, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4. Earlier in the day Sheridan and Partridge eliminated Lott and E. H. Laframboise, Montreal, by 7—5, 6—7, 6—0.

CLARKE OF U. S. LOSES IN CANADIAN RACQUETS

Beaten in Doubles Semi-Finals After He and Partner Lead by Two Games.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—It looked at one time today as if the only United States entry in the Canadian racquets championships at the Montreal Racquet Club was going to have a chance at the doubles championship tomorrow, for H. C. Clarke of Boston, paired with R. M. Redmond of Montreal, had beaten the local pair, A. S. Cassils and G. H. Turpin, in the first two games by good margins.

However, a remarkable rally by Cassils half way through the third gave his team this game, and in a stirring struggle in the fourth Cassils and Turpin managed by the odd point to snatch the victory and tie the score. Clarke and Redmond took a lead in the final game but Cassils, with an unbeatable service, caught his opponents at 12 and ran out the victory with three straight points. The scores were 7—15, 10—15, 15—12, 15—14, 15—12.

Clarke played brilliantly throughout, He still remains in the singles and will meet Cassils in the semi-finals tomorrow. Clarke had defeated B. J. O'Donahoe previously by three games to one.

The only other match played today was between S. H. Dobell and A. J. Hills in which Dobell won by 3—1, the scores being 15—9, 11—15, 15—4, 17—14. Dobell will meet Redmond in the other semi-final tomorrow.

MISS HALL BEATEN BY MRS. WIGHTMAN

Victor Reaches National Squash Racquets Final by Winning in Three Games.

MRS. HOWE ALSO SCORES

Conquers Miss Waterman in Other Semi-Final—Both Finalists Are From Boston.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—With the elimination of Miss Ruth Hall of Philadelphia by Mrs. George W. Wightman and the triumph of Mrs. William F. Howe Jr. of Boston over Miss Louise Waterman, also of Boston, in the semi-finals today, the stage was set for an all-Boston final in the Women's National Squash Racquets championship tournament tomorrow afternoon at the Harvard Club.

Both of today's matches required only three games. Miss Hall scored 24 points against Mrs. Wightman, the scores of the games being 15-9, 15-9, and 16-16. Miss Waterman made a better showing as far as point scoring is concerned against Mrs. Howe, scoring 38 times in her losing match. The scores were 17-15, 18-12, 15-11.

It was a case of youth against age and experience in both of the matches. The experienced Mrs. Howe, after a hard fight in the first game, had little trouble in vanquishing the youthful Miss Waterman.

There was a struggle for every point in the match between Miss Hall and Mrs. Wightman and the steadiness of the players was superb. Both players made fine recoveries.

In the consolation final, Miss Priscilla Waterman will meet the winner of the match between Mrs. Dorothy Lawrence and Miss Ruth Sears. Miss Waterman defeated Mrs. John Adie today, 17-14, 17-16, 15-8.

SEVENTH REGIMENT WINS.

RECORD BOAT SHOW TO CLOSE TONIGHT

Total Attendance of 240,000 and Sales of $5,000,000 Estimated by Officials.

GREAT THRONGS SEE CRAFT

By GROVER THEIS.

Although yesterday's stormy weather was hardly the kind into which any of the motor boats on display at the twenty-fourth annual National Show in Grand Central Palace would want to venture, it did not deter the thousands interested in cruising, commuting, speed boating and outboard boating diversions from stamping the slush from their rubbers and assembling in the exhibition hall before the sleek craft where they could envision calmer Summer days on lakes, bays and rivers.

The show which will come to a close tonight at 10:30 o'clock has surpassed all previous shows not only in the number and value of exhibits but in attendance also. It was estimated by officials of the exposition yesterday that when the last person will have passed the turnstiles tonight the aggregate attendance will exceed last year's by 33 1-3 per cent. The final figures given out in 1928 showed a total of 180,000, and if the expectations of the management are fulfilled, of which there seems little doubt, this year's throngs will number approximately 240,000, a goodly figure over the advance predictions, which put the attendance at 200,000.

The startling advance in interest in motor boating from the biggest type of cruisers to the smallest outboards also is reflected in the estimated sales which were placed at $5,000,000 yesterday. This amount, officials said, applied to boats alone and does not include accessories and other marine equipment.

Great Rush Expected Today.

Indeed, the anticipation of a great rush on the last day today led Henry R. Sutphen, president of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, to voice another appeal yesterday that prospective buyers come early today to facilitate their inspection of the numerous exhibits. The tendency has been to come late in the afternoon and in the evening. This naturally has resulted in congestion, which required the establishment of lines and necessitated delays.

When the annual exhibition culminates tonight after daily sessions since a week ago Friday, with the exception of Sunday, the usual scene resembling New Year's eve on Broadway will be enacted with all noise-making signal devices bursting forth at once.

Immediately after the "big tent" of the motor boat exposition will start to pull up stakes and the hard-working exhibitors will begin to move out. Park Avenue, Lexington Avenue, Forty-sixth Street and Forty-seventh Street will be cluttered up with motor trucks removing hulls, engines and other displays.

Aside from the press of visitors and buyers yesterday's session of the National Association of Engine and Boat Builders was the outstanding event. This meeting was held in the Hotel Roosevelt and was attended by more than forty of the most prominent manufacturers of the country.

Five new members were elected to the executive committee as follows: Charles A. Herrman, president of the Pen Yan Boat Company; Ora J. Mulford of the Gray Marine Motor Company; Everett E. Palmer of the Palmer Brothers Engine Company; Jay W. Smith, president of Chris Smith and Sons Boat Company, and P. A. Tanner of the Lockwood Motor Company.

Surveying Movement Launched.

The regular committee reports were received and these were mostly of a routine nature. However, a movement was launched by the organization to survey the navigable waters with the intent of clearing them of driftwood and other obstructions to navigation.

While it was storming outside the three floors of Grand Central Palace were abuzz with word of important transactions. One of these was the sale by Howard Lyon of a 65-foot Sea Lyon to William K. Vanderbilt. This express commuter will be powered by two Liberty motors. The Hacker Craft reported $100,000 sales of speed boats. Frederick P. Humphries computed his sales of the 43-foot Navigator Diesel boat and the new 38-footer which has not progressed beyond the stage of design at $200,000.

The Dawn Boat Corporation estimated that its transactions in cruisers would total $150,000, and the well-known stock Matthews cruisers have compiled sales of $142,000. The Sea Sled Corporation officials said their sales were from 95 to 100 per cent above last year.

Sales Inspire Optimism.

While these are only scattered instances and the figures are far from conclusive or of any comparative value they reflect the general trend and are the ground upon which the general optimism of the industry is based. The indication that the grand total will reach $5,000,000 is really conservative because a great many prospective buyers only visit the show to see the models and make up their minds later.

A sidelight of the show was the news yesterday that a 126-foot, all-steel Diesel boat would be launched today at Wilmington, Del., from the yards of Pusey & Jones for Arthur Wheeler of this city. A private car with guests of Mr. Wheeler left for Wilmington last night to be present at the event.

This new craft will be powered with two six-cylinder 500-horsepower Winton Diesels such as are now on display at Grand Central Palace. The boat will have a 5,000-mile cruising radius. It has a twenty-two-foot beam and an eight-foot draft. Its name will not be divulged until after the launching at 12:30. Mr. Wheeler is a member of Taylor, Bates & Co. and is the son of Fred S. Wheeler, chairman of the American Can Company. The design is by John H. Wells & Co. and the cost is reputed to be $250,000.

Another sidelight gleaned from Ira Hand was the election of Lionel Conacher, captain of the New York American hockey team; Babe Dye of the same sextet, George Haldeman, Major J. K. Lee and Frank M. Hawks, aviators, to membership in the Keratta Circuit Riders' Club, an organization devoted to the advancement of motor boating.

Syracuse Crowd Storms Ring When Referee Stops Main Bout

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—A near riot was put on here tonight by 9,000 fight fans at the Arena when Referee Joe Morrison of Binghamton stopped the feature bout between Con O'Kelly of Ireland and George Gomas of Philadelphia in the third round. O'Kelly had the better of the fight, but Gomas apparently was unharmed when the referee halted proceedings. The crowd rushed the ring and police had to escort Morrison to the dressing room. There were no knockdowns in the fight. Gene Caldoni, Wilkes-Barre, won a six-round decision from Freddy Dawson of Jamestown in the semi-final.

YALE SWIMMERS SET MEDLEY RELAY MARK

Clip 4 1-5 Seconds From World's Record by Going 300 Yards in 3:14.

BEAT WESLEYAN IN MEET

Triumph by 51 Points to 20, Using Many Reserve Men in the Dual Engagement.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 25.—Yale swimmers clipped 4 1-5 seconds from the world's medley relay record for 300 yards tonight in the Carnegie Pool, covering the distance in 3 minutes 14 seconds. That was the outstanding event of a meet with Wesleyan, which Yale won easily, 51 to 20 points.

Yale in general presented only reserve swimmers against Wesleyan. Edward Cahill, John Howland and Nelson Millard, who created the new medley figures, are all intercollegiate titleholders. They lowered the record of 3 minutes 18 1-5 seconds made last March at Philadelphia by the University of Michigan.

50-Yard Swim—Won by Peck, Wesleyan; Esty, Yale, second; Thrall, Yale, third. Time—0:26.

440-Yard Swim—Won by Owen, Yale; Parr, Wesleyan, second; Dubenz, Yale, third. Time—5:37 2-5.

150-Yard Back Stroke Swim—Won by Howes, Yale; Hotes, Yale, second; Barrows, Wesleyan, third. Time—1:56 2-5.

100-Yard Breast Stroke Swim—Won by Mercer, Yale; Partington, Yale, second; Matson, Wesleyan, third. Time—1:20 1-5.

100-Yard Swim—Won by Levine, Yale; Hogen, Yale, second; Joyce, Wesleyan, third. Time—0:58 3-5.

Relay—Won by Yale (Kline, Scott, Olmstead and Pope). Time—3:46 2-5.

FADS AND FANCIES ANNEXED BY INGRID

WOOLORAC HOME IN FRONT

Triumphs in Opportunity, Completing Double for Zucchini—McDermott Pilots Two Winners.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 25.—Lee Rosenberg's old black mare, Ingrid, which was running with stake horses last Fall, caused something of a surprise here today when she scored decisively in the Fads and Fancies, an allowance race for fillies and mares, the feature at the Fair Grounds track.

The third betting choice in a field of five, Rosenberg's six-year-old sprang into the lead just after the start and was hardly ever in danger and won by four lengths from Ida O'Day, the extreme outsider. Jockey Kellum was easing the mare at the end for she had opened a lead of at least five lengths in the stretch and there was no need to punish her on a heavy track.

The race was at a mile and was Ingrid's twelfth start since she finished third to Osmand and Polish last September at Belmont Park. In none of the previous eleven races had she come even close to winning, with the result that today she was third choice behind Ever More and Mulatto.

At the break the favorite was in front for a few strides, but Ingrid quickly assumed command and had the better part of a length advantage at the quarter pole.

Ever More Falls Back.

It was just a gallop from this point to the finish line. After Ever More was passed by Ingrid she dropped back fast and the contention for the second place developed between Mulatto and Ida O'Day. The latter was close to the pace throughout but was passed in the last furlong by Mulatto.

Coming on again, Ida O'Day outgamed the other and was second by a neck. The winner's time was 1:47 2-5 and she carried 109 weight of 109 pounds.

Jockey R. Zucchini scored a double in the course of the afternoon when he piloted Ring True to victory in the opening race and then repeated with Woolorac in the Opportunity Purse, which was third on the program.

Wins by Length and Half.

Woolorac's victory in the Opportunity was his first at the meeting and for some time. One of the laggards at the start, the colt responded to Zucchini's urging and worked his way up on the inside to win going away by a length and a half.

Pagan Laddie, the favorite, was second and Sambo third. Miss Paradise, which was first at the start, ran a poor race and finished a distant last.

Jockey Lawrence McDermott also scored a double when he brought home two winners at the end of the program. They were Elizabeth S. and Letter Six.

RAINSTORM TRIUMPHS AT MIAMI RACE TRACK

Makes Show of Field With Eight-Length Margin at Finish—Flagship in Easy Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—Rainstorm, a colt owned by the Kenton Farm, made a runaway race of the fifth event that had the place of honor on the program at Hialeah Park this afternoon.

Six claiming races made up the card and several resulted in close finishes, but Rainstorm ran in front from the start and had eight lengths to spare at the end of his dash of six furlongs.

Seven started and Lorelei raced to the place a length before Highbridge. Woodrow Wilson Long had the leg up on Rainstorm and despite the big lead his horse had at practically every stage of the race he kept him under pressure and took no chances on easing up.

Clocked in 1:13 2-5, the Kenton Farm horse carried 106 pounds and was the even-money favorite.

One of the early Man o' Wars that did not turn out so well was a heavily played odds-on choice in the fourth race and he won by four lengths for B. Beamolt. The horse was Flagship, now seven years old and a gelded son of the superhorse.

At 1 to 2 in the betting, Flagship had the backing of nearly all of the form players and there was no show money on him, although eight horses were in the race.

Flagship set fears at rest early, for he went to the front about as quickly as Rainstorm and won as easily. Prig was second and Lucent third. The winner covered the mile and a sixteenth in 1:47 3-5.

RECOGNITION GIVEN TO 60 HUNT CLUBS

RACING DATES SANCTIONED

Recognition of a record number of hunt clubs and the approval of race meeting dates were announced yesterday following the annual meeting of the hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected and other business transacted, but Secretary Frank J. Bryan was particularly pleased at the large number of clubs applying for sanction, which, he said, indicates the most flourishing condition of the sport in its history in this country.

Recognition for 1929 was granted to sixty clubs and dates for almost a score of race meetings were approved. A. Henry Higginson was re-elected chairman of the committee. He was prevented from being present by delays encountered by the ship on which he returned yesterday from England. The other officers are vice chairman, A. S. Craven; secretary, Frank J. Bryan; executive committee, Henry W. Bull, J. E. Davis and Richard Whitney.

Certificates as gentleman riders were granted to ten men, which is a further increase of the rapidly growings ranks of amateur riders.

In order to give members an official guide of reference it was decided to publish for 1929 a book to be known as "Records of Hunt Meetings." This will be compiled in the office of the association.

Racing Dates Assigned.

Middleburg Hunt Club, Middleburg, Va., Saturday, April 6.

Deep Run Hunt Club, Richmond, Va., Saturday, April 13.

United Hunts Racing Association, New York: (Spring meeting), Thursday, April 18 and Saturday, April 20; (Autumn meeting), Saturday, Nov. 2 and Tuesday, Nov. 5.

HOUND SHOW HONORS GO TO REYNAL PACK

ENGLISH VETERAN IS JUDGE

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Mr. Reynal's hounds, Eugene S. Reynal master and huntsman, carried off the most spectacular event at the fifth annual Riding Club Hound Show, which was held yesterday at the clubhouse of the Riding Club, 7 West Sixty-sixth Street, under the joint auspices of the Masters of Foxhounds Association of America and the National Beagle Club. This grand pack of five couples of harriers of wonderful type, grand heads and fronts, gained the notable distinction of best in the open pack class, which came as the grand finale of the best show in the history of the Riding Club.

The feature event followed the judging of the other pack classes, and a splendid gathering, made up of hunting men and women from all over the East, crowded the galleries and stood about the ring. The award was greeted by a great outburst of applause and cheering. The victory was extremely popular and was a splendid triumph for the harriers, which defeated the best packs of foxhounds, beagles and basset hounds in this part of the United States.

It was still more notable in that the award was made by that eminent English veteran hound man, the Rev. E. A. Milne, M. F. H. of the Cattistock, Dorset, England. Mr. Milne came across especially to act as judge of the English and Welsh foxhounds at the show.

He took passage, with A. Henry Higginson, president of the Masters of Foxhounds Association, on the Homeric, which was due Wednesday. The ship was buffeted all the way across the Atlantic by a succession of gales, and Messrs. Milne and Higginson did not land until yesterday afternoon, too late for the former to officiate in his regular classes.

Colorful Picture Presented.

It was a colorful picture that was presented when the pack events were judged. The three rings which were used in the earlier judging were dismantled and the big riding ring was given over to the packs, all being excluded except the officials, the masters and the huntsmen. There was the greatest enthusiasm over these events, each pack having its own following. Seven packs of five couples of hounds of any age and either sex or breed were eligible to the final event, for which a valuable piece of plate was the award. Reserve to the Reynal Hounds was the Vermont Somerset Beagles, Richard V. N. Gambrill, master.

The beagles—and there was a brilliant showing of the gay little hounds—were passed upon by George B. Post of New York City. Quality is always high at this exhibition, and yesterday's reached the peak. There were seven packs showing, a sufficient commentary on numbers. In general, Mr. Post found the bitches better than the dogs.

Among the little ones the winner was Thorne Satchville Donovan, owned by the Navesink Beagles of Red Bank, N. J. He was purchased from Arthur Paget less than two years ago in England, where he had been judged the best of his size in that country. He is a grand little hound. The winning bitch was the Vernon Somerset Beagles' Layman, a beautiful type and one in which it is very hard to find a fault.

Aiken Trixie a Winner.

Best of the larger dogs was the Pemberton Beagles' Aiken Trixie, with the Vernon Somerset Beagles' Comical the best of the bitches. They were two grand specimens.

None of the winning dogs and bitches in any of the breeds save the basset hounds was brought together to decide best of winners. In the latter, because of lack of numbers, dogs and bitches were judged together for best, the winner being the bitch Walhampton Alice, shown by the Brookmeade Kennels.

DUDLEY AND SMITH LEAD TEXAS OPEN

Tie at 69 to Top Field of 141 as Williams and Walsh Get 70 and 5 Others Equal Par of 71.

MAGUIRE MAKES 6 BIRDIES

Scores All on First 8 Holes to Shoot 9 in 31, but Slumps to 71 for 18 —Temperature Drops to 32.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 25.—Two new Ryder Cup team nominees, Horton Smith and Ed Dudley, led a strong field of 141 starters at the end of the first round of the eighth annual Texas open championship, played over the Brackenridge Park course today. Both scored 69, two under par. The temperature dropped from 65 yesterday to 32 today, and it was uncomfortably cold.

Dudley and Smith finished only one stroke ahead of two other homeseekers, Denny Williams of Shawnee, and Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis.

Five Players Equal Par.

Five players equaled par of 71, one of them being Willie Maguire of Houston, who played the first nine in 31.

Former winners of the title were higher. Bobby Cruickshank had a 72. Joe Kirkwood made a 74, with three bad holes. The defending champion, Bill Mehlhorn, required 76. Harry Cooper, who was runner-up last year, scored 73.

Smith's 69 included a 6 on the sixteenth, where he skidded over the green on his second shot and put his third in a trap. Dudley had five birdies in seven holes, starting with No. 5. He missed short putts for pars on the thirteenth and sixteenth, after going out in 32.

The cards of the leaders:

Out—
Dudley	4	3	3	4	3	5	3	4	5—34
Smith	4	3	4	4	3	5	3	4	5—35
In—
Dudley	3	5	4	4	5	4	3	4	4—35—69
Smith	4	4	5	4	4	4	3	4	4—36—69

Williams went out in 34. His 70 included two three-putt greens, the fourth and tenth. Dan played consistent golf on all the other holes and picked up birdies on three long holes.

Walsh was over par twice, when he took 6 on holes of 430 and 450 yards. He had three birdies, two of them on par 5 holes.

Maguire Gets Six Birdies.

Maguire struck off six birdies on the first eight holes. He went out in 31 with three putts on the seventh and missed a ten-footer on the ninth. He started by dropping a twenty-foot putt on the first green and he holed short putts for birdies on the second and third. On the fifth Willie almost holed his second shot. An eight-footer for another birdie dropped on the sixth, and he holed a ten-footer for a 2 on the eighth.

Maguire's card:

Washington Keeps Bagshaw On Decision of President

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 25.—Enoch Bagshaw, University of Washington football coach, will retain his post on a decision handed down tonight by President M. Lyle Spencer. Bagshaw has been the centre of a raging controversy on the Washington campus for the past ten days, which culminated when the Student Board of Control voted to dismiss him. His contract has three years to run. He has been Washington's football coach for eight years. He also is a graduate of the institution.

YATES WINS FINAL ON LINKS BY 8 AND 7

5 UP FOR MORNING ROUND

Scores a 70 to Take Early Lead, Then Plays Safely to End the Match at 12th Green.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25.—Shooting almost flawless golf from tee to cup, Arthur (Ducky) Yates, finalist for the New York State amateur championship last Summer, won the final of the Lake Worth tournament from Jack Butler, former Notre Dame star, here today. The Rochester, N. Y., golfer triumphed at thirty-six holes by 8 up and 7 to play over the Palm Beach Golf Club course.

Yates got away to a running start, piling up an advantage of five up at the end of the first eighteen holes. Then he played safely during the afternoon, bringing the match to an end on the twelfth green. On the forenoon rounds, Yates's medal score was 70, five strokes better than Butler's total. Butler was erratic from the tee, but managed to save himself many shot sby his fine approaching.

The Rochester representative played excellent golf throughout the tournament. In the qualifying round he was only a stroke back of the medal winner, Clive Alvord, with a 71. His match victories on his march to the final were over J. A. Travers, Boston, by 5 and 4; William B. Langford, Chicago, by 4 and 3, and Ora L. Bradley, Toledo, by 6 and 5.

Fourth Flight—Dr. Edward, Chicago, defeated Tom Goodwin, New York City, 2 up.

RICE DEFEATS BEACH IN WRITERS' FINAL

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25—Grantland Rice of New York is still the champion golfer among the members of the Artists' and Writers' Golf Association. He successfully defended his crown today in the 18-hole third of the second annual tournament by defeating Rex Beach by 2 up and 1 to play on the Palm Beach Country Club course. Incidentally, the concluding match for the title brought together the two chief officers of the organization. Rice is president and Beach vice president.

The cards:

Rice—Out	5	4	5	3	6	4	3	5	—35
In	5	4	4	5	4	5	4	3	—34—69
Beach—Out	4	4	5	3	4	5	5	3	5—38
In	4	6	3	5	5	5	5	3	4—40—78

In the final of the second flight, Clarence Budington Kelland defeated John Lagatta of New York by 6 up and 5 to play. In the second division consolation final, William L. Chenery won by 1 up from F. Hume, a fellow-New Yorker.

BALCH DOWNS HALSELL AT BELLEAIR HEIGHTS

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., Jan. 25.—Dewitt Balch of Cincinnati, medalist in the January golf tournament here, won the event today in a thirty-six-hole final with Hunt Halsell of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club by a margin of 2 up and 1 to play.

The former national senior champion found the thirty-six-hole distance a little too much for him and he tired badly on the last few holes after having his youthful opponent down most of the way.

Halsell had a lead of 2 up early in the match and, although Balch erased the deficit at one juncture, the senior held a 2 up lead at the end of the first round.

Halsell still had this advantage at the turn in the afternoon round, but could not stand the pace. Halsell's medal score for the first round was 76.

CRESCENT SIX WILL PLAY.

Meets St. Nicks Tonight at Ice Club —N. Y. A. C. Leads League.

The New York Athletic Club sextet, with a record of three victories and no defeats, is still leading the Metropolitan Hockey League. The St. Nicholas team is second, with two victories and one defeat.

The St. Nicks will oppose the Crescent A. C. in a league struggle at the Ice Club tonight.

	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Pts.
New York A. C.	3	0	0	6
St. Nicholas	2	1	0	4

Brown Wrestlers Beat Springfield.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 25.—The Brown varsity wrestling team won two bouts by falls and two by default and defeated the Springfield College grapplers here tonight, 20 to 12.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

NOT that it will get Noah Brusso as much as an extra cup of coffee on a cold night, but it now seems probable that the name of Tommy Burns will be included in the list of former world's heavyweight champions on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy. Earlier reports to the contrary have been declared premature and possibly misleading.

Commissioner William Muldoon denied the soft impeachment that he swayed the committee against including Burns. One authority quotes the Solid Man as saying that he was "strictly neutral" in the matter. Another authority drew from the commissioner's speech the conclusion that he was in favor of including the name of Burns, though he was not on the committee, had no vote and had no intention of trying to influence the committee. His only connection with the trophy is as joint donor of the silverware with Gene Tunney.

Perhaps it was all a mistake. But if there was any sentiment in the committee against recognizing Burns as a former holder of the world's title, the wholesale rush to the support of Burns in the recent open debate shows where the right fans stand, at any rate. It was a public landslide for Burns. Of course, there is always the possibility that 40,000,000 Frenchmen might be wrong.

Get Out the Tin Helmets.

According to official announcement, there will be hurling or hurley games at the Garden next month, and Gaelic football, too. If the Garden officials are open to friendly advice, they will put flying buttresses from the side walls of their precious edifice to building across the street on either side. The reason these games are played outdoors in Ireland is that no building on the Emerald Isle was strong enough to stand the strain.

This hurling or hurley started in Ireland as a town-against-town proposition or village-against-village. A team was composed of the entire population of the town or village which it represented. That idea was abandoned because the casualties cut heavily into the ordinary occupation of the inhabitants. There weren't enough people left to go to the races.

So the teams were reduced to fifteen men on a side. In principle, it's something like field hockey. It is played with a leather ball, and each player carries a stick something like the formidable weapon carried by the goalie in ice hockey. As far as this curious observer could learn in one bewildered glimpse at the game, the big idea is to swing at the ball and hit an opposing player.

They tell great tales of this game in Ireland. It is reported that some experts can glance at a hurley stick and tell by the markings where it was made, who made it, whose stick it is, just what men have been hit by it, and how many times. That's carrying things too far.

The Free-for-All.

Some hurling experts think there is an extra hazard in trying to play the game in a building like the Garden. It's their opinion that the wild swings will knock the ball up among the spectators so often that the players, in their excitement, will leap over the barriers and carry on the game in the stands.

If that happens, the best way out is to start the Gaelic football contest immediately, because that's a game that will reverse the situation. At certain fervid stages of many Gaelic football scrambles, the spectators pile down on the field and take charge of the game themselves.

Gaelic football is a combination of soccer, Rugby and our own intercollegiate game, combining the best bone-breaking features of all three. That makes it a gentle, peaceful sport. A man is as safe on a Gaelic football field as he would be in a mine explosion.

The Fate of the Umpire.

Many years ago there was a game of Gaelic football played in the old Garden between teams of rival counties in the old country. The late Martin Sheridan, greatest all-around athlete of his day and one of the greatest of all time, was invited to be the referee. Martin was a fearless fellow and accepted the job.

The game was played in conjunction with an athletic meet, and a steeplechase course had been laid out in the Garden. This steeplechase course included a "Liverpool" or water jump.

The game started, and one thing led to another until all the players got into a battle royal and the spectators came pouring down over the barriers so as not to miss the fun and to add to it as much as possible. When the gendarmes finally cleared the floor of the belligerents—there was Martin sputtering and struggling in the water of the "Liverpool." The roaring mob had taken the umpire and heaved him overboard with a will. They had nothing against Martin. It simply seemed the proper thing to do at the moment.

A Sturdy People.

The odd thing about such games as hurling, Gaelic football, soccer and Rugby, sports dear to the hearts of the inhabitants of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, is the lack of protective armor for the combatants.

In intercollegiate football, ice hockey and lacrosse, sports developed in this country and rough enough as games go, each player is almost as well armored as an armadillo. But in hurling, Gaelic football, soccer and Rugby, the battling hosts go forth to war in thin jerseys and "shorts."

This point was once broached to a couple of Gaelic players who were just resting from their labors and bandaging their cuts and bruises.

"What's the good of all those pads, cushions and upholstery?" they asked.

"Why, you wouldn't get cut and bruised."

"And the other fellers wouldn't get cut nor bruised, either?"

"That's right. Nobody would get hurt."

"Then where would be the fun in the game?"

It will take some time to think up an answer to that one.

BRICE AGAIN WINS MIAMI TROPHY GOLF

Defeats Dockerty by 3 and 2 and Gains Second Leg on Glenn H. Curtiss Prize.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—Harcourt M. Brice of Miami gained his second leg on the Glenn H. Curtiss trophy today when he won the thirty-six-hole final on the Municipal Links at Hialeah from George Dockerty, a former resident of Dumont, N. J., by 3 and 2.

Brice captured the tournament last year and also took the qualifying medal in the event which closed today, leading the field with a 72.

Dockerty, after being 3 down at the end of the first nine, was only 1 down at the end of the eighteen holes. Standing 5 down with five holes to go on the last eighteen, the Jerseyite hung on grimly by winning the next two holes, only to lose out on the sixteenth when Brice plunked a fourteen-foot putt into the cup for a half.

On the first nine in the afternoon Brice shot one under even 4s. On the seventh his second halted ten feet from the pin, whence he gained a birdie.

The cards:

Gosling Bermuda Medalist.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 25 (AP).—A. C. N. Gosling, Toronto, winner of the Bermuda amateur golf championship last year, won the eighteen-hole medal competition today over the Riddell's Bay course with a score of 35—36—71. Nicol Thompson Jr., Hamilton, Ont., was second with 36—36—72, and W. R. Putter, New York, third with a score of 39—37—76. G. W. West, Bermuda, finished fourth, his score being 43, 36—79.

Brain Sextet Buys Carson, Star Centre of Toronto Team

BOSTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—Bill Carson, star centre of the Toronto Maple Leafs, has been purchased by the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, President Charles Adams of the Boston club announced today. Although Adams declined to make public the price paid for Carson, it was intimated that it was one of the largest ever given for a hockey player. Carson, former star player at Toronto University, is the third former college player acquired by the Bruins; George Owen Jr., former Harvard athlete, and Myles Lane, formerly of Dartmouth, are the others.

N. Y. A. C. IS VICTOR IN CLASS B SQUASH

Long Island Ice Races Off.

The LONG ISLAND ice-skating championship meet scheduled for today at Valley Stream State Park was postponed yesterday by the Long Island State Park Commission because of the lack of ice. It was the second postponement.

NOVOTNY REACHES BILOXI GOLF FINAL

Beats McDade, the Medalist, by Score of 3 and 2 in Pan-American Amateur Play.

BILOXI, Miss., Jan. 25 (AP).—Gus Novotny of La Grange, Ill., and Don Armstrong of Aurora, Ill., won their semi-final matches today in the annual Pan-American amateur championship golf tournament at the Edgewater Park links to become finalists tomorrow over the thirty-six-hole route.

Novotny defeated Ross McDade of Shreveport, La., the tournament medalist, 3 and 2, as Armstrong, defending the title, won from G. Fred Lamprecht, New Orleans, former intercollegiate champion, 3 and 1.

McDade had the Chicago district star 1 down at the end of the first nine and held him fairly even until the sixteenth and seventeenth holes, when, with the match even, Novotny uncorked a par 3 and a par 4 and took the lead 2 up. At the turn in the afternoon round Novotny was 3 up.

Lamprecht was 5 down at one time to Armstrong. They came to the seventeenth with Armstrong 2 up. Lamprecht sent his second over the green for a lost ball and one stroke penalty and the match ended when he took a 5 and Armstrong a 4.

SHOTTON IS VICTOR AT PINEHURST TRAPS

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 25.—Burton Edwin Shotton of Lakewood, Ohio, former star with the Browns, Senators and Cardinals, now manager of the Phillies, won the prize event of the twenty-second annual midwinter target tournament, the midwinter handicap, here today.

Shotton, competing in his first trapshooting event, broke ninety-six out of a hundred targets from the eighteen-yard mark. Until this week Shotton never had fired at as many as a hundred targets and his victory today was exceptionally popular.

Four shooters finished in a tie for second place with ninety-three. They were W. E. Sears of New Britain, Conn.; Frank Davis of Greenwood, Ohio; T. G. Cathan of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, and Karl Lamprecht of Carrington, Ohio.

The second half of the Sandhill special of 200 targets was also completed today, with a victory for C. A. Young of Springfield, Ohio, who won the Class AA trophy with 193.

In the final of the Pinehurst pedigree plan of shooting, C. A. Bogert of Sandusky defeated Young for first division honors. In the fifth division Mrs. Joseph Carr of Freehold, N. J., won from Sam Oldham of Philadelphia.

SEAMAN HANDBALL VICTOR.

Will Meet Schmookler in State Amateur Singles Final Today.

Jack Seaman and Mike Schmookler survived the semi-final round of the New York State amateur one-wall singles handball championship tournament at the Level Club last night.

Seaman, the defending champion representing the Trinity Club, turned back John Alello, West Side Y. M. C. A., 21-15, 21-6, while Schmookler, also of the Trinity Club, vanquished Al LaFarge, unattached, 14-21, 21-7, 21-13.

Seaman and Schmookler will meet in the final match of the tourney at the Level Club tomorrow afternoon.

TELL OF FAVORITISM TO JOHNSTON MEN

Oklahoma Highway Engineers Testify About Deals With Kin of Mrs. Hammonds.

TO HEAR GOVERNOR JAN. 31

Impeachment Court Resets Date for His Answer and Votes Two Additional Charges.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 25 (AP).—To Oklahoma's best known confidential secretary, who has caused many a Capitol visitor to cool his heels outside the Governor's inner sanctum, was assigned today a waiting rôle by the Legislative Committee inquiring into the intimate details of the administrative family of Henry S. Johnston, suspended Governor.

Mrs. O. O. Hammonds appeared before the House Investigating Committee, as she had been directed, only to be informed that other witnesses were ahead and instructed to return tomorrow.

The committee had spent much time striving to fathom the success of Reed Scott, Mrs. Hammond's brother, in selling road machinery to the State Highway Department, and the activities of her uncle, James W. Armstrong, as an attorney for a bonding company which underwrote successful bidders on highway contracts.

Three divisional engineers of the Highway Department, having supervision over groups of counties, testified before the committee that they had bought considerable amounts of machinery from the company that Scott represented, and through him. A fourth said he had not bought much machinery from Scott.

Says "Pull" Got the Business.

L. C. Barnard, of Oklahoma City, one of the engineers, replied in the affirmative when he was asked by Edward Box, attorney for the committee if it were not true that the salesman with the "best pull" got most of the highway business. He also answered "yes" when Box asked him if he did not understand that it was "better" to give Scott a share of the business.

T. P. Clonts of Muskogee, another engineer, said if he had his choice, he would not pick the maintenance men working under him. He said he did not feel at liberty to discharge any of the men.

E. J. Franklin of Tulsa, agent for a bonding company, testified he had employed Armstrong as his attorney.

"Was it after Jim Armstrong became spiritual and legal adviser to the Governor that you saw the necessity of hiring him for your attorney?" Box asked Franklin. Political enemies have declared that Armstrong and Johnston have a common interest in occultism.

"It was," was the reply.

"You saw an opportunity for business?"

"Yes, it was an opportunity," Franklin said.

Franklin repeated his testimony, given before a Senate committee, that he had contributed to a fund to employ attorneys for Johnston when impeachment threatened in 1927. Franklin said the contribution was solicited by a road contractor for whom he wrote bonds.

Doubts the 1927 Pay Rumors.

The Senate investigation into rumors that money was employed to persuade some Senators to vote to call off the 1927 legislative uprising languished today after a statement by H. T. Knight, House member and anti-administration leader, that he believed the rumors groundless. Knight had been named as a circulator of the rumors and appeared before the House committee yesterday.

Testimony that at the order of Mrs. Hammonds he had carried packages out of the Governor's office since the Legislature convened was given by Robert Snipes, messenger for the Governor. Snipes denied the packages contained State records, but said he did not know what they actually contained.

Resolving itself into a court of impeachment for a short time today, the Senate received two additional charges of impeachment voted against Johnston during the week. The court set Jan. 31 as the date for the suspended Governor's appearance to plead to the charges. He previously had been instructed to appear Monday, Jan. 28, to answer five charges accepted Monday, when the Senate suspended him. This instruction was unchanged.

FREUD PROTESTS TO MANIU.

Demands 'Redemption' of Rumanian Premier's Amnesty Pledge.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 25.—Professor Sigmund Freud, psychoanalyst, has challenged Dr. Julius Maniu, the new Rumanian Premier, to justify his claim to be the liberator of Rumania from political persecution.

Premier Maniu before the elections guaranteed amnesty to political offenders. As a result of many complaints that amnesty has not yet been carried out, Professor Freud, with two other Viennese professors and Wilhelm Ellenbogen, Socialist leader, signed and dispatched telegrams today to Dr. Maniu and to the Regency Council of Rumania, in the following terms:

"The Maniu party has declared the conditions obtaining in Rumania illegal and promised political amnesty. We are expecting to see immediate abolition of military courts, general amnesty and the release of Bujor and Stefanoff."

Bujor and Stefanoff are two Social Democrats of the Extreme Left, sentenced respectively to life and ten years' imprisonment under the dictatorial régime of former Premier Bratianu for conspiracy against the State.

JAILED FOR WHALEN CASE.

Visitor Gets Ten Days for Believing He Was a Policeman.

Albert Jean, 24 years old, of 89 Concord Street, Lawrence, Mass., after visiting speakeasies in South Street early yesterday morning, got the idea that he was a policeman.

"Send Commissioner Whalen down here to relieve me," Jean telephoned from South Ferry to the Old Slip Station at 3 o'clock in the morning. "Tell him to make it snappy, too, because I'm cold from patrolling this beat all night."

A patrolman was sent to arrest Jean for intoxication and disorderly conduct.

"That was a rather unreasonable request you made," said Magistrate Simpson later in the Tombs Court, when Jean was arraigned. "The Commissioner is a very busy man these days, what with regulating traffic and closing speakeasies."

"I spent all I had, $10, in those speakeasies down there," replied Jean when the magistrate told him he could pay a fine of $10 or serve ten days in the Tombs. "I'll have to do the ten days."

LOUISE DEETJEN MARRIED.

Montclair Girl Weds E. C. Hinck Jr., Ex-Mayor's Son.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Jan. 25.—Miss Louise Deetjen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Deetjen of 159 Park Street, and Ernest C. Hinck Jr., son of former Mayor and Mrs. Ernest C. Hinck, were married tonight in the Watchung Avenue Congregational Church by the Rev. James T. Lodge. A reception at the bride's home followed the ceremony.

Miss Margaret Deetjen was her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Randell H. Decker matron of honor. Her other attendants were Mrs. F. Murray Halpin of New York, Mrs. Christopher C. Hinck and Miss Margaret Jackson of Montclair and Miss Gertrude Pottle of Buffalo. Edwin Hinck was best man.

SCULPTURE PRIZE OFFERED.

Newcomb Cleveland Gives $1,000 to Encourage the Art.

The Society of Arts and Sciences will authorize today the National Sculpture Society to offer to its members on Feb. 1 a sculpture prize of $1,000, according to announcement yesterday. The award has been given by Newcomb Cleveland of Scarsdale, with the hope that it may encourage the cuse of sculpture in nature.

Paul Manship, a member of both the National Sculpture Society and the Society of Arts and Sciences, has been requested to present the formal offering of Mr. Cleveland's at the next meeting of the National Sculpture Society.

Koenig Goes to Florida Tonight.

Samuel S. Koenig, chairman of the New York Republican County Committee, and Mrs. Koenig will leave tonight for a three weeks' stay at Coral Gables, Fla. Mr. Koenig for many years has spent a Winter vacation in the Miami district and it was explained that his trip was arranged before it was known that President-elect Hoover would be at Miami Beach. Charles D. Hilles, National Committeeman, also will leave today for Florida on a vacation. It was said that he would call on Mr. Hoover.

upon after a personal survey of the garment centre by Mr. Whalen after the receipt of protests from merchants in the section, who said potential customers were being kept from their doors by the loiterers.

"I went up there and found that employes of a lot of the establishments in the section were spending their entire lunch period on the sidewalks, making appointments to meet their friends there and doing everything but holding meetings in the open air," said Mr. Whalen. "Something had to be done, so I established one-way sidewalks for two blocks and ordered ten policemen to keep things moving. If more are needed they will dispatched without delay."

Tests Plan as Theatregoer.

Last night Mr. Whalen deserted his post at the headquarters booth in Broadway near Forty-fifth Street in the early part of the evening to attend the theatre and test out the new rules from the viewpoint of "the average citizen who gets into a taxicab and takes his chance on the lights and the driver's intelligence." In his absence First Deputy Commissioner Philip D. Hoyt and Chief Inspector John O'Brien were in command.

There were no indications from early reports that the no turning, no parking rule would work any less smoothly than it has on other nights despite the unusually trying conditions. The army of 400 policemen detailed to control motor traffic and prevent jay-walking was not diminished and automobiles whizzed through the streets with the same speed and freedom they have enjoyed since last Monday. Despite the wet and slippery streets no accidents were reported.

Nor was there any difficulty late in the evening about dispatching the traffic from Madison Square Garden, where fifty policemen under Deputy Chief Inspector Coleman sent the 19,000 fight fans home at the rate of 1,000 a minute without a hitch in the new system. Commissioner Whalen arrived at the headquarters booth about 11 o'clock and expressed pleasure but no surprise at the facility with which automobiles arrived and departed at the Hotel Astor, where 3,000 attended the Beaux Arts ball.

Commissioner Directs Autos.

A few minutes before midnight the Commissioner, accompanied by Deputy Commissioner Hoyt, went to the south side of the intersection of Forty-fifth Street and Seventh Avenue and Broadway and remained there, assuming personal direction of the traffic until 12:20 A. M. He extended the no-turn system past midnight at this intersection and tried various periods of timing to determine which produced the speediest movement of traffic. During all of this time he was kept busy jumping nimbly this way and that to avoid passing trolley cars and automobiles.

He changed the timing finally from seventy seconds for north and southbound traffic and forty seconds for crosstown to periods of thirty seconds for each, but personally signaled chauffeurs of crosstown vehicles bearing costumed persons bound for the Beaux Arts Ball to leave the line and drive up to the Broadway entrance of the Astor. He did this to relieve the congestion at the Forty-fifth Street entrance.

"Tonight the new traffic regulations have had their severest test and have been proved 100 per cent satisfactory," he declared before leaving. "The traffic coming to the Beaux Arts Ball was moved at least twice as fast as in any preceding year."

Not a single new protest has been received against the plan, Mr. Whalen said, announcing that the only comment he had received in the last twenty-four hours was in a letter from a midtown restauranteur who said that although he had expected business to fall off, it actually had increased since the new rules were established.

STATION IN FLORIDA LINKED FOR HOOVER

FARM PROGRAM MONDAY

Jardine, McNary and Haugen Are Among Those Scheduled to Discuss Outlook for 1929.

Station WIOD, Miami Beach, Fla., has been added temporarily to the National Broadcasting Company's chain so that programs will be available for President-elect Hoover and his party during their present stay in Florida.

A similar policy was adopted last Summer when station WEBC at Superior, Wis., was added to the system in order that President Coolidge, who spent the Summer in Wisconsin, might have clear reception of programs of national interest.

Station WIOD is operated by the Wonderful Isle of Dreams Broadcasting Company and operates on a wave length of 241.8 meters, 1,240 kilocycles. Its power is 1,000 watts. The station, located on an island, is the most southerly transmitter on a national network.

Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Jardine is to be heard over WJZ's network Monday night in a forecast of what the American farmer may expect during 1929. Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon and Representative Gilbert O. Haugen, authors of the McNary-Haugen agricultural relief bill, will also be heard during this broadcast, which will be transmitted by a nationwide chain, beginning at 1:45 P. M. and continuing for one hour.

Other topics and the speakers scheduled are: "The Wheat Outlook," by W. F. Callender; "Potato Outlook," by J. P. Shepherd; "Corn Outlook," by C. F. Sarle; "Tobacco Outlook," by C. E. Gage; "Hog Outlook," by C. A. Burmeister; "Beef Cattle Outlook," by M. C. A. Whalin; "Dairy Outlook," by F. A. Bueschel; "Poultry Outlook," by Roy C. Potts, and a general discussion of the forecast by H. A. Olsen.

A dinner to David Goldberg, vice president of the Federal Fur Dyeing Corporation of America, at the Hotel Commodore, will be broadcast beginning at 11 o'clock tonight by WMCA and four affiliated stations. Mayor Walker, Senator Royal S. Copeland, Judge William T. Collins and United States District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle are among those scheduled to be heard. Entertainment is to be provided by a number of Broadway stars and orchestras.

Waite Hoyt, pitcher of the New York Yankees, will speak over WMCA at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon, telling how baseball players train for the "big season."

AYLESWORTH SHOWS RADIO BUSINESS RISE

States at Hearing That Annual Accounts of N. B. C. Reached $11,000,000 in 26 Months.

LENTZ ASSAILS ALLOCATION

Former Ohio Representative Says Public Service, Not Advertising, Should Be Considered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The art of radio broadcasting is just in its infancy, M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, told the House Merchant Marine Committee today. Substantial development had been made in the past two years, but he did not attribute this to anything the Federal Radio Commission had done for broadcasting.

His company, Mr. Aylesworth said, had been operating two years and two months, and during that time had a net loss of $290,000 without taking into consideration adequate depreciation charges.

When the work was taken over from the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Mr. Aylesworth testified, the active accounts [that is, receipts from advertisers who buy time] amounted to $160,000 a year, while at present they total more than $11,000,000 a year. Mr. Aylesworth said that wherever the National Broadcasting Company's programs have been started the sale of radio sets in the vicinity had doubled inside of thirty days.

He was cross-examined at length by Representative Davis of Tennessee on the relationship between his company and its advertisers and member stations of the National chain. He asserted that members of the chain art not compelled to take any special programs and that no minimum amount of time is stipulated.

He admitted that member stations are not supposed to take any other network programs. He explained that the National Broadcasting Company, in paying the American Telephone and Telegraph Company $2,000,000 a year for wire service to connect stations, does so on the basis of a sixteen-hour day. The connections are used only a few hours a day, he said, and if any station were allowed to take both networks there would be no profit in it for any one.

Answering members of the committee, Mr. Aylesworth said that he cannot hook up the wires of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the wires of the Western Union or the Postal companies.

The telephone company refuses to allow this hook-up because of patents held by the two companies, he explained. Mr. Aylesworth stated that in his judgment the telegraph wires cannot handle radio as well as the telephone wires.

Representative Davis stated during the cross-examination of Mr. Aylesworth that he was not hostile to chain programs, but that he thought they were a good thing for the country. However, he wanted to be "able to get" the National, Columbia and Independent programs.

Taking up the question of high power stations, Mr. Aylesworth pointed to the situation in New York City. He said that WEAF, located on Long Island about twenty miles from the city and having 50,000 watts power, is not heard as well in most parts of New York City as WOR of Newark, located only five miles from New York and operating on only 5,000 watts power. He denied that there is such a thing as "a national station."

He said, however, that the higher power stations on the National chain were doing a better job than the low-power stations.

Radio needs real regulation, Mr. Aylesworth said, but he refused to be drawn into saying whether he did or did not think the life of the Radio Commission, as an administrative body, should be continued another year. He said that he would want first to confer with members of the commission to see how they felt about it.

The reallocation plan, he told the committee, was made by the commission without any special thought or consideration for the chain stations.

John J. Lentz, former member of the House from Ohio, now president of Station WAIU of Columbus, today criticised the allocations of the Radio Commission.

Radio is a great educational institution, Mr. Lentz said, and should be used for service and not for advertising. Radio would improve the same as any other invention. The radio business, he said, will, before long, be reduced to common sense.

Army Surgeon General on Radio Tells How to Avoid Disease.

General Merritte W. Ireland, Surgeon General of the United States Army, cautioned persons contemplating trips to Oriental and tropical countries to be vaccinated against smallpox and visit their physicians before departing, in an address last night over WJZ.

General Ireland also warned persons who spend vacations in the country against typhoid, the germs of which may lurk in wells and roadside springs, telling his listeners to "be certain that you are protected against typhoid by vaccination before beginning your journey and be careful of the water you drink while away from home."

His address was the first of a series of thirty-six radio talks over WJZ under the auspices of E. R. Squibb & Sons. He reviewed what medical officials of the army have done to maintain a standard of health in that service and the application of those principles to the general health of the country.

A hundred years ago, he said, thirty-one men in every 1,000 in the army died of disease each year, but this rate has been lowered to about two men in every 1,000.

ADMITS CITIZENSHIP PLOT.

Convicted Man Reveals "Startling Corruption," Prosecutor Says.

Nathan Seidner, 43 years old, of 102 Norfolk Street, was convicted by a jury in Brooklyn Federal court yesterday on a charge of conspiring to violate the naturalization laws of the United States in connection with the admission to citizenship of Elias Schmalheiser.

After his conviction Seidner offered to reveal everything concerning his activities and was questioned by Assistant United States Attorney Wilkinson. When the questioning was over, Mr. Wilkinson hinted that other persons might be involved in illegal naturalization practices.

"The examination of Seidner reveals startling conditions of corruption," he said. "The interests of justice prevent us at this time from going into details and names. Seidner has spoken very freely. His statement will be investigated and criminal action will be taken against any persons found to be involved."

ORIENTAL RUGS AUCTIONED.

First Session of Quill Jones Sale Brings $35,222.

The first session of the Anderson Galleries' sale of Oriental rugs collected by Quill Jones of New York brought $35,222.50. The final session will be held this afternoon.

A seventeenth century Ispahan rug went to M. G. Madden for $3,000. Miss Counihan, agent, obtained a close-weave Feraghan rug for $2,800. M. G. Madden bought an unusual Kermanshah rug for $750 and an antique Karajah rug for $300.

E. S. Whitney paid $1,750 for a genuine Kermanshah, a rare early carpet of Western Persia.

RADIO CONFERENCE ENDS WITHOUT AGREEMENT

OTTAWA, Jan. 25 (AP).—The International Radio Conference on Intermediate Bands, which has been in session here for several days, closed tonight without coming to an agreement on allocation of wavelengths.

An eleventh-hour disagreement arose, it was said, which barred a definite decision on the matter at this time.

The conference was attended by delegates from Canada, the United States, Newfoundland and Cuba.

The delegates left for their respective capitals tonight to lay the matter before their governments.

While the agreement for a division of channels was delayed, officials of the department which has charge of radio for Canada made it clear that there was nothing approaching a deadlock. The United States delegates also indicated that satisfactory progress had been made. It was agreed that efforts would be made to issue a definite announcement of the conclusions reached not later than Feb. 1.

"In the consideration of the matters referred to Committee No. 2 new elements were introduced that, when submitted to the conference, made it appear desirable that the delegation should have an opportunity of consulting their respective governments before reaching definite or final conclusions.

"The discussions that took place at the plenary sessions were most harmonious and indicated a very earnest desire to divide the available short wave channels in a mutually satisfactory manner having regard to the public interests involved."

Committee No. 2 referred to was the one which dealt with divisions of bands between various services, and subdivisions of priority channels between the different countries.

Young Roosevelt Still Improves.

ALBANY, Jan. 25 (AP).—James Roosevelt, son of Governor Roosevelt, has shown "remarkable improvement," according to a bulletin issued today by his physician, Dr. W. L. Gorham. The boy has been ill since Sunday with pneumonia, contracted after an attack of influenza.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Debussy Club will hold a musicale on Sunday night in the concert hall of the Pythian Temple.

Irma de Daun is to sing at the Knights of Columbus charity ball on Feb. 5 in Madison Square Garden.

Ruth Breton, soubrette, has engaged the Gallo Theatre ensemble on Feb. 10 from an afternoon to an evening festival.

The National Opera Club has announced a contest for young artists for appearance in a Victor Herbert program at the Waldorf on March 17.

LENOX HILL PLAYERS GIVE EARLY RICE PLAY

Sophie Smith ..... Jane Hamilton
Mr. Smith ..... E. Brooks Dascomb
Mrs. Smith ..... Adaline Ruby
Annie Smith ..... Ryan Schwab
Tom Smith ..... Herman Shapiro
Eugene Bonn ..... Louis John Latzer
George Clark ..... Harry Jay Charles
Maxwell Burke ..... Eric Fallon
Robert Anderson ..... Peter Gwyn

Elmer Rice's recent return to playwriting celebrity with "Street Scene" occasioned a pilgrimage through the mud and slush of Greenwich Village last night to the tiny Cherry Lane Theatre. There the Lenox Hill Players gave a showing of one of Mr. Rice's earlier plays, "The Subway." It was written in 1923, soon after the production of "The Adding Machine," and by the author's own admission he has been assiduously trying to get it produced ever since.

In making his program confession of "The Subway's" fruitless adventures among the Broadway managers, Mr. Rice also commends the Lenox Hill Players for undertaking so difficult and intricate a production. An episodic tragedy of the machine age, it last night taxed the resources of the Cherry Lane to the breaking point. One of the scenes, supposed to depict the interior of a subway train, collapsed completely and, after considerable delay, was omitted. The others, while somewhat shakily managed, were executed simply and with a good deal of shrewdness, particularly the interludes at the movies and in an underground station.

As a piece of writing "The Subway," like the production, is somewhat uncertain. It is a mixture of the literal, of what, with an easy application of labels, is called expressionism and impressionism and of the purely theatric. It has several scenes of high individual excellence, notably two soliloquies in the unhappy young heroine's bedroom and the episode in the motion picture theatre. But like some of the less trains of its namesake, it manages to get nowhere in particular aside from retailing the dolorous history of its central figure.

Like the young woman of "Machinal" earlier in the season, she is seeking happiness as well as liberation from the confining towers of steel and stone and the mad, surging vortex of humanity that is metropolitan existence. But she attempts other means to achieve them than did the murderess of Mr. Hopkins's tragedy. A submissive creature, she yields to the advances of an artist who aids her when she has a fainting spell in the subway and becomes his mistress. But that proves happiness of a very transitory sort. She is pictured as a decent, naive, sensitive, over-eager girl, and when she has abandoned her simple, middle-class code and has found that the artist can offer no compensatory return she chooses death by jumping in front of an underground train. Thus the subway that has been so inextricably bound up in the hopes and aches and dreams and sorrows of her existence provides the means of escape from it.

As it emerges on the Cherry Lane stage this is not the impersonal tragedy of a weak cog in the great city's machine that Mr. Rice seems to have intended it to be, but the strictly personal one of Sadie Smith set against the background of the city's noise and jumble and the crazy-quilt of its confusion. The play has considerable poignancy, but it does not have, at this date, the vividness and individuality that the author doubtless intended to give it.

The amateur professionals of the company did as well with it as possible. Playing Sadie Smith, Jane Hamilton, in particular, gave a sincere and always intelligent portrayal.

There were reports late last night that "The Subway" might soon be brought uptown. So it is possible that Mr. Rice will after all achieve, via Greenwich Village, his Broadway production.

$24,000 FOR ACTORS' FUND.

Annual Benefit a Success Despite the Storm.

Despite the storm, practically every seat was occupied at yesterday afternoon's annual benefit performance of the Actors' Fund of America at Jolson's Theatre. It was estimated that the receipts, including program revenue, would amount to $24,000.

Those who appeared included Will Rogers, who announced, among other things, that Fred Stone will leave for Florida this morning, and that Mr. Stone would be able to dance as well as act on his return.

Others on the bill were Ruth Draper, who gave her "Scotch Immigrant at Ellis Island" number; Ethel Barrymore, who praised Daniel Frohman's work and gave impersonations of Elsie Janis and Cecilia Loftus; George Gershwin, who played his "Rhapsody in Blue"; Fannie Ward, who announced from the stage her exact age, 60, but said she felt like 20; Loney Haskell, who was master of ceremonies; Bill Robinson, Jack Hazzard, Thais Lawton, Dorothy Stone, E. H. Sothern, Eddie Cantor, Irene Franklin and Robert Halliday.

The last act of "The Likes of 'Er" and a sketch entitled "The Red Hat," by Elaine Sterne Carrington, were also presented.

Emily Roosevelt in Recital.

Emily Roosevelt, distant cousin of a distinguished family, appeared as dramatic soprano at Steinway Hall last evening. Accompanied by Richard Hageman, she was heard in airs from Handel's "Agrippina," arranged by Frank Bibb, and from "Forza del Destino" and "Carmen." To these Miss Roosevelt added lyrics of Scarlatti and Sibella, Hugo Wolf and Pfitzner, Widor, Deems Taylor and a half-dozen Americans. The tall, fair-haired singer was said to have made her début in Boston recently in choral festivals and with the Philadelphia Civic Opera. Her naturally opulent voice was used with clear and even legato in the little hall, which was filled with a gala audience, as the anterooms were with flowers.

Rockefeller Fever Offer Signed.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 25 (AP).—A contract was signed today by Dr. Fred Soper, Chief of the Rockefeller Foundation Service in Brazil, and Dr. Clementino Braga, director of the Public Health Service for cooperation in wiping out yellow fever in Brazil. The contract provides that the foundation furnish half of the money and all of the personnel for the fight in Northern Brazil, while the Health Department continues its work in the South.

Twenty-five cases were reported in Rio de Janeiro in January, despite the fact that 2,500 men have been working for months to destroy the breeding places of mosquitoes.

GALLI-CURCI AS VIOLETTA.

Sings Role for First Time—Greeted by Crowded House.

Mme. Galli-Curci was greeted by a house sold out to hear her in "La Traviata," the operatic "Camille," at the Metropolitan last evening, when she sang her first Violetta with Lauri-Volpi, Basiola and others, under the baton of Serafin. This was the fourth of the older operas afforded by the prima donna's brief midwinter stay in New York. Unlike "The Barber," "Lucia" and "Rigoletto," it had not waited her return, having twice been in the season's earlier bills on Broadway. Galli-Curci, in crinoline, gave to its old-fashioned romance her accustomed delicacy and distinction. She sang her principal airs with caution, due to a cold, and she did not "die robustly," as many heroines of yesteryear, but rather as one whose heritage matched some of Verdi's tenderest dramatic music in the tragic finale. Basiola had his recall after the "Di Provenza," and Galli-Curci brought Lauri-Volpi out also for the tenor's well-earned ovation.

SIR ALFRED BUTT HERE.

May Arrange to Take Some Broadway Shows to London.

Sir Alfred Butt, member of Parliament and managing director of several London theatres, arrived yesterday in the White Star liner Homeric to see what Broadway shows are worth taking to England. Sir Alfred said London's musical shows and picture houses were doing well. "Show Boat," which he has been producing at Drury Lane Theatre, has been a big success.

"We are making $2 the top price for seats in the new Dominion Theatre, which will offer as high a type of musical show as any other theatre in London," he said.

Clara Lang, Soprano, Heard.

Clara Lang, soprano, announced as returning from some years abroad, made her bow in a recital of soprano songs last evening at the Engineering Auditorium, assisted by Loretta O'Connell at the piano. To a four-language program from Italian, German, French and Russian composers she added a final pair of lyrics by the late Charles T. Griffes. Miss Lang before leaving America had been heard with the San Carlo Opera Company. She is said to be one of the original Juilliard scholarship holders in New York. Despite excess tremolo in Bizet's "Pearl Fishers" air, she sang with musical taste and graceful manner in lyrics such as Franck's "Mariage des Roses."

Emma Otero in Recital Again.

Emma Otero, a young soprano, whom the President of Cuba asked Beniamino Gigli in Havana to introduce to the public in New York, made her second appearance here yesterday with R. E. Johnston's soloists at the Biltmore, as previously she had at the Waldorf with the Rubenstein Club. In a fresh, bright voice and unspoiled manner, she sang the familiar airs from "Dinorah" and "The Barber," encoring the latter with the Spanish "Clavelitos" of Galli-Curci's repertoire. Sharing yesterday's program were Alberto Salvi, the harpist, and Louis Graveure.

To Revive "The Black Crook."

"The Black Crook," the famous old extravaganza, will be revived on Washington's Birthday by Christopher Morley, Cleon Throckmorton, Conrad Milliken and Harry Wagstaff Gribble at the forty-three-year-old Lyric Theatre, Hoboken, which this group has recently acquired. The revival of Ben Boucicault's "After Dark" will be continued at the old Rialto Theatre, Hoboken.

Mabima Players Open at Mansfield.

The Mabima Players began an engagement last night at the Mansfield Theatre in their version of Carlo Gozzi's "Princess Turandot," which they presented for one performance at the Manhattan Opera House recently. The Mabima group made its first American appearance at the Mansfield two seasons ago.

Erna Rubinstein, Violinist, Plays.

Erna Rubinstein, the violinist, played to an overflowing audience as guest in the People's Symphony "artists' course" last night in the spacious hall of Washington Irving High School. Her program comprised Cesar Franck's sonata and Bruch's concerto, with later works of Tchaikovsky and Kreisler.

Walker Whiteside Ill.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 25 (AP).—For the first time in ten years, Walker Whiteside, stage star, failed to show up for a performance last night. He was suffering from a cold. He is appearing here in "The Royal Box." He is expected to return to the cast tonight.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Meet the Prince" is the title of the A. A. Milne play, previously called "To Have the Honor," in which Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis will soon appear.

"Mrs. Moonlight," a play by Benn W. Levy now on view in London, will be produced here by Charles Hopkins. Leon Quartermaine leads the London cast.

Extra matinees of "Street Scene" will be given on Thursday afternoons during February, March and April.

Lucille La Verne announces that she will proceed with her plan of presenting special matinees of "The Merchant of Venice." She will play Shylock.

A Parisian production of Rachel Crothers's play, "Mary the Third," will be made next month.

"The Subway," which opened last night at the Cherry Lane Theatre, will give Sunday night performances, starting tomorrow. It will not be played on Mondays.

"Indiscretion," Myron C. Fagan's play, will open tonight in Great Neck.

The Empire Theatre, where "The Age of Innocence" is the attraction, celebrated its thirty-fifth birthday last night. The house opened on Jan. 25, 1893, with "The Girl I Left Behind Me." The late Wallace Eddinger appeared in the cast as a child actor.

Kay Cartier will replace John Vosburgh in "The Guinea Pig" at the President on Monday night.

"Café de Danse," "The Wild Duck" and "The Parson's Bride" will close tonight.

CRUISERS AND SEA LAW.

Senator BORAH, in proposing an amendment to the cruiser bill, used an adroit mixture of benevolence and truculence. He urges a recodification of the law of the sea, especially as respects the conduct and rights of belligerents and neutrals in time of war, and proposes that this work be begun, doubtless by an international conference, before it is necessary to decide upon the renewal of the Washington Treaty of 1921-22. What the Senator desires, and in this position he is heartily supported by Secretary KELLOGG, is an agreement with Great Britain upon a new code governing war on the ocean. As Mr. BORAH justly remarks, there have been many signs of a willingness on the part of English public men to take up this old dispute afresh, in the hope of discovering a settlement which will make it easier for all nations with sea power to limit their naval armaments. American willingness to confer and negotiate to this end is to be officially stated in Senator BORAH'S amendment to the cruiser bill, which was at once accepted by Senator HALE in charge of it.

Should England not follow up the advance which she herself has made, and show herself stubbornly opposed to the American contention about the rights of neutrals, Mr. BORAH is ready to go every necessary length in order to challenge the British claim to command of the sea. He would tear up the Washington Treaty, build no end of battleships and cruisers, and inform the proud British that we are prepared to employ to the full our superior financial and industrial resources in order to wrest from them the control of the sea in wartime. Possibly the Idaho Senator said these things mainly for home consumption and for influence upon the Senate. But they certainly will have their effect abroad. This will be all the more the case coming from a Senator who has been willing to go to all lengths in outlawing war, who closed his speech about the Kellogg treaty with eloquent declarations that it is impossible to settle international controversies by force, and who would be the last man that England might suspect of taking up her old doggerel:

We don't want to fight,
But, by Jingo, if we do,
We've got the men, we've got the ships,
We've got the money, too.

When Senator BORAH got down from generalities to details, he realized that there are and must be certain limitations on "the freedom of the seas." His strong assertion of neutral rights was qualified by the statement that the neutral flag should make neutral goods, "except "when ships are carrying munitions "of war or are attempting to run a "blockade, which must not be a pa- "per blockade." There we come upon the very core of the difficulty. Neutrals admit that they can be stopped by belligerent vessels, for carrying contraband, but who is to define contraband? Under modern conditions of war, with a whole nation in arms, almost anything imported — cotton, for example — can be regarded as a direct means of carrying on war.

The Declaration of London, which was not ratified by the British Parliament, attempted to make out a complete list of contraband. In fact, when the war broke out, the British Admiralty expressed for a time its willingness to abide by that list, although not bound to do so. But later it had to confess that the plan had broken down. So the whole question of defining contraband will have to be gone into anew and thoroughly by such an international conference as Senator BORAH suggests. Much the same may be said of the rights and responsibilities of a blockading fleet. The old ideas of blockade have been greatly modified by modern conditions. A blockade may be maintained by ships of war today, and may be effective, five hundred miles off the port or coast blockaded. Is such a blockade legal under international law?

Here are two thorny subjects which Senator BORAH'S international conference will have to grasp. They are serious and complicated enough. This is no reason why they should not be taken up and a restatement of the law of the sea arrived at, if possible. But, plainly, the thing is no child's play. It cannot be done offhand or overnight. It certainly cannot be disposed of by a single speech of a single Senator of the United States.

UNIVERSAL PROTECTION.

Farmers are having their day before the House Ways and Means Committee. Strongly they seek farm relief through the tariff. Representative SELVIG of Minnesota expressed a view of agricultural protection horrifying to champions of the industrial breed. Farmers want high protection for their stuff, in the case of live stock and meat products as much as an increase of 100 per cent; but they are as hard as nails against any increase of duties on manufactures that would swell the farmers' costs. They want to get a good deal without giving much. They may be right enough in that, for they feel that hitherto the manufacturer has been the beneficiary, largely at the farmer's expense. What will the unrelieved industrialists think of this?

As the consumer looks at all these steeper rates on meats and dairy products, potatoes, and so on, his pocketbook begins to ache. This anxiety is unnecessary. Gravely said the Colorado spokesman of the live stock growers, after enumerating proposed rates fatter than it is given to cattle or fat to be, the duties asked for "should not increase prices to the consumer." Retailers can afford to and must be satisfied with a small profit. In other words, everybody that has a hand in the food business after the producer has had his share will be self-denying, moderate and good, just as Senator MCCUMBER admonished the protective manufacturers to be under his tariff. The consumer knows how much this sort of thing is worth. A New York chain-of-retail-meat-stores man was rude enough to say that meat prices are already the highest on record. What of it? Let him take less profit or sell at a loss. The farmer must be relieved through the tariff. Somebody must be relieved of more money. Of course it won't be the consumer; or if it is, cheap meat, and even cheap cheese, makes a cheap man.

The subtleties of high-tariff political economy are admirably illustrated by these hearings in Washington. The show of discordance between the farmer and the manufacturer will doubtless disappear in a compromise by which both sides will get substantially what they want. What will the consumer get? "Stung!"

THE BEST AVIATOR OF 1928.

In awarding the honor of "the best aviator in the world in 1928" the International League of Aviators had two splendid achievements to consider. One was the non-stop flight of Captain (now Colonel) ARTURO FERRARIN from Rome to Brazil. The other was the crossing of the Pacific from California to Australia by Captain CHARLES KINGSFORD-SMITH and three companions. These were the outstanding performances of the year. Major DEL PRETE flew with FERRARIN, but died after arriving in Brazil of injuries received while testing a plane at the Rio de Janeiro School of Aviation. Colonel FERRARIN won the award at Paris by a margin of only two votes. The decision was probably rendered on the ground that the Italians had broken the record for a non-stop flight over land and sea, flying in a single-motor plane 4,417 miles in 51 hours and 59 minutes.

Captain KINGSFORD-SMITH used a three-motor plane, equipped with a workable radio set, on his flight with another Australian and two Americans from Oakland to Brisbane. The stages were 2,400 miles to Hawaii, 3,130 miles to Suva, Fiji Islands, and then 1,700 miles to the Australian coast, 7,230 miles in all. At the stopping places sufficient time was taken for rest and to tune up the engines. A running story of the flight was given by radio most of the way across. A very bad storm was encountered on the other side of the Pacific, and the voyage was a triumph for the three-motor machine. The stage from Hawaii to Suva was especially trying, for the ocean was empty of ships and a forced descent would have been fatal. The performance of the Southern Cross proved that the Pacific could be navigated from the United States to Australia and Asia by airplanes. The passage from Hawaii to Suva was a brilliant piece of work, more than 3,000 miles in one of the loneliest seas in the world.

Commercial aviation gained impressively by the success of the Southern Cross. It must be admitted that flying 4,417 miles across the Mediterranean, through coastal Tunis, Algeria and Morocco, and finishing with 2,000 miles over the Atlantic without a stop was a great adventure. But the same may be said of the passage of the Pacific by the Southern Cross. Which air voyage would the professional aviator prefer to make?

SPRING CLEANING FOR NEW YORK.

If the Committee of Twenty on Street Conditions and Sanitation has its way, New York City will have a real Spring cleaning this year. Odorous garbage, ashes scattered to the four winds from carts, litter blowing about the streets and parks—all these are an old story to New Yorkers. They have become accustomed to the condition, and it is hard to arouse them to effective protest against it. Dr. BERNARD SACHS, backed by the Academy of Medicine in his campaign for clean streets, thinks that a little "vigorous treatment" would help, such as Commissioner WHALEN has been administering to the traffic problem lately. Mayor WALKER, who admits that the filth in the streets often makes him blush, has promised his cooperation.

It is a big job, but not a hopeless one. There are hundreds of square miles of pavement within the boundaries of the city to keep clean. Some one has calculated that if all the ashes and rubbish and garbage and dead animals in a year's collection were dumped in City Hall Park it would make a mountain higher than the Woolworth Building. Against it the "white wing," inherited from a day when machinery had not reached its present development, can make but little headway, even with the best intentions and the most industrious use of his homely instruments.

At present New York has "neither adequate equipment and "methods for the collection of its "refuse, nor for disposing of that "refuse, nor a comprehensive plan "of administration of the work." All three are sadly needed—up-to-date street-cleaning machinery, a less crude method of disposing of garbage than dumping it in the bay, better coordinated measures of sanitation.

OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD.

His life was full of achievement, and there is little doubt that if Senator UNDERWOOD had not come from the South he would have been the nominee of his party for President in 1912. Because of his management of the tariff, financial and prohibition issues he had the confidence of the business interests of the East and North; and on one memorable occasion in the House of Representatives he had shown—long before the Baltimore convention—that his career could not be checked by Mr. BRYAN. Of all the great occasions in which he was the central figure, the one which most clearly revealed his talents and his courage was his reply to Mr. BRYAN'S attack on the Underwood tariff bill of 1911. The House was full of such Bryan idolators as OLLIE M. JAMES of Kentucky, but when Mr. UNDERWOOD had finished that repudiation and denunciation—the more effective because of its moderation, the more crushing because of its understatement of controverted facts—the members rose cheering almost to a man and confirmed his leadership.

So gifted with personal charm was Senator UNDERWOOD, so renowned for justice, charity and integrity, that he was able for ten years, both in the House and in the Senate, to give a semblance of cohesion to an essentially divided group of fellow-partisans. He never remitted for an instant his outspoken devotion to three principles that guided his entire public career. These were: a belief that it was best for the country if one's opponent were given credit for praiseworthy acts; a Jeffersonian opposition to sumptuary laws, and proscription, such as the Ku Klux Klan represents; and a will to join hands with the other side to achieve a useful purpose, such as world peace. Senator UNDERWOOD refused to accept the reservations offered to the Covenant of the League of Nations and to the very end of that struggle stood with the unyielding President in the White House. But there are ample private records which explain why Mr. UNDERWOOD, himself thrice skilled in adjusting disputes between parties where honorable compromise is possible, stood for the last dotting of the i's and the last crossing of the t's of the Treaty of Versailles. To at least one friend he said:

> The President is absolutely committed against the slightest word of reservation, and if I as the Senate leader should move for any he would feel that I had betrayed the pledge of the head of my party and my country solemnly given to the nations of the earth. Also I am convinced, from a parliamentary standpoint, that the more we Democrats yield to the irreconcilables the more determined they will be to drop all talk of reservations and reject completely.

The time came when Mr. UNDERWOOD was able to gratify his wish to help make peace, and the fact that the opportunities were offered by two Republican Presidents—HARDING and COOLIDGE—confirms his habit of ignoring party position to that great end. He was able to assure ratification of the Washington Disarmament Conference treaties, which he had helped to negotiate. But this act piled almost the last weight of party disfavor on his head. Alabama showed every sign of intending to defeat him for re-election because of his steadfast opposition to prohibition and the Ku Klux Klan, and Democratic Senators who felt that he had sacrificed a party advantage by participating in the arms conference were prepared to contest his re-election as leader. Weary of the battle without reward, he renounced aspirations both to the Senatorship and the leadership, and after the Madison Square convention of 1924 failed to nominate him for the Presidency, retired to private life and the writing of political philosophy. No man who ever knew Senator UNDERWOOD needs to be told that he retired without rancor, serene in the contemplation of a succession of important public achievements that has not often been paralleled.

His party, his State, had turned from him; his birthright as the descendant of one of the historic families of the South had proved a bar to the Presidency; his politics had impelled many powerful Republicans to tell him that if he had been one of them nothing would have been denied him. To one such he said, with that singularly sweet and gentle smile which was his characteristic: "JEFFERSON settled all that for me a hundred years before I was born."

VERDICTS FOR VIOLATIONS.

The fate of the prosecution in two recent cases based on violation of the prohibition laws would seem to point the way for the Department of Justice. A jury in Federal Judge THOMAS'S court quickly found TOMMY GUINAN guilty, apparently convinced that the "nuisance" charge was sustained. In the case against JAMES MOORE Federal Judge THACHER dismissed the action on the ground that, while liquor had probably been sold, MOORE as proprietor was not aware of the violation.

To some extent this answers the question how far New York will go in helping to enforce the Volstead act. Juries obviously will not convict on the trumped-up "conspiracy" charge, devised by Mrs. WILLEBRANDT, and socking to make a felony of two misdemeanors. Nor will juries or courts here visit serious penalties upon proprietors of restaurants in the face of honest doubt of their guilt. But both juries and courts will aid the government in any reasonable procedure against flagrant violators of the law, and will sustain the "nuisance" charge when proved. This in itself carries the alternative of fine or imprisonment, and either is serious enough. Of course, in so large a city as this, with a population generally opposed to prohibition, it is impossible to keep a closed speakeasy from reopening somewhere else under another name, and a few daring proprietors will continue to attempt to mask their identities.

The widespread statements that have been made elsewhere in the United States, often by men and women in public life, that New York is a lawless city and will condone any prohibition violation are proved untrue. New York juries and, we hope, New York courts, will no more permit a liquor-law violator to be convicted of a felony than they would send to life imprisonment the purloiner of a loaf of bread. But they will seek to make the punishment fit the crime in the light of a civilized conception of the gravity of the crime itself.

OUR ARGENTINIAN VISITORS.

Educational exchanges have for the most part followed East and West lines. The cultural influences of Southern Europe have, however, also passed through the tropics and found fertile and extensive territory below the equator and its later exchanges have followed chiefly the sea paths of the pioneers. It is significant, therefore, that a group of educators have come all the way from Argentina to acquaint themselves at first hand with what is going forward in the United States in the varied fields of teaching. Among them is Dr. ERNESTO NELSON, Supervisor of Secondary Education, with three doctors of medicine to inquire into methods of instruction in the medical schools, three doctors of chemistry, and an electrical engineer, besides professors of pedagogy, English history and other university subjects, and teachers in the elementary and secondary schools.

While young men and women have come from South America to study in our universities, this is, so far as is remembered, the first considerable group of teachers that has come. They have distinguished precedent. Over eighty years ago, Dr. SARMIENTO visited the educational institutions of Europe and America and was especially influenced by HORACE MANN. Returning to Argentina, he succeeded in establishing a Department of Education, of which he later became Minister. He came back to America again in 1865 as Minister to the United States and remained till 1868, when he was chosen President of the Argentine Republic. During his administration he gave first attention to education. One of his books had to do with "The Schools, the Basis of Prosperity in the United States." Another was a life of ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The coming of this group adds new strands to the early tenuous connections established by one man, and gives promise of a closer cultural relationship along North and South lines. It is not a one-sided exchange as is manifested by the coming of a Justice of the Appellate Court of Argentina, a Dr. ALFREDO COLMO, as a "visiting professor," to give a course of lectures at Columbia University. The educational entente has a basis of interest each in the other, without which it could not flourish.

WHY EXCLUDE FILIPINOS?

The introduction of a bill to exclude from the United States all citizens of the Philippines who are ineligible to American citizenship raises a number of delicate and important questions. The purpose of Mr. JOHNSON is to meet the demand of his constituents on the Pacific Coast that Filipino laborers, who have been coming to the United States in increasing numbers, be placed in the same category as other Orientals. It is argued that the same reasons which were advanced against the Chinese and Japanese immigrants—that the conflict of standards of living and the differences of racial customs and traditions between the whites and the Orientals are incompatible—apply to the Filipinos. It is true that the Filipinos belong to the Malay race, whose traditions and customs were originally Asiatic, and whose standards of living differ greatly from those of the native Americans.

But there is another factor of utmost importance. The Filipinos, while not American citizens, live under the American flag. Their islands are an essential part of the outlying possessions of the United States. They have for years enjoyed free trade with the United States, and the right of free movement to Hawaii and to the American mainland. Even though the Philippines have never been formally declared to be territory of the United States in the same sense as are the Hawaiian Islands and Alaska, yet they belong to the United States, which is responsible for their welfare and protection.

It would be otherwise, of course, if the Philippines were independent, or under alien domination. But to raise the issue of the exclusion of Filipinos under the present relationship between the United States and its insular possessions is to risk reopening the entire question of the exclusion of Orientals, and at the same time to rouse resentment in the Philippines. The Filipinos may well ask why the United States, which insists on treating them as wards, suddenly decides to deny them the right of free entry to the American mainland which as citizens of an American protectorate they have always enjoyed.

Whatever the action on Mr. JOHNSON'S bill, the mere fact that it was introduced should serve as a warning to the Filipinos that they cannot expect to retain special privileges in the United States if they achieve independence. Already the friends of the Philippines are fighting to protect them from those who not only would exclude their citizens but also their products from this country. If such a fight is necessary while the American flag still flies in the islands, it is obvious that when that flag is withdrawn it will be impossible to win a special relationship for the Philippines.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Broadcasting Across the Ocean.

"Technical difficulties" are given as the explanation why the exact date in March when programs given in England will be broadcast in this country cannot yet be named. Ever since the attempt to broadcast an English program here four years ago, scientists have been working on perfecting the means of transmission and eliminating interference and fading.

The records of speeches and concerts picked up at the uttermost ends of the earth are already so many that there is no doubt as to the feasibility of the project. Of greater interest is the attitude of American audiences toward the British programs.

Already there are complaints in England that the broadcasting companies there devote too much time to jazz and other American forms of entertainment. It is easy to imagine the criticism that will arise if and when our own stations broadcast regularly to Europe. Already we have debauched the taste of Europeans by our movies, our horn rimmed spectacles, our chewing gum and our ice-cream sodas. Are we to add the crowning affront of so filling the air with our own radio programs that there will be no place this side of Mars where a man can rest in peace?

The Orient in Oklahoma.

If any one remained to doubt that this is a great country some of the proceedings in the impeachment trial of Governor JOHNSTON of Oklahoma would confound him. For the latest testimony purports to show that mystic Hindu rites were practiced by persons close to the Governor and powerful in his counsels. One might as readily expect to hear of a Buddhist temple in Dayton, Tenn.

It was Mr. SULLIVAN, an assistant to the Governor, from whom this esoteric fact was extracted. He had paid a visit to the apartments of JAMES ARMSTRONG, Governor JOHNSTON'S chief political adviser and uncle of his secretary, Mrs. HALLMONDE, who is supposed also by the legislators to be too influential. Mr. ARMSTRONG, in the heart of free Oklahoma, was in a bedroom "draped with Oriental splendor in yellow, and was lighting five pots of incense." Was he chanting? an investigator asked. Mr. SULLIVAN parried that, but some sort of humming incantation was finally agreed upon.

Oklahoma has had its sorrows; first with the Indians, then with the train robbers and bad men, then with the oil riggers, and finally with its Constitution and its public officers. But all these have related to honest homicide or plain stealing or foolish political nostrums. It seems too heavy a burden for this breezy American State to be the site of the worship of Shiva and Krishna. And for Democrats in long black coats and five-gallon hats to be the celebrants is a grief indeed.

Unrecognized Eye Trouble of Children.

Most parents try to keep close watch of the health of their children. Modern child study lays stress on the building of a sturdy physique, and proper diet, rest and play are among the important points to watch. Until a child starts to school his eyesight receives little attention unless trouble is plainly seen, and sometimes even after he enters his vision is disregarded. The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness is anxious for parents to have the eyes of children of pre-school age examined, as it has been found that many defects becoming troublesome later might have been found and cured by early treatment.

One boy, attractive and intelligent, was described by his first teacher as hopelessly incompetent. His parents were puzzled and unhappy about his surprising dullness, but it never occurred to them that it was caused by defective vision. When he was by chance shifted to another class the new teacher suspected the cause of the difficulty. After he had been correctly fitted with glasses he had no further trouble in keeping up with his comrades.

New methods for the examination of very young children's eyes have been found practicable. If parents will avail themselves of this addition to optometric knowledge many children will be spared needless suffering from eye trouble.

Improving the Commuter's Mind.

If all the hours that a commuter spends shuttling from home to work and back again were laid end to end they might not reach a figure as high as the Woolworth Building, but they amount to a considerable total, even during a three months' period. One hundred to 200 hours is entirely too much time to be frittered away in idle talk or in card-playing, in the opinion of California educators. So several schools in the southern part of the State have combined to offer courses in a Commuters' School.

It is open to all who ride on the Pacific Electric Railway. The fees are low, $18 for a three months' course, for which the student may take nine months, if he likes. Payments are made in three instalments. The text-books are small and easily carried and each day's assignment comes in loose-leaf form. Tests consist of printed questions to be answered by marking a cross in a column.

The subjects taught are selected with an eye to the suburbanite's interests—home building, gardening and real estate. Other courses to help the commuter at the other end of his journey are advertising, English, personal leadership, salesmanship and stenography.

The railway company should find the new school a benefit in keeping its passengers contented, even though trains should be blocked and service lag. There is a danger, however, that its student-passengers may advance so rapidly in wisdom and wealth that they will graduate from the commuters' class and leave the trains empty.

No Such Society.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Hearst selects in his telegram to Edwin J. Clapp what he thinks a strong crutch to lean on—"The Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church." But at the general convention of the Episcopal Church, held in Washington, October, 1928, it was resolved "that the House of Bishops formally and officially disavow the existence of the Church Temperance Society as an official organization of the Church." To quote Mr. Hearst: "I modestly put the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church first." First or last it would have been more expedient for all concerned if Mr. Hearst had made another selection for "first" place. I feel quite sure the Episcopal Church does not seek or wish notoriety through Mr. Hearst.

CONCERNING GARDENS.

Here is where she planted the seed:
Go through the gate, walk three paces,
Past the maple into the corner,
By the fence where the sun comes up;
She planned for rosettes of buttercup
And the prideish ruff of Queen Anne's laces.

Nobody ever thought to warn her
She must do more than water and weed
With one eye on the garden gate
And both ears pricked to hear its creaking,
And one eye on the curl of lane,
And one hand smoothing her Sunday dress.

Nobody warned her that unless
She stopped her mooning and stopped her seeking
For some one who'd never come again,
The posies would scorn to bloom; too late
She learned that silly tears were not Meant to water a garden plot.

She wrung her hands, but what could she do?
Nothing blossomed but dusty rue.

ANTARCTIC NEWS OF VALUE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a geographer and geologist permit me to commend THE TIMES'S day-by-day publication of dispatches from Commander Byrd and to call attention to the significance such news has in a quarter that, to my knowledge, has not been referred to specifically.

Of course the development of radio communication makes it possible to get news instantaneously from an exploring party at the far end of the earth in 1928-29 for the first time in history. It is, further, remarkable that the development of radio science should have coincided so closely with that of aeronautics. The airplane now enables the explorer in one day to make observations that in the past would have been possible only through a season's work; the radio enables him to report discoveries as quickly as they are made.

It is probably safe to assume that this airplane-radio wonder is generally appreciated and that the messages from Byrd as they appear in THE TIMES are giving the world a new thrill. But I question whether you and your readers are fully aware of the epic quality of the coordinated performance; achievement—communication—publication that comes from the fact that it is the Antarctic which is being explored.

At the furthest pole of the earth is a continent with territories extending over areas twice and perhaps three times as great as those of all the land of the United States. We only know about portions of the outer border of this continent, about a spot at its centre and about two narrow traces leading to that spot. If all goes well, as thanks to competence, planning and equipment it promises to do, we are to be permitted to participate daily in the progress of the business of making vast regions of this continent a known part of the world.

Suppose Livingstone and Stanley could have proceeded and reported thus on Africa, or Peary on his travels in the Arctic! We would have wished to read, and could well have afforded to read, tens of thousands of words of their narration, whereas reading briefly in a book of the thing accomplished is more of a task than an enticement. Thus I come indirectly to the main point of this letter. Every class in geography in the elementary and upper schools should participate in this drama, be moved by its suspense element, and be incited by such participation to become generally proficient in geographic studies. In all probability no similar or comparable opportunity will be available to students of geography for years to come. Accordingly I am urging that you call specific attention to this privilege which THE TIMES dispatches afford the geography classes of 1929 and 1930.

As you know, the American Geographical Society has published a four-sheet wall map of the Antarctic. This map combined and mounted on cloth should be hung in all school rooms where geography is being taught. As discoveries are reported they should be added to the map, with notation of the date.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read your editorial "Hearing Byrd" with great interest because I had been so shocked to note the lack of applause in a Broadway theatre over the marvelous wonder of that transmitted message from Commander Byrd's expedition. I feel sure you will be glad to know that in an East Side motion picture theatre, where I saw the same Fox movietone, the applause was instantaneous and prolonged enough to satisfy the most thrilled and enthusiastic witness.

PNEUMONIA SERUM.

Dr. Wynne Tells Limitations of Health Department's Supply.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The success attending the serum treatment of pneumonia has led to such a large demand on the Department of Health laboratories that I feel compelled once more to announce that the serum cannot be supplied to private cases.

The impression prevails that the refined anti-pneumococcus serum now being produced in the department's laboratories is a specific for all forms of pneumonia. This is far from true. Despite its value in proper types of cases, care must be taken not to give it in other cases. Before one can determine whether a case is suitable for serum treatment and what type of serum to employ, it is necessary to test the patient's sputum by means of a delicate serum reaction. Such tests and such selection of cases can usually be done only in well-equipped hospitals, and it is for this reason and because of the limited amount of serum available that we now supply the serum only to a few of the large hospitals in this city. The indiscriminate use of the serum in all cases of pneumonia, even were we in a position to supply it, would do more harm than good. As a matter of fact, even now, although we have nearly thirty horses on our antitoxin farm at Otisville, we are not able to supply all the hospitals with serum.

The extensive research work conducted by Dr. Park and his associates in order to perfect the refined serum for pneumonia was made possible by a generous donation by Lucius N. Littauer. Since that time the city has appropriated $10,000 to provide for the production of the serum for city hospitals. Inasmuch as each case treated with serum requires about $25 worth of serum, this provides only for about 400 cases of pneumonia. The results thus far obtained with refined serum are highly encouraging and the Department of Health hopes after a time to be able to supply the serum for the treatment of all suitable cases in the city hospitals.

COOLIDGE IS LAUDED FOR AID TO AVIATION

GREAT STRIDES IN 7 YEARS

Industry Employs 75,000 Persons and There Are More Than 4,500 Planes in Commercial Use.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—At a conference at the White House today President Coolidge was praised by Major Lester D. Gardner, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, for the assistance his policies on aviation have given to the upbuilding of the commercial aviation industry in the United States.

After recalling the industry's early struggles Major Gardner said:

"In advocating a radically new means of transport and a new arm of national defense, aviation encountered opposition. You harmonized differences of opinion and replaced confusion with orderly discussion through the agency of the Airfact Board under the chairmanship of Mr. Morrow.

"Out of these discussions emerged a national policy. This included recognition by the Government of the need for eliminating competition between the air forces and the industry in aircraft design and manufacture and the advisability of depending upon the industry as the main source of supply.

"Patient insistence by you upon the wisdom of Congress formulating basic air law resulted in the enactment of the Civil Aeronautics act of 1926 and the subsequent setting up of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce. The administration of the aeronautics branch has wisely secured to aviation all the benefits of aids accorded to other systems of transport, yet without encouraging a sense of dependence of the industry upon the Government."

Major Gardner went on to say that whereas seven years ago the capital invested in civil activities amounted to approximately $5,000,000, it is now several hundred millions. The industry employs about 75,000 persons as compared with 5,000. Production of airplanes in 1928 was more than 4,000. Commercial pilots have increased in number from 308 to more than 5,000. There are 255 planes operating on regular schedule, more than 4,500 in general commercial use and there are thirty-nine air transport lines.

Further, there are 16,637 miles of airways operated by private companies flying night and day about 40,000 miles, carrying an average of nine tons of mail each calendar day.

POLISH GIFT TO WEST POINT

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—An equestrian painting of General John J. Pershing was presented to Secretary of War Davis today by Jan Ciechanowski, the Polish Minister to the United States, as a gift to the Academy at West Point from Wojciech Kossak, a cavalry officer in the Polish Army and painter of battle scenes, military figures and horses.

M. Kossak was born in 1856 in Paris and was for seven years court painter to the German Empefor. In 1919-20 he fought in the Polish cavalry during the Polish-Bolshevist war. He has painted a full-size picture of Marshal Foch.

In accepting the painting Secretary Davis said:

"To the United States Military Academy the value of this picture will be greatly enhanced by the fact that it is from the brush of a soldier of Poland. At West Point the names of Thaddeus Kosciusko ever inspires gratitude and serves to remind us of the bonds of sympathy which exist between the armies of Poland and the United States."

TO VISIT ALUMNI CENTRES.

Dean Heermance of Princeton Off on Speaking Tour of 18 Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 25.—Radcliffe Heermance, director of admission and dean of freshmen of Princeton University, left here today on a transcontinental tour of alumni centres. He will visit eighteen cities on his speaking trip, arranged by the National Alumni Association of Princeton.

His first stop will be at Pittsburgh tomorrow night. From there he goes to Columbus, Ohio; Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago and Cleveland.

Dean Heermance is completing his twentieth year at Princeton. His career in educational work has covered preparatory school teaching, college teaching and administrative work, and the direction of training of officers during the World War. He holds the rank of Professor of English and is a major in the United States Army Reserve.

EDUCATORS VISIT THE TIMES

Group From Argentina Inspects Plant After Luncheon.

The group of twenty Argentine educators, who are visiting this country as guests of the International Education Institute to study our social and educational centres, were entertained at luncheon at THE NEW YORK TIMES Annex yesterday. Several executives of THE TIMES made brief addresses. Replies were made for the educators by Dr. Juan Bordaramps and Orme Wilson, first secretary of the Legation at Buenos Aires. The party inspected THE TIMES plant after lunch.

Today the group will be guests of the Spanish publication La Nacion, and Monday the Pan-American Society will give a luncheon for them at the Bankers' Club, 120 Broadway. Tuesday the group will leave for Philadelphia. Other cities to be visited are Washington, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Ann Arbor, Detroit, Buffalo and Boston. They will return to New York on March 4.

S. W. KAUFMANN DIES WHILE IN PARIS

HIS WIFE AT SEA, UNAWARE

Attorney Went Abroad on Business Trip—Interested in Many Philanthropies.

S. Walter Kaufmann of 1,112 Park Avenue, a lawyer with a large international practice, died suddenly in Paris last Sunday, after an operation for intestinal paralysis that developed during a brief attack of influenza. He became ill soon after his arrival in Paris on Jan. 18. Public announcement of his death was withheld so that the news should not reach his wife while she was at sea on the Majestic, due at Cherbourg today. Mr. Kaufmann's sister, the wife of Dr. Stern, was with him during his brief illness.

Mr. Kaufmann attained high rank at the bar, despite the handicap of almost complete blindness that came upon him about 1900 as the result of malarial poisoning that ended his college career while he was a freshman at Harvard. He was born in New York on Aug. 11, 1880. Despite the failure of his sight, he entered the Columbia Law School in 1902 and was graduated three years later. In 1907 he formed the law firm of Hays, Kaufmann & Lindheim.

His practice was largely concerned with cases of international and constitutional law, which obliged him to make extensive journeys in Europe, where his clients included banks and industrial institutions which, when the World War broke out, retained him in matters growing out of commercial transactions and shipments between the United States and European countries involving the international regulations on trade then in effect. Last April the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court restored Mr. Kaufmann to full rights as a member of the bar, of which he had been deprived after his conviction in 1920 in connection with a report made to the Alien Property Custodian by Dr. E. A. Rumely of the latter's purchase of The Evening Mail. The Appellate Division held that Mr. Kaufmann and his partner, the late Norvin H. Lindheim, had been convicted on insufficient evidence. Subsequently Mr. Kaufmann was re-elected a member of the Bar Association. Last July he associated himself with Nathan A. Smyth in the firm of Smyth, Kaufmann & O'Connell, 61 Broadway.

For many years Mr. Kaufmann was a member of the board of Christy Street House. He was a director and active supporter of the Hawthorne School, and an organizer of the Crippled Children's Driving Fund. He had often helped the Prison Association in its work of rehabilitating young men from the Elmira Reformatory. He organized the Clinic for Speech Defects. He was indefatigable in his efforts to aid defectives of all sorts and the helpless, but was always anxious that his associates and friends should never consider his own blindness as a defect.

R. Penn Smith Jr., polo player and banker, a member of a prominent Philadelphia family, died yesterday at his home in East Williston, L. I., from pneumonia, in his thirty-seventh year.

Mr. Smith was the son of R. Penn Smith, who was considered one of the greatest judges of thoroughbred horses in this country and England. The younger Smith developed a liking for horses and spent much time at polo. During the war he purchased horses for the army. In 1920 he was bitten severely by a polo pony during a collision in a game.

Mr. Smith was a partner in the New York office of the banking firm of Cassatt & Co. He was formerly a major in the remount division of the army and lived in Philadelphia until 1919, when he was made head of the Cassatt offices here.

He was a member of the Radnor Hunt Club, the Tennis and Racquet Club of Philadelphia, Knickerbocker Racquet and Tennis, and Brook Club of this city. His mother, who lives in Bryn Mawr, his widow, who was Miss Carol Averill Harriman, daughter of E. H. Harriman, the financier, and two daughters, Nancy, 9 years old, and Averill, 3, survive. He also left a sister, Miss Kitty Penn Smith, of Philadelphia, and a half sister, Mrs. George W. Ferguson of Bryn Mawr, Pa. Services will be held in the Church of the Advent, Westbury, L. I., at 10 A. M. today.

R. H. PEASE DIES OF BURNS.

Former Goodyear President Gets Fatal Hurts in Blazing Auto.

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 25 (AP).—R. H. Pease, former president of the Goodyear Rubber Company and until a few weeks ago a resident of San Francisco, died here tonight from burns received when an automobile in which he was sitting caught fire this afternoon.

SAYS O. DAVIS JR. IS WED.

Rochester Newspaper Asserts Actor Married Florence Rice.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—The Democrat-and-Chronicle tomorrow will say that Owen Davis Jr., son of the noted playwright, and Florence Rice, daughter of Grantland Rice, sports writer, were secretly married several months ago after a romance which started four years ago in Paris.

In an interview with young Davis, who is appearing at a local theatre, the actor is quoted as saying that "I am very happy over my relations with Miss Rice at the present time." Mr. Davis, however, the paper said, would neither deny nor affirm his wedding, but smilingly ignored or sidestepped direct questions on the subject. His mother, who is visiting in Rochester with him, likewise refused to deny or affirm reports of the wedding.

LEONARD WALDO DIES; CONSULTING ENGINEER

Member of Many Scientific Societies Had Won Honors in Research Work.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 25.—Dr. Leonard Waldo, 75 years old, died today at his home, 640 West Eighth Street, following a short illness. He was born in Cincinnati on May 4, 1853. After taking the degrees of B. S. and A. M. from Marietta College, he received the degree of Doctor of Science from Harvard University. Marietta College gave him this same degree honoris causa in 1927.

At the age of twenty-one he was sent as assistant astronomer on the United States transit of Vestus expedition to Tasmania. Later he was connected with the observatories of both Harvard and Yale Universities and he received the medal of the Royal Society of Arts of London for his researches.

During the war Dr. Waldo was consulting engineer for the War Department in the production of illuminants and shells and connected with the experimental department of the Nixon Nitration Works of Raritan, N. J. He also conducted important tests at Aberdeen, the Lakehurst proving grounds, and in his own Plainfield laboratories.

FREDERICK T. WARD, CHURCH LEADER, DIES

Former Retail Grocer Was Active in Philanthropic and Welfare Work.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 25.—Frederick T. Ward of 179 Harrison Street, East Orange, died at his home last night. Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Colonial Home, 137 Harrison Street, by the Rev. W. H. Wray Boyle, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, Orange.

Mr. Ward, who was 65 years old, was a twin brother of Edward T. Ward, vice president of the United States Mortgage and Title Guarantee Company and son of the late Aaron Ward. He was connected for many years with the retail grocery business of Aaron Ward & Sons. He devoted himself to religious and philanthropic activity.

Born in Newark, he was a graduate of Newark Academy and Rutgers College. Mr. Ward was a past president of the Children's Aid and Protective Society of the Oranges and a director of the Welfare Federation of the Oranges and Maplewood. His religious activities included presidency of the Presbyterian Home for the Aged at Belvidere, N. J.; membership in committees of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey and the Presbytery.

A commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, he served on its board as treasurer of the Presbyterian Hospital, also the advisory board of the Home for Aged Women in Orange. He was a trustee and ruling elder of Central Church and a teacher in its school. He founded the John F. Paterson Memorial Fund, the income of which goes to students for the ministry in memory of the late Rev. Dr. Patterson, who served in Central Church.

HONORS SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

Child Welfare Committee Makes Public Testimonial to Social Worker.

Officers of the Child Welfare Committee of America made public yesterday a testimonial to Sophie Irene Loeb, its late head, paying tribute to her humanitarian qualities and accomplishments and signed by former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, August Heckscher, Senator Royal S. Copeland, Margaret Woodrow Wilson, Adolph Lewisohn, George Van Namee, Mrs. Henry Moscowitz, Miss Anna Tunnick and many others who had taken an active interest in her work.

"By her untimely death the career of one of America's most distinguished public servants, one of the nation's most exalted social workers, is ended," it read. "An indefatigable worker during more than two decades, she strove with all her strength and transcendent ability to help raise her less fortunate fellow man to a higher and better standard. No labor was too great, no sacrifice too much to render when once her interests were enlisted in a cause."

TWO FRIENDS DIE SAME DAY.

L. B. Clark and M. A. Chalmers Both Stricken in East Orange.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 25.—Two former Orange officials, friends for several years and both engaged in the plumbing business, died this morning within a few hours of each other, each from heart disease. They were Ludlow B. Clark, 69 years old, and Matthew A. Chalmers. Mr. Clark, whose home was at 50 William Street, was a member of the Orange Board of Health from 1911 to 1914, during which period Mr. Chalmers was a fire commissioner.

Charles Washington Letzgus.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 25.—Charles Washington Letzgus, a member of the New Jersey Assembly from Camden County, died at the West Jersey Homeopathic Hospital here today in his forty-fifth year. Mr. Letzgus was a member of the New Jersey Bar.

Alfred Mestre.

Alfred Mestré, formerly a member of the New York Stock Exchange for forty-two years, died on Thursday night in his sixty-ninth year. He is survived by a widow, Marie Chadbourne Mestré; a daughter, Carmen, and a son, Harold. He graduated from City College in 1880 and belonged to the University Club. Services will be held at 2 P. M. today in the Spanish Church of Esperanza, 624 West 156th Street.

Mrs. Sarah W. P. Williams.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah W. Peters Williams, widow of Richard H. Williams, coal merchant and banker, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at her late residence, 36 East Thirty-sixth Street. Mrs. Williams was the mother of Richard H. Williams of Mendham, N. J., president of the American Remount Association. She was a member of the Colony Club.

The Rev. Francis Purvis, 85.

DAVID MILNE DEAD; STRICKEN SUDDENLY

WAS ON BUSINESS TRIP HERE

He Was Noted for Extensive Industrial Interests and Philanthropy.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—David Milne, widely known textile manufacturer and clubman, died yesterday of heart disease in the Beckman Street Hospital in New York City. He was stricken during a business trip to New York the previous day. He was in his seventieth year.

Born in this city, Mr. Milne was the son of Caleb J. Milne and Margaret Shea Milne, the former known for his extensive business interests and philanthropy. After his graduation from the University of Pennsylvania Mr. Milne joined the banking house of Robert Glendenning & Co. in 1881. Five years later he became senior member of the firm of J. C. Milne & Sons, manufacturers of woolens and shirtings, with branch offices throughout the country. He retired in 1924.

Mr. Milne was vice president at one time of the Medico-Chirurgical Hospital, a member of the boards of several other hospitals, manager of the Pennsylvania Working Home for Blind Men and a director of the United Security Life Insurance and Trust Company of this city and of Finch, Van Slyck & McConville of St. Paul, Minn.

He was a member of many societies and clubs, including Franklin Institute, Pennsylvania Museum, Academy of Natural Sciences, Geographical Society, Numismatic and Antiquarian Society of Philadelphia, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Union League, Art, University, Corinthian Yacht, Germantown Cricket and Philobiblon Clubs.

Surviving him are his widow, the former Miss Margaret Love Skerrett, daughter of Rear Admiral Joseph S. Skerrett, and four sons. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at his late residence, Rosiyn Manor, in Germantown.

DR. J. T. MACKEY DIES, HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

Educator Had Taught in Jersey City for 35 Years—Led in Teachers' Groups.

Dr. James T. Mackey, principal of the Henry Snyder Junior High School of Jersey City, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday morning.

He was in his sixty-eighth year. He had left his school a few minutes before, apparently in excellent health, to attend a meeting of the board of examiners at Dickinson High School. He felt ill and found shelter in a stationery shop. While there he collapsed before a physician could be brought to aid him.

In point of service Dr. Mackey was the oldest principal in Jersey City schools, having taught and supervised for more than thirty-five years. He was born April 17, 1861, in Melbourne, Australia. His father, Thomas, who owned a gold mine, was murdered by bandits. His widowed mother emigrated to the United States shortly after. Dr. Mackey entered La Salle College in Philadelphia, where he received the degrees A. B., M. A. and Ph. D., graduating in 1881. In 1886 he was appointed Professor of Greek and Latin in Jersey City schools. Five years ago he was appointed as principal of Henry Snyder Junior High School.

He was a charter member of the Jersey City Council of the Knights of Columbus and a member of the St. Patrick's Holy Name Society. He was five times president of the Jersey City Teachers' Association and twice president of the Jersey City Principals' Association.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Allen Mackey, and four children, Richard J. Mackey, Mary A. Mackey, Catherine Mackey and Dr. Margaret Loustalot.

The funeral will be on Monday from his late home, 195 Arlington Avenue, Jersey City. A solemn high mass will be held in St. Patrick's Church at 10 A. M. Burial will be in Holy Name Cemetery, Jersey City.

FRANCIS B. MITCHELL.

Former Owner of New York Evening Mail Dies at 84.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Francis B. Mitchell, former publisher of The Post Express, died at Kalaneka Farms, Pittaford, today. He was in his eighty-fifth year. Born in Perry, N. Y., in 1844, where he attended school, Mr. Mitchell went to New York City and entered the newspaper field. Some years later he purchased The New York Evening Mail, which was owned by Cyrus W. Field, and subsequently negotiated the sale of The Evening Express, of which John Kelly, known as "Honest John," was owner.

Mr. Mitchell combined the two newspapers, and for several years continued their publication under the name of The Mail and Express. After E. F. Shepard acquired The Mail and Express Mr. Mitchell became publisher of The New York Recorder. Mr. Mitchell came to Rochester in 1896 and became president of the Post Express Printing Company. A few years ago he disposed of the newspaper to William R. Hearst, and The Post Express was consolidated with The Rochester Journal American.

Twenty years ago Mr. Mitchell established a stock farm in Pittaford, where he trained horses. He was a member of the Republican and Strollers clubs in New York, as well as the Genessee Valley and Country clubs of Rochester.

SAYS STATE OFFICER HAD HIS FILE RIFLED

Advertising Man Also Accuses Better Business Bureau in Search of Cabinets.

DENIAL MADE BY BOTH

Accuser Says Papers Sought Were Those of Figure in Tipster Case —Asserts Prisoner Confessed.

James Wallace, advertising agent of 220 West Forty-second Street, made a burglary complaint in Jefferson Market court yesterday against Fred Stanley, 35 years old, of 112 East 198th Street, the Bronx, charging him with rifling filing cabinets in his office on the eighteenth floor of the Candler Building on Thursday at the instigation of William Mulholland of the State Attorney General's office and Frank Reidy of the Better Business Bureau, 280 Broadway.

In his complaint Wallace alleged that Stanley admitted he had been hired by Mulholland and Reidy for the burglary. When questioned later concerning Wallace's charges both Mr. Mulholland and Mr. Reidy denied them, adding that they had never heard of Stanley before.

Wallace asserted that the files which Stanley had tried to loot contained papers belonging to Dr. Joseph Morris, who had shared the offices with him.

Mr. Mulholland and Mr. Reidy, in denying Wallace's charges, said Morris and Charles Beadon were involved in the publication of a stock market "tipster sheet," called The Stock Market Reporter, formerly known as Trend of the Market. They said the Attorney General had obtained an injunction in September, 1927, against Beadon and the publication and its employes, including Morris. Beadon, Morris and several others were arrested by postal inspectors on the charge of using the mails to defraud, indicted and released in bail.

Morris was later arrested on a Supreme Court order charging him with contempt of court for violation of the injunction. He was freed in $20,000 bail, later reduced to $5,000, but Beadon, for whom a warrant was also issued, was not arrested. According to Mulholland, he fled to Europe. He also said that Wallace had not been involved in the alleged swindling scheme. He added that they had all the evidence wanted in the case, which was awaiting decision, and had no occasion to seek any further information.

It was said at the office of the Better Business Bureau yesterday that "there was nothing to Wallace's charges" and that the swindling case had nothing to do with Stanley, whom they had never known. It was added, however, that the Better Business Bureau had received more than 100 complaints of swindling against Beadon and Morris.

Wallace's office in the Candler Building was closed yesterday afternoon when an attempt was made to reach him.

Magistrate Silberman held Stanley without bail for examination on Wednesday.

Police records show that Stanley was arrested as a receiver of stolen goods in March, 1920, and received a suspended sentence. On Aug. 31, 1920, he was sent to Elmira Reformatory for grand larceny. In May, 1922, as Fred Stube, he received a suspended sentence for petit larceny, and in June, 1922, he was sent back to Elmira for violation of parole. In June, 1924, he was again arrested for petit larceny, being returned to Elmira for violating parole. On July 1, 1925, an abandonment charge against him was dismissed, and on July 14, 1925, he was sent to Sing Sing for a year and a half for attempted burglary.

Ironworker Killed in 9-Story Fall.

Anthony Ocara, 35 years old, of 515 West Forty-first Street, an ironworker employed on the construction of a fifteen-story building at Ninety-fourth Street and West End Avenue, was killed when he missed his footing yesterday morning while working on the ninth story and fell to the ground.

GEN. BRIDGES IS NAMED AS ADJUTANT GENERAL

Col. Archibald Campbell Is Also Promoted to Be His Assistant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bridges was appointed today by President Coolidge to be Adjutant General, succeeding Major Gen. Lutz Wahl, who died last year. He is at present Assistant Adjutant General. The promotion carries the rank of Major General.

Colonel Archibald Campbell was named as Assistant Adjutant General, with the rank of Brigadier General.

General Bridges was born in Illinois, March 1, 1873, and was graduated from West Point in 1897. He served with the Twenty-second Infantry in the Spanish War and with the same regiment in the Philippines. He was custodian of Aguinaldo after the surrender of that leader. In November, 1917, he joined the Second Division, A. E. F., as Inspector General, later became assistant chief of staff of that division and later of the Sixtieth Army Corps. He won the award of Officer of the French Legion of Honor and the Distinguished Service Medal.

On July 2, 1927, he was appointed assistant to the Adjutant General.

UNTERMYER MAKES APPEAL.

Asks Supreme Court to Remove Censure of Him From Records.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—Asserting that the court's censure had affected him more deeply than any other happening in his professional life, Samuel Untermyer asked the Supreme Court today to remove from its record criticism of his conduct in a bankruptcy case recently decided.

A decision handed down Jan. 2 by Chief Justice Taft arraigned Mr. Untermyer for what the court declared to be a demand by the lawyer for $70,000 of the fees paid to the Pittsburgh law firm of Weil & Thorp. Mr. Untermyer today asked the court to permit him or counsel to appear in defense of his professional honor, and he expressed a hope that in any event the court would modify its censure of him.

All the proceedings in the case in the lower courts had won for him, he said, only expressions of commendation.

WALKER ESTATE TO WIDOW.

International Telephone Official Left $5 Each to Two Children.

Roy A. Walker, vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company of Spain, provided bequests of only $5 each to his daughter, Helen, and his adopted son, Richard, according to his will, filed yesterday in the Surrogate's Court. Mrs. Bessie H. Walker, the widow, who lives with the children at the Vanderbilt, gets the residue of the estate, valued at "more than $10,000."

The testator, a resident of Des Moines, Iowa, died last Nov. 30, in Montevideo, Uruguay. Papers filed with the will disclose that Richard Walker was born in Polk County, Iowa, on April 16, 1915. On May 18, 1928, the Walkers legally adopted the boy in Polk County after submitting evidence of the loss of a letter from his mother in which she consented to the adoption.

De Lisser Motors Gives Luncheon.

De Lisser Motors, Inc., Ford distributers, gave a luncheon yesterday to city and company officials and representatives of the largest truck operators in New York at their new building, First Avenue and Ninety-fifth Street, previous to the official opening today. Charles A. Harnett, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, was the guest of honor and was conducted on a tour of the $200,000 plant by Gaston Plantiff, Eastern district manager of the Ford Motor Company, and Horace E. De Lisser, president of the distributing concern. Today the plant will be open to the public for demonstration of the model A cars.

Senate Gets Chicago Fair Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—The House resolution authorizing the President to invite other nations to participate in a world's fair at Chicago in 1933 was ordered reported to the Senate today by its Finance Committee. Early adoption of it will be sought by Chairman Smoot.

SLEET STORM HITS ALL TRANSIT LINES

Long Delays Are Caused by Ice on Third Rail, Especially on B. M. T. in Brooklyn.

MANY HURT ON SIDEWALKS

Skidding Autos Also Cause Minor Injuries—Only Main Highways Are Swept Clean.

COLD WAVE IS SCHEDULED

Eastern Half of Nation Suffers From Icy Rain—Floods Menace Mississippi Region.

Pelted by sleet or icy rain as they made their way slowly along slippery sidewalks, New Yorkers experienced yesterday the most uncomfortable day of the Winter with the prospect of a sharp drop in temperature today which would make difficult the removal of the ice from under foot.

With Brooklyn the hardest hit of the five boroughs, transit facilities were severely handicapped by the storm, and many thousands arrived an hour late for work after experiencing great inconvenience on the way. Serious delays on the B. M. T. subway lines during the morning rush hours were the principal factors. Surface lines and other street traffic also felt the effect of the wintry blasts.

Street Cleaners Start Early.

Mobilizing his entire standing force, Commissioner Taylor of the Department of Street Cleaning combated the sleet as soon as it began to fall. The big rolling brooms were put to work on the bridges, the flushing machines went out with steel scrapers attached, and 473 hose gangs were distributed throughout the city to flush the melting slush into the sewers.

By nightfall the principal thoroughfares throughout the city were reported cleared, but those who had to utilize the less-traveled streets, particularly in the outlying parts of the city, reported that the ice-glazed sidewalks still were dangerous.

In Times Square, where Police Commissioner Whalen had expected his new traffic regulations would undergo their most severe test, the police reported that drivers were having little difficulty in controlling their cars during the theatre rush, although the pavements were still damp.

Minor accidents were frequent throughout the city but no fatalities attributable to the storm were reported here. Skidding automobiles and falls caused by the dangerous footing led to a number of ambulance calls and innumerable bruises.

Entire East in Path of Storm.

Practically every State in the Eastern half of the country suffered from snow, rain, sleet or fog, according to Associated Press dispatches, while the Rocky Mountain region was in the grip of the coldest weather of the Winter. Five deaths were reported in the nation. The heavy rain brought flood warnings to dwellers in the lowlands along the Mississippi and its tributaries, but it was believed that freezing weather would prevent serious floods.

Forced down by the storm in deep snow between Salt Lake City and Elko, Nev., a passenger airplane was being sought last night by six other planes led by Lieutenant Russell Maughan.

Transit lines were delayed fifty minutes in Brooklyn, according to reports to the Transit Commission, and there was a general slowing up of service on elevated and subway lines throughout the city. Two slight mishaps on the Second Avenue elevated line and the Lexington Avenue subway in the Bronx added to the difficulties.

The greatest delay was on the Brighton line of the B. M. T., although the Sea Beach and West End lines of the same system were hard hit. Although the trains are equipped with sleet scrapers for such an emergency, minor mishaps which interrupted the service on the B. M. T. lines early in the morning allowed the sleet to freeze so quickly to the third rail that trains were held up while it was burned off.

The first mishap was caused at 7:25 in the Sheepshead Bay station by a broken shoe, almost paralyzing the Brighton line and causing gaps of as much as half an hour between trains at the peak of the early morning rush hour. At almost the same time Sea Beach and West End trains were held up by the opening of the drawbridge over the Coney Island Creek twice in quick succession. Jamaica elevated trains along Broadway lost from thirty to forty minutes, while Culver trains were affected similarly.

Surface Cars Come to Rescue.

In an effort to relieve the congestion which developed on its elevated and subway lines, the B. M. T. put extra surface cars on lines paralleling subways. Although the surface cars were forced to operate at reduced speed, thousands of passengers deserted subway and elevated stations for them after fruitless waits.

Although the I. R. T. was not as severely hit as the B. M. T., some delays were reported because trains were run slowly in the open. In addition, a broken air pipe delayed a Second Avenue elevated train at the Chatham Square station for twenty-eight minutes, beginning at 6:30 A. M. A defective switch at 177th Street at 8:25 tied up southbound Lexington Avenue trains for six minutes and slowed up service through the morning rush hour.

Suffering from exposure and hunger, twenty-two travelers by bus and motor car, who had been trapped for thirty-six hours in the Red Desert by a raging blizzard, were rescued by cowboys and taken to Rock Springs, Wyo. Three women, two of them expectant mothers, and two children were in the group.

Canary, Hung Near Jet, Lives As Gas Kills Woman in Home

Although canary birds are used in submarines and mines to give warning of poisonous gases, one of them lived through an amount of illuminating gas sufficient to kill its owner yesterday afternoon.

The dead woman was Mrs. Conchetta Cannarieri, 50 years old, of 416 East Thirteenth Street. She was found in the dining room of her apartment when a neighbor smelled gas. The police believe that while she was about to place the tube over a jet she suffered a heart attack and fainted.

PORRAS IS GRATIFIED BY ROOSEVELT DRIVE

STATUE TO BE LIGHTED

Figure of "True Father" of Isthmus Republic to Be Visible Far at Sea, He Announces.

Dr. Belisario Porras, for ten years President of Panama, will sail today from New York aboard the Pastores to carry home with him the confidence that the "impressive memorial" the people of Panama, with the aid of Americans, intend to erect in memory of President Roosevelt "will be a reality within a reasonable length of time." At the Waldorf yesterday he described the progress of the project.

"Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, chosen to design the monument, is proceeding with her work and will come to Panama before long to supervise the erection of the pedestal atop Gold Hill, on the heights of Culebra Cut," Dr. Porras said.

"I have found gratifying interest among many admirers of President Roosevelt in this country, and you may be sure that this interest, coupled with the admiration my people feel for him, will make an adequate memorial possible as an ever-present reminder of Panama's love for your late leader, who was the true father of our republic," he continued. The Panama-Roosevelt Memorial Association, Inc., has been in charge of the appeal for $250,000 in America to assist in the building of the memorial.

"Soon after my arrival in Panama we expect to appoint a commission to have charge of all funds received there and to sponsor a campaign to push the memorial to success," Dr. Porras said. "I have obtained the assistance of some 250 leading men and women of my country, who now are enthusiastically behind the project. We have decided to illuminate the figure of Roosevelt so that it will be visible far at sea."

Dr. Porras, formerly Minister to the United States, has just visited his son, Rodrigo, in school at Washington. He assisted in the building of monuments in Panama to Balboa, Cervantes and Gorgas. He recently was named a director of the Gorgas Memorial. He was a general in the revolutionary army which won independence in Panama and served as Minister to Costa Rica, Peru, Brazil, England and France.

He termed President-elect Hoover's trip to Central and South America a "wonderful idea of a man with a great brain," but said he felt it a pity Mr. Hoover had not been able to visit all countries there and was sorry the Hoover ship could not have spent "at least several days" in each place, to learn first-hand the "potential resources, in the main undeveloped, that lie in those nations and the islands of the South Seas." Dr. Porras consoled himself with the conviction that the "epochal good-will mission" would direct the attention of North America to these resources.

He believes Panama, "at the crossroads of the world," is destined to become a nation of great "agricultural, industrial and maritime interests," and intends to devote the remainder of his life to "economic, financial and commercial rehabilitation and development of my country."

PLAN STOCK SPLIT-UP FOR STEWART-WARNER

Directors Propose Increase to 2,000,000 Shares of $10 Par—Suggest Change of Name.

Directors of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation at a meeting at Chicago yesterday recommended an increase in the authorized capital stock to 2,000,000 shares of $10 par value, from the present 600,000 shares of no-par value, and proposed a two-for-one split-up of the shares now outstanding. Of the increased capitalization 1,200,000 shares are to be issued in exchange for the present stock.

Shareholders will be asked to approve these steps at the annual meeting on April 2. The name of the company will be changed to the Stewart-Warner Corporation if the stockholders approve.

The board also declared four quarterly stock dividends of 2 per cent each, subject to the approval by stockholders of the increase in stock. The first of these dividends will be payable on the new stock on the date fixed for the exchange of the old shares for the new ones. The other payments are to be made on Aug. 15 and Nov. 13 this year and Feb. 15, 1930. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on present stock also was declared.

In addition to the stock dividends, it was indicated that the directors intended to place the new stock on a $3.50 annual cash dividend basis, equivalent to $7 a share on present stock, which is receiving $6.

The annual report, issued today, shows net income for 1928 of $7,752,532 after charges and Federal taxes, equivalent to $12.92 a share earned on 599,990 no-par shares. This compares with $5,210,053, or $8.67 a share, in 1927. Net profit for the final quarter of last year, after charges and Federal taxes, was $2,275,567, equal to $3.79 a share. This compares with net income of $1,863,640, or $3.10 a share, in the preceding quarter, and with $1,011,421, or $1.68 a share, in the final quarter of 1927.

PROPOSES TUNNEL UNDER UPPER BAY

TO RELIEVE THE WEST SIDE

Puts Cost of Bore, 2 Miles Long, at $50,000,000—Submits Plan to McLaughlin.

Construction of a vehicular tunnel more than two miles long from the Battery under the Upper Bay and Governors Island to Hamilton Avenue in Brooklyn was proposed yesterday by Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, in a letter to George V. McLaughlin, president of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. The cost of the tunnel, he said, would be from $50,000,000 to $55,000,000.

His proposal, he explained in an interview, was made to supplement plans in the report of the Mayor's committee on plan and survey, and was the result of an extensive study by Chief Engineer E. A. Byrne of the Department of Plant and Structures. The structure if built, he said, would supplement the proposed Thirty-eighth Street-East River tunnel from Tenth Avenue, Manhattan, to Queens and Brooklyn.

Would Ease Tube Traffic.

"It has been argued," he went on, "that to build the Thirty-eighth Street tunnel in the congested midtown district would only bring more vehicles into the district and increase the congestion there. The tunnel we have proposed would tend to meet this situation by providing an outlet for downtown traffic to Brooklyn."

As proposed, the tunnel would be built under West Street, with one terminal near Cedar and West Streets in Manhattan and the other near Hamilton Avenue and Hicks Street in Brooklyn.

In his letter to Mr. McLaughlin, Commissioner Goldman said:

"The reasons for this location may be summed up as follows:

"1. The traffic from the west side of Manhattan, including that from the proposed elevated express highway and Holland Tunnel traffic bound for Brooklyn, should not be routed across to the east side of lower Manhattan.

"2. The tunnel will provide the shortest and quickest route for west side Manhattan traffic to Flatbush, Bay Ridge, &c., and help to relieve the congested section of Flatbush Avenue, through which the traffic from the Manhattan Bridge flows enroute to Flatbush, Bay Ridge, &c.

"3. The inability to select a tunnel site north of the present rapid transit tunnels without adding to the congestion existing in the section of Brooklyn where such a tunnel would have its terminal."

McLaughlin to Study Plan.

Mr. McLaughlin said last night that he did not desire to comment upon the proposal until he had given it careful consideration, but would probably issue a statement today.

By carrying the proposed structure under Governors Island considerable expense could be avoided, as a shaft could be built there, Commissioner Goldman said. He believed that the Federal government would grant an easement for the tunnel if the city would build an elevator on the island to bring truck and automobiles to the surface, which would make possible, he said, the elimination of the Governors Island-Battery ferry.

Another plan to relieve traffic conditions in lower Manhattan which his department has had under consideration is the removal of the elevated and surface car tracks from Brooklyn Bridge, making it possible to devote the entire bridge to vehicular traffic. Mr. Goldman said he had considered conferring with the Board of Transportation on the matter and on the question of building tunnels to take care of the tracks removed from the bridge.

PRINTS BRING $37,495.

The sale last evening of prints and drawings from the collection of Edward Duff Balken of Pittsburgh at the Anderson Galleries brought $37,495 for the 197 items.

A "Landscape With Three Cottages," an original etching from the Donnadieu, Dr. Ackerman and A. Artaria collections, went on "order" for $2,900. A David Young Cameron etching, "The Crucifix of St. Maclou, Rouen," was bought by J. J. Richardson for $850. He also paid $755 for McBey's "The Pool." A. S. Appleby paid $750 for Seymour Haden's "A Sunset in Ireland," from the De Goncourt collection. Zorn's "At the Piano" brought $750 on order.

M. Knoedler & Co., Inc., bought the following five items: "La Morgue," a Charles Meryon etching from Alfred Morrison collection, $850; Zorn's "The Waltz," $800; Zorn's "Maja von Heijne," $800; Zorn's "Omnibus," $750, and McBey's "Gale at Port Erroll," $750.

ABBEY SERVICE DISTURBED.

Woman Says Bishops Need Another War to End Hypocrisy.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP).—Consecration services for the Bishops of Chelmsford and Lewes in Westminster Abbey were disturbed today by a woman who kept interrupting the address of the officiating clergyman.

"Be quiet," she shouted, when asked to cease her interruption.

Then she jumped up and shouted even more loudly, "You want another good war to rouse you and break down all your hypocrisy."

The woman was then removed by the verger.

Mrs. D. H. Wilson Fingerprinted.

Mrs. Esther Evans De Forest Wilson, who was convicted in General Sessions Thursday for shooting her husband, Dallett H. Wilson, a lawyer, in his office at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street last March 29, was brought in a prison van to the Criminal Courts Building yesterday to have her fingerprints taken. She had been committed to the Jefferson Market Women's Prison the day before for sentence Tuesday.

A photograph transmitted by radio has been used for the first time in the arrest of a man wanted by the police, it was announced yesterday at Police Headquarters. Constantino Queruben, who sometimes used the name Querbin, a Filipino, accused as a "forger and confidence man," is now on his way here from Honolulu, in the custody of New York detectives, as a result of the transmission of his photograph, as it appears in the Rogue's Gallery here, to the Pacific island.

Queruben, according to the police, was arrested last Oct. 27 and held in $3,500 bail, charged with illegally obtaining $1,500 worth of American Express Company traveler's checks from the Harriman National Bank. The police said that he jumped his bail and obtained at the offices of the Dollar Steamship Line two tickets for a round-the-world voyage, worth $7,000, and $5,000 worth of traveler's checks.

He was traced to San Francisco, but detectives arrived there the day after he sailed. Accordingly, messages were exchanged with the captain of the steamer Tenyo Maru, while a picture was radioed to Honolulu, said the announcement. The ship arrived at that port at 5 A. M. on Dec. 26, and local detectives immediately placed Querubin under arrest. According to advices received here, the police said, they found in his cabin $2,684 in cash, much of it in gold and a considerable amount in $100 bills.

Detectives Robert Kelly and Edward Fitzgerald went to Honolulu to bring him back for trial and are expected to arrive here in a week or ten days.

GUINAN CONVICTED ON NUISANCE CHARGE

FACES YEAR OR $1,000 FINE

Prosecutor to Ask Jail Sentence—Verdict Expected to Bring Guilty Pleas in Other Liquor Cases.

The opening by Federal Judge Edwin Thomas yesterday of the sealed verdict returned Thursday against Tommy Guinan, brother of Texas Guinan, disclosed that the jury, which had deliberated only forty minutes, had found him guilty of aiding and abetting the maintenance of a nuisance at the Chez Florence, a night club at 117 West Forty-eighth Street.

Upon motion of Louis Halle, attorney for Guinan, Judge Thomas postponed sentence until next Wednesday to give Mr. Halle time to go over the evidence and prepare a motion for a new trial. Guinan's bail was increased from $1,000 to $3,000. He was paroled in the custody of his attorney pending the filing of the new bond, which was produced in an hour.

The indictment on which Guinan was tried alleged specifically that he himself had maintained a nuisance at the Chez Florence. His defense was that he was not the proprietor of the night club and that, therefore, no matter whether it was a nuisance or not, he had not maintained it. In his charge to the jury, however, Judge Thomas declared that if the jurors found Guinan had aided, abetted or assisted the person who actually maintained the nuisance, they should bring in a verdict of guilty. The penalty, however, is the same, the maximum being a year in prison or a $1,000 fine.

When Mr. Halle moved to postpone sentence, Assistant United States Attorney Robert B. Watts said he would ask a jail sentence, but did not press, after the motion had been granted, for the imprisonment of Guinan pending sentence.

Guinan accepted the verdict lightly. He smiled and made a casual remark about the necessity for taking "the bad along with the good."

An indictment involving the alleged maintenance of a nuisance at the Don Royale Club is on the trial calendar for Monday morning. The indictment against persons alleged to have been associated with the operation of Helen Morgan's Summer Home, a night club, is also on Monday's calendar.

The conspiracy charges in all the night club cases, which resulted from the series of raids on the night of former Governor Smith's nomination for the Presidency, have been dropped, but the nuisance charges remain. It was thought likely at the Federal Building yesterday that the Government's victory in the Guinan trial would result in pleas of guilty from others under similar indictments.

LAWRENCEVILLE PLANS $200,000 DORMITORY

School Has Received $80,000 of Sum for New Dawes House to Replace One Burned.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCEVILLE, N. J., Jan. 25.—The sum of $200,000 will be required to rebuild Dawes House, the Lawrenceville School student dormitory destroyed by fire early last Saturday morning, and toward this amount $80,000 has been raised during the past week from friends and alumni of the school, it was announced today by Dr. Mather A. Abbott, headmaster.

The dormitory, which was one of the largest on the campus, is to be rebuilt as a fireproof building in the Colonial style, this style having been adopted for all new structures at the school.

The old dormitory, a frame building, was given by Vice President Dawes in memory of his son, Rufus. Mr. Dawes has contributed $20,000 toward the new building.

The school now has under construction a new infirmary, which it is said, will be one of the best preparatory school hospitals in the United States.

INDICTED IN ROBBERY OF LEVIATHAN MAILS

German of Many Aliases Said to Be Leader in Plot to Loot Liner's Sacks Last June.

WORLD SEARCH IS BEGUN

Alleged Thief, Who Worked on Ship as Carpenter, Was Seized in Belgium, but Released.

Walter Oskar Bernhard Ringer of Dobburn, Germany, who has used many aliases, was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury here yesterday as the leader of an alleged conspiracy which resulted in a robbery of the mails aboard the Leviathan after she had left New York for Southampton and Cherbourg last June 16. Bonds, jewelry and money stolen from her mail sacks have been variously estimated to be worth from $10,000 to $500,000.

Ringer, who is charged with "robbing the mails on the high seas," is believed to be in Europe. Immediately following his indictment, a search for him was started. Assistant United States Attorney Alvin McK. Sylvester, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, said Ringer's photograph would be sent to the police of all European countries and that a reward would be offered for his capture. The fugitive is also believed to have been associated with Albert Rosenberg in the $50,000 bond robbery aboard the liner George Washington in 1926, for which Rosenberg served two years of a ten-year sentence in Atlanta Penitentiary.

Arrested and Released.

Among the aliases used by Ringer and mentioned in the indictment are Max Walter Ketter, Franz Rudis, Charles Larson and Charles Long. Ringer was arrested in Antwerp, Belgium, during the latter part of last year, but was released because no request for extradition was made. At the time he was alleged to have passed on to Friedrich Ryber of Vienna ten 1,000 bonds of the Tokio Electric Light Company, Ltd. Ryber was arrested and admitted, it was reported, that he had obtained the stolen bonds from Rudis, the name Ringer was then using.

Archibald Chapman, an assistant steward on the Leviathan's trip of June 16, who had previously served six months in England for stealing by "keeping" a ring lost aboard the White Star liner Olympic, was arrested in December in connection with the Leviathan mail theft. Minnie Minckner of Vienna also was arrested in December in the same case, charged with receiving from Ryber some of the stolen bonds.

According to Mr. Sylvester, who has been investigating the theft for some time, the loot obtained by the alleged conspirators included 110 of the electric light company's $1,000 bonds, maturing June 15, 1953, and $20,000 in cash and jewels.

Sacks Cleverly Resealed.

Mr. Sylvester said the robbery had occurred before the Leviathan reached Southampton and that the mail sacks had been cleverly resealed so that the loss was not discovered until the sacks were opened at that port. Ringer, he asserted, was working as a carpenter aboard the Leviathan, and as such had access to any part of the ship.

Although Ringer was born in Dobburn on June 16, 1890, the record shows he enlisted on the Leviathan as an American citizen, born in California. Ringer's identity became known, Mr. Sylvester said, through Ryber, who had fifty of the stolen bonds. Ryber identified Ringer as "Rudis" by photographs.

About that time, according to Mr. Sylvester, it was learned that Ringer was wanted in Germany on charges of violating the narcotic law and also that he had a record in Vienna for fraudulent bankruptcy. Ryber was arrested on advice of Inspector George Smith of the United States Postoffice Department, who was then in Europe investigating the Leviathan theft. It was Mr. Smith's testimony which brought about Ringer's indictment. The indictment will be filed Monday.

In addition to claiming California as his birthplace, Ringer is said to have carried on the Leviathan a passport stating he was born at Brisbane, Australia.

WOULD CUT POWERS OF BOROUGH HEADS

Special Berry Committee Considers Revising Charter on Awarding Contracts.

OPPOSITION IS EXPECTED

But Prof. Rogers Says "Political Importance of Borough Presidents Does Not Impress Me."

Drastic curtailment of the power of borough presidents in awarding contracts for such local improvements as sewer construction and street grading was discussed yesterday at the initial meeting of a special committee, consisting of Controller Berry, Corporation Counsel Nicholson and Arthur S. Tuttle, consulting engineer of the Board of Estimate, with whom were associated representatives of the city's bar associations.

The committee, named by the Board of Estimate as the result of recommendations submitted by Controller Berry for the purpose of obtaining a charter amendment or legislative action to prevent recurrence of such episodes as the recent Queens sewer scandal, said it expected obstacles in the carrying out of any program which would shear away important powers now held by the borough chieftains whose votes control the actions of the Board of Estimate.

Former Judge Alfred J. Talley, representing the New York City Bar Association, was chosen to head the general committee.

"I expect," he said, "that when we get the borough presidents in here we are likely to find there is a pretty stiff kick against their giving up any of the authority granted them by the charter."

"The political importance of the borough presidents does not impress me," remarked Professor Lindsay Rogers of Columbia University, who also was designated as a member of the special committee to aid the Controller and his associates in the city government.

"The plan under consideration by the committee would amend the charter either by referendum vote or by a two-thirds vote of the Legislature, after a special message from the Governor, to place final approval of contracts, now under jurisdiction of the borough presidents, in the hands of the Board of Estimate. The five borough presidents cast but seven of the board's sixteen votes, the remaining nine being vested in the Mayor, Controller and President of the Board of Aldermen.

The plan also contemplates a uniform contract and set of specifications for various types of work, to be approved by the five borough engineers. Exceptions to these forms and standards, it is suggested, are not to be made without the approval of the engineers.

Others who attended the conference were Peter McGowan, secretary of the Board of Estimate; James M. Gray, Brooklyn Bar Association; Charles H. Friedrich, Bronx County Bar Association; Charles W. Froessel, Queens County Bar Association, Francis F. Leman, Richmond County Bar Association, and Daniel F. Cohalan, New York County Lawyers' Association. Subsequent hearings will be open to the public and will be held in Room 530 in the Municipal Building.

It was the consensus of the conferees yesterday that action by the Board of Estimate in the form of a resolution would not be legally binding upon the borough presidents. A resolution of this sort, passed two years ago, it was brought out, has been generally observed, but the powers of the local chiefs cannot be legally curtailed without legislative enactment. The resolution referred to was passed at the request of Controller Berry after the Queens sewer scandal was brought into the open and called for Board of Estimate approval of local improvement contracts where the lowest bid was 25 per cent above the final estimate. The resolution merely requested borough presidents to withhold final approval of such contracts until they had been considered by the board.

The next meeting of the committee will be held at 4:15 on Wednesday afternoon. Controller Berry said yesterday that all citizens and organizations desiring to be heard would receive that opportunity.

REQUEST CONFERENCE ON FIVE-DAY WEEK PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—A request that the American Federation of Labor cooperate in the naming of a commission to study the feasibility of the five-day week among building trades was made in a resolution today passed by the executive committee of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, meeting in the office of E. M. Craig, the executive secretary.

The resolution, directed to the building trades department of the federation, sets forth that thus far the federation has "completely ignored" facts showing the five-day week to be unfair to employers.

The resolution condemns the American Federation of Labor's "arbitrary attitude and its refusal to even discuss so vital a question, affecting as it does not only the employer with his tremendous invested capital, but also the building public, as well as labor," and says the federation "is guilty of a lack of consideration and fairness that cannot be overlooked."

"This attempt to unnecessarily prolong the time consumed in the construction of buildings," the resolution continues, "will, if successful, add tremendously to the cost, cause unnecessary economic waste and disturb the established order of things and throw completely out of line the economic relationship of those in the construction industry with those who must purchase its product."

Another resolution adopted urges the federation to again become a party to a joint board for the settlement of the jurisdictional disputes in the building trades.

Burns Society Has Annual Dinner.

Commemorating the 175th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, the Burns Society of New York held its annual dinner last night at the Biltmore with 100 members present. Certainly a great business opportunity showed up in the papers today—"No training, no conscience necessary; all you need is six hundred thousand dollars, but you get it back the first good day."

POLICE, CHASING CAR, SHOOT A WOMAN

Patrolmen Say They Suspected Auto With 3 Men and Victim Was Fleeing From Crime.

BULLET HITS HER IN HEAD

Pistol Expert Tests Weapons to Place Blame Because Each of Pair Fired 3 Times.

Mrs. Olga Romano, 26 years old, of 103 Leroy Street, was shot in the head and seriously wounded at 3 o'clock yesterday morning when she was riding in a speeding automobile in West Broadway near Chambers Street.

Patrolmen Edward A. Sarter and Martin Mullahey of the Beach Street station admitted later that each had fired three shots at the speeding car, but declared they were not aware that any of the bullets had taken effect. Detective Sergeant Butts, police pistol expert, is examining the pistols of both policemen with a view to determining from which the bullet came.

Suspected Flight from Crime.

The policemen, according to District Attorney Banton, said they suspected the three men and the woman in the car were fleeing from a hold-up or other crime. Although they had commanded the driver of the car, John Lavarello, 22 years old, of 121 Macdougal Street, to halt, and followed the car for three blocks in a taxicab, taking occasional shots at the speeding automobile, Lavarello got away, they said.

Half an hour later Lavarello and Marcel Ledoux, 19 years old, of the Leroy Street address, another occupant of the automobile, took the unconscious woman to St. Vincent's Hospital, where the surgeons said her condition was precarious. She had not regained consciousness late last night, and the bullet had not been extracted.

Three detectives of the Mercer Street Station found Lavarello and Ledoux at the hospital, after Dr. Carlo Salvati of 18 Macdougal Street reported to the police over the telephone that two men had brought a woman there with a bullet wound in the head, and he had advised them to take her to a hospital. The pair drove the woman to the office of Dr. Charles J. Robilioti at 39½ Washington Square South before the arrival of the detectives, and it was on the insistence of Dr. Robilioti that they went to the hospital with the woman.

Lavarello revealed that the car was owned by Louis Ledoux, 20 years old, also of the Leroy Street address, who also was in it at the time of the shooting. He was found at home, and told the same story.

Woman Complained of Pain.

The three said they rode several blocks after the shooting before Mrs. Romano complained of a pain in her head, and they realized she had been shot. They said they brought the woman to the offices of the physicians because they did not know where to find a hospital.

They admitted the car was going about thirty-five miles an hour. Lavarello explained that he did not slow down at the command of the patrolmen because the brake was out of order. While they were seeking medical aid, they said, they picked up Harry Davis of 1,388 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, who drove the dying woman to the hospital and then left them.

District Attorney Banton said the story of the shooting as told by the policemen would be investigated further.

RABBI SUES DRY OFFICIAL.

Asks Injunction Against Padlocking Sacramental Wine.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 25.—Injunction proceedings intended to stop the activities of Federal prohibition enforcement agents were started in the Federal District Court here today on behalf of Rabbi Baruch Shapiro, head of three Seattle Jewish congregations with a total membership of 850 families.

The application for the injunction, directed at the Northwest Prohibition Administrator, Roy C. Lyle, followed the padlocking by the Administrator's force of sacramental wine in the possession of Rabbi Shapiro.

Judge Jeremiah Neterer of the District Court indicated that he would hear the application for the injunction on Feb. 4.

Prof. Rogers of Drew Will Retire.

Professor Robert W. Rogers, who has held the chair of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis at Drew University since 1893, will retire at the end of the academic year, it was announced yesterday at Madison, N. J. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1886, and received degrees from other universities. He taught at Dickinson before going to Drew. He was a lecturer at Columbia, Harvard and Princeton at various times.

The Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies received an additional contribution of $1 for Case 223 of the Neediest Cases Fund, from Miss Ethel Weinberg. It was forwarded yesterday to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Another contribution of $3 was received by THE NEW YORK TIMES for "some nice little girl" from Audrey M. Schwab, 2 years old. The total of the Neediest Fund is now $337,911.23.

M'MANUS TO GET BAIL IF TRIAL IS DELAYED

New Writ Dismissed, but Court Calls for Opening of Case Within Sixty Days.

BANTON WILL FIGHT MOVE

WHALEN BACKS PROSECUTOR

Recalls Rosenthal Slayers Waited Six Months in Jail—Doubts Early Arrest of Biller.

Efforts by counsel for George A. McManus, one of four men indicted for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, to force District Attorney Banton to bring McManus to trial immediately or have him released from the Tombs on bail may go to the higher courts as a result of a habeas corpus proceeding yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Levy. James D. C. Murray, the prisoner's lawyer, obtained the writ of habeas corpus the day before on which McManus was brought to court, but although Justice Levy dismissed the writ and McManus was taken back to the Tombs, Justice Levy said that the District Attorney must place McManus on trial within sixty days or he would fix bail for him.

The court's action came after a verbal duel by Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora and the defense lawyer, during which Mr. Pecora said that McManus would not be tried until his fugitive co-defendants, Hyman (Gillie) Biller and "John Doe" and "Richard Roe," were arrested. After a conference with Mr. Pecora and Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers, expert in the trial of murder cases, District Attorney Banton said:

"I am not going to try McManus until we get Biller and the others in the Rothstein murder indictment, and I'm not going to be bullied by Mr. Murray into trying this case until I get good and ready."

Answering a comment that it would appear that the case would go into the higher courts of the State on contentions regarding McManus's rights before there would be a trial, Mr. Pecora interposed: "We'll fight this case through all the courts."

Whalen Cites Rosenthal Case.

That Police Commissioner Whalen concurs in the prosecutors' stand in holding McManus in the Tombs pending trial was evidenced in the evening, when, on being told of Justice Levy's promised action, Mr. Whalen recalled that the slayers of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, in 1912, were not placed on trial for six months. "Mr. Pecora is an able prosecutor," added the commissioner, "and I feel sure he will be able to handle this matter."

"Is there any more reason to believe that Biller will go on trial with McManus in sixty days than tomorrow?" Commissioner Whalen was asked.

"I'm sorry to say that there isn't," was the reply.

Mr. Pecora, during the argument before Justice Levy, parried the demand of the defense lawyer for a date for the trial of McManus by asking Mr. Murray when Biller would surrender.

"That is a rotten imputation in a case of first-degree murder," retorted Mr. Murray. "You would think I carried Biller around in my pocket."

"Then ask your client or his brother where Biller is," demanded the prosecutor, who then informed Justice Levy that Biller and one of McManus's brothers left this country as the indictment was about to be handed up to Judge Mancuso in General Sessions last Dec. 4 and had been traced by the police as far as Cuba.

Says Biller Could Have Been Held.

Mr. Murray told Justice Levy that Biller was asleep in another room on the night of last Nov. 4 when Rothstein was mortally shot in the Park Central Hotel; that Biller stayed at the hotel four days after the shooting and had openly walked through the streets, and the police could have apprehended him during all of that time.

"Biller was in business with McManus, who was a bookmaker," replied Mr. Pecora. "Biller has run away from his usual haunts. The police are looking for him now, and he has not been exonerated at any time. Some of the police on the night of the shooting did come in contact with Biller, and it is true that they let him go," admitted the prosecutor.

Court Suggests Yielding Minutes.

Justice Levy asked Mr. Pecora if he would submit to the court a copy of the grand jury minutes, to enable a decision on the habeas corpus writ.

"I do not think we have the power to do so," replied Mr. Pecora.

"I am sorry to disagree with you," said the court. "I would like to test that out with you. You may or may not submit the minutes, just as you please."

Later Mr. Banton said that, under the law, the only person entitled to view the minutes of a grand jury proceeding is the judge of the court in which an indictment was handed up. In this instance Judge Mancuso had the power, he added. Three weeks ago Judge Mancuso denied McManus's request for an inspection of the minutes.

The temporary administrators of the Rothstein estate applied to Surrogate O'Brien yesterday for instructions as to how to proceed to locate persons named as debtors in Rothstein's records. This is the latest effort of the administrators in their search for scattered assets of the estate.

In his petition, Nathan Burkan, counsel for the administrators, said they "may be able to get in touch with attorneys" who can locate the debtors, and asked permission to retain the attorneys for this purpose. The petition also asked permission to grant long-term leases on real estate owned by Rothstein at Woodmere, L. I., 181 West Seventy-second Street and 61 East Sixty-sixth Street. The administrators are Abraham Rothstein, father of the decedent; Andrew J. Sheridan and Samuel Brown.

BEAUX ARTS BALL A VIVID SPECTACLE

Throng of 3,000 in Costume Witness the Glory of France in Days of Napoleon.

A BRILLIANT CORONATION

REIGN OF TERROR REALISTIC

Pageant Followed by General Dancing and Supper—Many Dinners Precede the Event.

Society folk thronged the Hotel Astor last night for the Beaux Arts Ball, which for the last fifteen years has been held under the auspices of the Society of Beaux Architects of New York to provide scholarships in architecture, painting and sculpture for worthy students. In the assemblage of 3,000 were men and women famous as painters, sculptors and members of the literary world, the stage and the opera. Those among the originators of the ball who gained their artistic instruction in the Beaux Arts School of Paris or in the studios of the French capital displayed the benefits gained while there.

While the ball from year to year has generally had a locale suggestive of some period in the history of France, it was decided a year ago to revive at this time the splendors of France in the Napoleonic era. Such authorities on art and architecture as Ernest Peixotto and Philip Cusachs went to France last Spring and for months buried themselves in the lore of Napoleon, from the days when he was known as the Little Corporal to the time when he became Emperor. The scenario devised by Mr. Cusach and Ben Ali Haggin ended with the coronation of Napoleon and Josephine. There were some anachronisms allowed in the production of the fête which in no manner interfered with its general artistic spirit.

Guests in Gorgeous Attire.

As the entire assemblage was in costume suitable to the period, that fact alone would have made the success of such an undertaking. Much study had been spent in procuring suitable attire, and the costumers of New York had been busy for weeks. The guests arrived in festive mood from numerous dinners, and long before the pageant that preceded general dancing the parterre boxes and others placed about the ball room floor were filled with men and women resplendent in costume. A blast of trumpets and the rolling of drums announced at a late hour the approach of the pageant. Kenneth Murchison, Chairman of the Ball Committee, not only arranged for the pageant the overture entitled "Napoleon," but conducted the playing of it by the reinforced orchestra of Michael Markels. There was suggested in the music the hey day of royal France, the Reign of Terror and the grand climax that depicted the rise of Napoleon.

Those in the pageant passed down an aisle in the midst of the costumed assemblage to find themselves in the Salle d'Honneur of the Palace of Versailles. The walls were hung with cloth of gold and silver and from the boxes there depended bannerets of green, decorated with garlands in gold that surrounded the symbolic "N." At the south end of the ball room there was a royal canopy around which courtiers awaited the arrival of Louis XVI, impersonated by Whitney Warren and his Queen, Marie Antoinette, who was impersonated by Mrs. Edward F. Hutton. As their majesties seated themselves on their throne, a Viennese waltz, in compliment to the Queen, was executed by her cousin, Princess Marie of Austria, who was Mrs. Ben Ali Haggin. From outside was heard the roar of the mob that already at the palace gate reviled this scene of extravagance. The scene rapidly changed to the advent of Napoleon. The decorations of the ball room and the adjoining rooms were designed by James Munroe Hewlett.

Parade of the Grenadiers.

At the head of the pageant came the parade of the Grenadiers, with Fennar's Sudanese Band, who were commanded by Clinton Mackenzie and Howard C. Dickinson. They included Chester H. Aldrich, Ricardo Bertelli, John D. Boyd, Archibald M. Brown, Harry R. Burt, F. Burnham Chapman, George S. Chappell, Harvey Corbett, C. E. Falls, J. Hunter Field, W. H. Gompert, Edward S. Hewitt, J. Monroe Hewlett, Lansing C. Holden Jr., Raymond M. Hood, Harry Allan Jacobs, Leo Lentelli, Julian Clarence Levi, W. E. Lundgren, Edward McCartan, H. Oothout Milliken, James W. O'Connor, Ronald H. Oakley VanderPoel, W. Halsted VanderPoel and A. Stewart Walker.

Then came Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, costumed as the "Golden Eagle," representing the symbol of Napoleon. Her costume was one of the most magnificent at the ball. The huge wings of real eagle feathers measured fifteen feet from tip to tip. Mrs. Menken's entrance was followed by the episode representing a fête in the garden of Versailles. Among those appearing in this scene were:

The Dauphin.....Miss Cecile Fuller
The Duc D'Hartcourt (his governor)

"Little Corporal" Arrives.

The central figure at this stage was the character of Sanson, the executioner, a rôle assumed by Don Dickerman. His actions and the policies of the revolutionist government were then upset by the appearance of "le Petit Corporal," whose new ideas then dominated the chaos of social and military standards. The next scene included a reception of the Incroyables, those followers of the new régime who in their dress and manner were, actually, unbelievable. Episodes of the Directoire showed the results of that standard, and for the entertainment of those at the reception a ballet of the new order was presented by the Albertina Rasch Dancers in affected mimicry of the fallen aristocracy.

The Incroyables were portrayed by Mrs. Kenneth Syard, Mrs. D. Putnam Brinley, Mrs. Taylor Scott Hardin, the Misses Carolyn and Anne Storrs, Mary Brown Warburton, Elizabeth Miller and Virginia Robinson, Blanchard Smith, Angus Mackintosh, Mogens Tzede, Alfred de Liagnes, Kenneth Syard, John Bell, Ronald Freedlander and Taylor Scott Hardin.

Meanwhile Napoleon had established himself as a great General, and the episodes that followed depicted notable incidents in his campaigns in Italy, Egypt and Russia. His victory at Arcola was shown, followed by the battle of the Pyramids and episodes of the first Russian campaign. General Bonaparte in these scenes was played by Ernest Piexotto. Those representing his soldiers were Delano Andrews, Herman Boker, Carl Boker, C. Kenneth Clinton, R. Beverly Corbin, Howard C. Dickinson, Dwight Francis, Lawrence L. Gillespie, Curt E. Hansen, Wallace Harrison, Murray Hoffman, A. Musgrave Hyde, H. Seaver Jones, Preston Lockwood, Clarence V. Mitchell, Denholm McKie, J. Harlin O'Connell, Franklin S. Richardson, James H. Ripley, Henry B. D. Schwab, Hermann C. Schwab, George Stockley, Robert Stott and Reginald T. Townsend.

Napoleon Crowns Himself.

The finale, a brilliant scene in itself, portrayed the celebration of the famous 2d of December, 1804, when Napoleon proclaimed the empire, which was the event of his coronation. Although the Pope had come from Rome to crown the new ruler, Napoleon seized the crown and placed it upon his own head. This scene was witnessed by royal visitors and emissaries from foreign lands, princes of the Church, the militia and citizenry of France. Mr. Cusachs again assumed the rôle of Napoleon, and that of Josephine was portrayed by Miss Ethel Barrymore.

The participants in the pageant made their way across the ballroom floor to the platform at the foot of the broad staircase leading to the throne and the boxes, in which were those who played parts of the sovereigns and their closest courtiers. Immediately after the pageant the platform was removed to give space for general dancing. The floor was quickly filled by those who had been watching the spectacle, their costumes presenting a riot of color.

Dancing was continuous in the ballrooms and galleries to the music of several orchestras.

A supper was served after the pageant.

Hosts at Dinners.

COSTUMES ARE DAZZLING.

Leaders of Society Resplendent in Gowns of the Period.

Some gorgeous costumes were worn at the Beaux Arts Ball last night, not only by the participants in the pageant but by those in the general assemblage. Military, Church and civic dignitaries of the period were represented—gentlemen of the court, peasants, street types and representatives of the foreign courts—all the costumes being historically correct to the last detail. The materials ranged from gorgeous brocades and handsome embroidered velvets to the simple silks and muslins worn by the peasants.

Miss Ethel Barrymore, as the Empress Josephine, represented the Empress in her coronation robe of cream-colored satin with an extremely long court train of cardinal red velvet lined with gold tissue and embroidered with the crest of Napoleon. She wore a crown of diamonds and emeralds. The costume was designed by James Reynolds, one of the ball committee, after the famous painting by David.

Philip A. Cusachs, as Napoleon, wore a green velvet coat elaborately embroidered with golden wheat, and court breeches of white satin. Earlier in the evening he was one of the military guard and was dressed accordingly.

Mrs. Edward F. Hutton portrayed Marie Antoinette, and wore a splendid court costume of white transparent velvet, embroidered in brilliants and trimmed with sable. It was worn over a peach-colored petticoat trimmed with rows of d'Alencon lace. The gown had a long court train of the velvet also, embroidered in brilliants and edged with sable. With this costume Mrs. Hutton wore a white wig with peach-colored plumes. Her jewels were pearls and diamonds.

Mrs. James H. Snowden was lovely as Hortense, Queen of Holland, in a flame-colored chiffon velvet costume appliqued with copper metallic leaves. The sleeves and train were of copper metallic cloth, the latter lined with orange-colored charmeuse and embroidered with the coat-of-arms of Holland.

Golden Eagle Gorgeous.

Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, as in former years, wore one of the notable costumes of the night. As the Golden Eagle, she represented "the Spirit of Napoleon's Campaigns." Her costume, a huge affair, was of cloth of gold, Fully 400 eagle feathers, encrusted with gold leaf, were used to make the wings, which measured fifteen feet from tip to tip. The bird's head, body and tail feathers were embroidered with amber stones.

Ben Ali Haggin, as General La Salles, leader of the Little Corporal's advance guard, wore a high-collared gold-corded white tunic and embroidered trousers with a gold sash. An orange-colored Hussar cape coat edged with silver gray fur and a tall shako completed his costume.

Mrs. Whitney Warren was a French peasant, an exact replica of an original canvas in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Miss Beatrice Greenough, Mrs. Warren's granddaughter, wore a Grecian costume of the period of 1804 of pale lemon-colored satin belted with a jade and apple green chiffon sash. A bandeau of shaded green leaves was twined in her hair.

Mrs. Kenneth M. Murchison was in an Empire costume of blue-backed silver cloth, embroidered with crystal and rhinestones and embellished with cascades of pale jade and blue feathers. It had a long train of silver cloth. Miss Aurelie Murchison, as the Grand Duchesse da Berg, wore turquoise blue chiffon velvet, the bodice embroidered in seed pearls and finished with a collar of silver lace.

Mrs. Frank Vance Storrs was a Spanish lady of the time, in a black velvet costume with mantilla of gold thread Spanish lace. Her daughters, the Misses Carolyn and Anne Storrs, were attired alike in Empire costumes of white satin, embellished with bows of red taffeta and cherries. They wore bonnets of red taffeta and lace mitts of the same shade.

Mrs. Ziegler a Princess.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ziegler represented the Prince and Princess de Benavente. Mrs. Ziegler's costume was of aquamarine-colored crêpe satin, embroidered with a flower design in pearls and rhinestones. There was a train of cloth of silver, lined with green chiffon and embellished with baroque pearls. She wore court jewelry of the period. Mr. Ziegler's costume was of king-blue velvet, elaborately embroidered in thread gold. White ostrich plumes and gold lace topped his chapeau.

Mrs. Elisha Walker and her daughter, Miss Adele Walker, portrayed Mme. de la Wallette and Mme. de la Rochefoucauld. Their gowns, of similar design, were of white satin embroidered in diamonds and pearls. Their trains were of ruby-colored velvet edged with ermine. The crowns, earrings, bracelets and necklaces they wore were true to the period.

Mrs. Sigourney Thayer, as L'Aiglon, wore a jade green cloth coat, appliqued in gold leaf, and snug-fitting white military breeches with a full, circular white cloak over all. Her shako was trimmed in leopard fur.

Miss Eleanor Post Hutton was a Princess and wore a court costume of pink net and taffeta, appliqued in gold lace and embroidered with brilliants and jewels. Dainty flowers adorned her white wig. Miss Anne Howard Caparn also wore a court costume of pink tissue, embellished with long streamers down the front of silver flame ribbon. Her train was of red velvet bordered with silver leaves. She wore a tiara of rhinestones, also earrings of gold and pearls and a necklace of crystals, once the property of the Empress Eugenia. Miss Rhys Caparn wore a black velvet gown with puffed sleeves and trimmed with silver ribbons. Silver leaves trimmed the train, and she wore a filet of silver leaves in her hair.

Miss Mary Avesnana Benjamin as the Princess Borghese wore a costume of gold-colored satin. The train lined with gold velvet and fastened to the gown with a gold and blue flower. Over all was worn a cape of golden-colored velvet lined with the same shade of satin and trimmed with kolinsky fur. She wore a tiara of blue and gold brilliants. Miss Blanche Howard Gaillard wore a court costume of mauve satin, the neck outlined with silver tissue, and the skirt slit to the knee. There was a long train to one side. Miss Gaillard wore a tiara of brilliants.

Mrs. David Wagstaff as the Princesse de Conti wore a court costume of green taffeta and net embroidered in brilliants and trimmed with French flowers. The Duchesse de Dansig was represented by Mrs. Louis M. Gourd, who wore a 1798 period costume of blue velvet and rose-colored taffeta, and a large hat trimmed with ostrich plumes. Mrs. H. Nelson Slater wore a Directoire costume of black and white satin and a turban of silver and black.

Mrs. Gossler as Russian.

Mrs. Philip G. Gossler wore a Russian costume of blue crêpe, trimmed with chinchilla fur and embroidered in brilliants, which also embellished her high Russian headdress. Mrs. Dudley Hardy was in a Russian peasant costume of white organdie, embroidered in bright-colored worsteds. Mrs. Morgan La Montagne wore an Empire costume of peach-colored satin, trimmed with small roses, and a bonnet of the period.

The Duchesse d'Abrantes was represented by Mrs. Douglas Paige, who wore a gayly striped full skirt with a cerise velvet bodice and long sleeves of white satin, painted in gold. A painted veil flowed from her tiny "inverted tambourine" hat. Mrs. Philip A. Cusachs was La Belle Martiniquaise, her costume inspired by the gayety of the Martinique better class, with a scarf draped about the head, topped by a straw hat tilted high at the back. Mrs. Royal E. T. Riggs, as the Princess Borghese, wore a costume of black velvet and white satin, combined with embroidered Chantilly lace. She wore a tiara of brilliants and carried a green-painted fan.

Wearing the costume Violettes Impériales, inspired by the violet, the favorite flower of Napoleon, Mrs. Mason Day was attractive in a skirt of point d'esprit, bordered with violets, and a bodice of lavender satin. A high blue felt poke bonnet trimmed with violets completed her costume. Mrs. Joseph Urban wore blue chiffon velvet ornamented with garlands of pearls, which also embellished the silver lace collar.

Mrs. Esmond O'Brien, as "the Littlest Rebel," wore a white chiffon blouse with tight-fitting satin breeches, and a white felt hat trimmed with the tricolor. Mrs. Harold C. Richard was in an Empire costume of white satin spangled with silver stars. Miss Mary Brown Warburton, as one of the Incroyables, wore a green moiré coat lined with gold satin over an orange satin underdress. Her bonnet of black cire satin was trimmed with orange velvet bows.

Miss Priscilla Alden Allen wore the gown of her great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Albert Gallatin, whose husband was United States Minister to France. It was rose-colored satin, embellished with old lace. Mrs. Andrew Miller had a green velvet costume, embroidered in rhinestones, and her daughter, Miss Frances Miller, wore white satin, embroidered in pearls, with a sapphire-colored velvet train, edged with pearl fringe.

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO CHURCHGOERS

CEMETERY CROSS LIGHTED

Thousands Pause to Watch the Illumination of Crucifix Alongside Trinity.

Cardinal Cerretti of Rome will sail this noon on the Italian liner Conte Biancamano from the foot of West Fifty-fifth Street. He has been the guest of Cardinal Hayes for the last fortnight and he is passing through this country on his way home from Australia, where in September he was the legate of Pope Pius XI at the twenty-ninth International Eucharistic Congress in Sydney.

A formal farewell will be given to the Italian Cardinal, who, it is being quite generally predicted, will some day occupy the Chair of St. Peter. Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, the rector, has arranged to have the children of the schools of St. Patrick's Cathedral line the sidewalks about that edifice, each carrying a tiny American flag in one hand and in the other a tiny Papal flag. Bishop John J. Dunn, monsignori, Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament and many secular priests will escort the prelate to the pier. There will be more clergy waiting there to say good-bye. Cardinal Cerretti will pass through St. Patrick's, pausing at the high altar to repeat "Itinerarum" or "The Journey Prayer."

Thousands of late workers in the downtown business district have paused this week to see the illumination of the tall crucifix which stands in the centre of the uptown side of Trinity Cemetery at the head of Wall Street. An electrical device has been installed and now from sundown to the early hours of the morning four brilliant lights are focused on the cross. The cross, which is of white marble thirty-nine feet high, was the gift in 1914 of Mrs. M. Orme Wilson in memory of Mrs. William Astor, her mother. At the top are figures of Christ and a Madonna and Child.

Archbishop Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi of Washington, D. C., Apostolic Delegate in the United States, will come to this city to attend the concert which the Paulist Choristers, under the direction of the Rev. William J. Finn, will give Tuesday evening in the Metropolitan Opera House. There will be 125 choristers and their program will include "Palestrina." Cardinal Hayes will also be present, as will Bishop Dunn. Another prelate who will come to this city to attend will be Bishop Joseph Shrembs of Cleveland, Ohio.

George MacDonald, close personal friend of Cardinal Hayes, who was one of the twenty-two Americans just named as a Knight of Malta by Pope Pius XI, now has more Vatican titles than any other American layman. He is a Papal Chamberlain, a Knight Commander of the Holy Sepulchre and a Knight of St. Gregory the Great.

At a meeting of the Fellowship of Faiths to be held next Monday evening in the auditorium of the Union Methodist Church, Forty-eighth Street just west of Broadway, Swami Yogananda will speak on "Agreements in Hinduism and Roman Catholicism."

Rabbis in synagogues and temples will this morning speak on "Modern Health Work in Palestine." The day is annually observed as "Hadassah Sabbath." It will be the culmination of the January nation-wide membership campaign of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, which conducts a system of scientific health work in Palestine. The goal of the campaign is 50,000 members.

Under the auspices of the Permanent Commission on Better Understanding between Christians and Jews in America there will be a radio program over WRNY tomorrow evening from 6 to 7 o'clock in celebration of the bicentenary of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing, German poet and dramatist, which anniversary was last Tuesday. Lessing was instrumental in breaking down the walls which finally led to the self-emancipation of the Jews in Germany. The speakers will be Professor Robert H. Fife of Columbia University, Professor Wesley Daniel Zinnecker of New York University and Dr. George Alexander Kohut, editor of a critical edition of Lessing's "Nathan the Wise" in English

Under the auspices of the board of directors of the Stony Brook School for Boys, at Stony Brook, L. I., a dinner will be held Tuesday evening at the Hotel Roosevelt as a memorial to the Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, founder of the school, who for forty-two years was pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn. The school seeks $500,000 for building and endowment. Already $100,000 has been contributed. A similar dinner was held last week in the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn. Hugh R. Monro, president of the Montclair (N. J.) National Bank, is president of the board. Roy M. Hart of Brooklyn is chairman of the executive committee of the campaign.

Plans for a week of "Visitation Evangelism," such as was conducted a year ago, will be launched under the auspices of the Greater New York Federation of Churches on Monday morning at three successive meetings of ministers. At each the speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Guy H. Black, a pioneer leader in this movement, who was formerly a member of the Methodist Board of Home Missions. The meetings will be: Methodist, 150 Fifth Avenue, 11 o'clock; Presbyterian, 156 Fifth Avenue, noon; Baptist, Central Baptist Church, Amsterdam Avenue and Ninety-second Street, 1:30 o'clock. The dates of the campaigns in the five boroughs will be: Bronx, Feb. 10-15; Manhattan and Staten Island, Feb. 17-22; Brooklyn, Feb. 24-March 1; Queens, March 3-8.

The first meeting of a "Coast-to-Coast Evangelistic Campaign," under the auspices of the World Dominion Movement, with headquarters at 1 Tudor Street, London, and 113 Fulton Street, Manhattan, will be held Wednesday evening in the Gospel Tabernacle, Eighth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. The chief speaker will be Thomas Cochrane, founder of the Union Medical College, Peking, and now editor of World Dominion.

The Bach Cantata Club will give a recital of sacred cantatas next Wednesday evening in Trinity Church, at the head of Wall Street. The preacher in that edifice at noon services next week will be the Rev. Reginald N. Willcox, rector of St. Mary's Church, Gowanda, N. Y.

Next Thursday there will be started courses of three lectures at the Cenacle Convent, 628 West 140th Street. The lectures will be on methods of teaching Catholic doctrine to children. They will be on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4 o'clock and on Saturdays at 2:30 o'clock. Those who take the courses must register first at the branch of Fordham University, Woolworth Building.

BARNES TO MEET KRASS IN DEBATE ON 'NEW GOD'

Community Church and Union Methodist Invite Discussion of Science and Faith.

Professor Harry Elmer Barnes of Smith College, proponent of a new concept of God, will debate his views with Rabbi Nathan Krass of Temple Emanu-El next Wednesday in the Community Church of New York, 12 Park Avenue, and on the following Sunday evening Dr. Barnes will speak on "The Scientific Demand for a New Religion" in the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, Forty-eighth Street west of Broadway.

Theodore W. Darnell, executive director of the Community Church, wrote to Dr. Barnes yesterday, assuring him that "regardless altogether of the attitude of other churches," the Community Church "will be glad to welcome you on Wednesday evening, and it assures you of its desire to have you speak freely on the subject in controversy." Mr. Darnell wrote to Dr. Barnes upon reading newspaper reports yesterday of the action of the board of deacons of the Broadway Tabernacle Church in moving to bar the scientist from appearing there in a debate with Professor E. P. Van Dusen of Union Theological Seminary on Feb. 5.

Mr. Darnell's letter said in part: "If Christians are afraid of those who attack their positions, does it not seem that these positions lack force and conviction? The Lord of Hosts then becomes a puny sort of deity rather than a conquering hero."

In announcing yesterday that Dr. Barnes would speak at Union Methodist Church on the evening of Feb. 3, the Rev. C. Everett Wagner, the pastor, said that Professor William Adams Brown of Union Theological Seminary would deliver an answering address on Sunday evening, Feb. 10. It was pointed out, however, that "the discussion does not take the form of a debate, for there is no rebuttal and both speakers do not appear on the platform the same evening, but it amounts to the same as far as discussing both the pros and cons of science and religion is concerned."

Mr. Wagner said he believes that the critics of religion should be heard inside the church as well as outside. The announcement said that "organized religion should change and is changing many of its conceptions, but it has nothing to fear or tremble about on account of the thrusts of its antagonists."

MRS. CUMMINGS WINS GREEK CHURCH CROSS

In recognition of her "philanthropic and humanitarian work among women" Mrs. Edith Mae Cummings of Detroit, founder of the new National School of Business Science for Women, in Washington, received the decoration of the Knighthood of the Holy Sepulchre of the Greek Orthodox Church in a ceremony at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel yesterday. She is the first woman in America, and the third in history, to get the decoration.

The cross of the order was conferred upon Mrs. Cummings by Archbishop Panteleimon of Jerusalem and all Palestine, in the name of Daji Damianos, Patriarch of Jerusalem of of the Greek Orthodox Church. The recipient was called a "model of Christian womanhood in America."

Mrs. Cummings, out of her own experience, believes that to succeed women must develop a neuter personality. Nine years ago her husband died, leaving her with two small sons and an aged mother to support. She developed her principles for success of women in business as a real estate operator in Detroit, became wealthy and has determined to devote her life, she declared, to spreading these principles. At the National School of Business Science women may learn the general principles of business, not specialization, at a nominal cost.

Mrs. Cummings plans an "inspirational" lecture tour of the country shortly to aid the cause of women in the trades.

Aid in Chinese Famine Asked.

The China Famine Relief of 205 East Forty-second Street announced yesterday that reports from China to the Foreign Missions Conference in Detroit had led to a resolution expressing the need for immediate relief through an appeal to the American public this Winter and Spring. According to an estimate at least 20,000,000 persons will be facing starvation before Spring unless relief is brought to them.

Y. M. C. A. to Seek $395,948.

The New York City Y. M. C. A. will start on Monday a campaign for $395,948 to balance its budget for 1929. The drive will open at a luncheon at the Commodore for 600 workers. A series of luncheons will be held daily until Feb. 8. J. Horton Ijams, a member of the board of directors, is chairman of the campaign.

RABBI ASKS MISSIONS TO RULE ON CHILDREN

Dr. Goldstein Requests Consent of Jewish Parents Be Obtained for Admission to Institution.

A request that the Home Missions Council, which is made up of thirty-eight Protestant Home Mission Boards, give directions that Jewish children shall not be admitted into any of the Christian institutions under the auspices of these boards without the consent and approval of the parents of such children is made in a letter sent yesterday to the Rev. William R. King, executive secretary of the council, 105 East Twenty-second Street, by the Rev. Dr. Israel Goldstein, rabbi of Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, Eighty-eighth Street, west of Broadway.

The letter was in reply to a statement adopted by the Home Missions Council at its annual meeting at Atlantic City, following a complaint by Rabbi Goldstein to that body on Jan. 9.

In his letter to Dr. King Dr. Goldstein said:

"The comment in your letter that 'we practically agree with you in your major contention with reference to the little children of your race,' is indeed substantiated by that portion of the report adopted by the Home Missions Council which states that, 'when little children from Jewish families come to our churches, Sunday schools and our neighborhood houses, we believe it is desirable that they should come with the consent and approval of their parents.'

"Genuine good-will between Jews and Christians is retarded by attempts to convert Jews to Christianity," the Rev. Abraham L. Feinberg declared last evening in Temple Israel, Ninety-first Street, near Broadway. "These missions are resented by the self-respecting of the House of Israel for several reasons. In the first place they imply the possession of absolute truth, whereas no faith has a monopoly on divine revelations and all are equally ignorant about the great mysteries of life and death. Secondly, they operate on the assumption that the most important thing in life is to achieve salvation for our souls in the future world. We Jews insist that our first concern is to establish a perfect society in this world. Third, they often bring discord into families and lure away children from their parents. Fourth, they are doomed to futility."

ASK DELAY ON ARMAMENTS.

Church Council Holds the Nations Should Await Preparatory Session.

The administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches, at a meeting yesterday at 105 East Twenty-second Street, drew up resolutions urging that all nations postpone "all proposed expenditures for military or naval increase until after the forthcoming meeting of the Preparatory Commission on Reduction of Armaments."

"Such postponment would in no wise endanger security," the resolution stated. "It would be unmistakable evidence of the desire of all nations to give the pact their full support in all good faith and to put confidence in their mutual pledges."

The administrative committee also extended its felicitations to the President, Secretary of State and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate on the ratification of the General Pact for the Renunciation of War, which was regarded as likely to prove "a turning point in human history."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The stock market fairly broke loose yesterday from whatever there may have been of restraint, and a succession of spectacular advances was staged. Stocks which rose 5 or 6 points were numerous; a dozen of the "speculative favorites" were bid up 8, 10 and 16 points. Some of the shares whose early rise was most violent rushed down again 3, 5 or 6 points, but even the later reaction did not affect the entire market.

In actual fact, the day's excited speculation for the rise expressed primarily the mood and feelings of the outside speculators. It could hardly have been described as occasioned by the day's financial news. There was a good deal of effort to connect the two, but it was rather plainly a not very convincing afterthought. By a somewhat curious inversion, the news development most harped upon as a cause of the enthusiasm was the brokers' loan report of the day before, which Wall Street described as showing a much smaller increase than there had been reason to expect.

The fact that the increase was twice as large as had ever before occurred in that week of January, and that the increase for the month to date has been three times as rapid as has been usual even in recent Januaries, attracted no attention. The railway earnings reports for December, and their highly favorable comparison with the year before, were properly enough emphasized; but it was impossible to interest anybody in the fact that they were still much below the same month in 1926. To cite these qualifying considerations is not to paint the picture in dark colors; it is simply to suggest that a true perspective of the economic situation should be retained. That suggestion undoubtedly irritates speculative Wall Street, however; which shows, perhaps, how far the financial point of view has shifted from its position in the almost-forgotten normal times.

For the fifth time since the year began and the twentieth in the Stock Exchange's history, transactions ran above 5,000,000 shares; only once before last November was that milestone passed. The day brought no fresh developments in the money market, where call loans remained at 6 per cent, or in sterling exchange, the rate for which went yesterday a fraction below any previous quotation of the year, though not to the lowest price of last November. Money in London did not change; the bank lost no gold and bought a little. Apparently, the engagements thus far made in that market for New York have been about equally divided between withdrawals from the Bank of England and purchases from the South African arrivals.

The mercantile agencies again tell a cheerful week-end story. Bradstreet still emphasizes the fact that production of goods is proceeding more rapidly than distribution; but this it ascribes to unfavorable weather conditions, and Dun reports that evidences of expanding commercial activities are increasingly numerous and definite. There is the usual testimony to urgent competition, yet even the mercantile agencies are impressed with the increased earnings reported by many of the larger industrial corporations. The dry goods trade is once more an exception to the agreeable testimony. This may reflect the difficulties long inherent in the textile trade under existing conditions. No one has yet suggested that, when "luxury trades" which promote instalment purchases are obtaining unprecedentedly large orders, it is possible that economies have been made inevitable in the necessaries.

BIG BUS MERGER FORMED.

Four Lines and 285 Vehicles in the Nevin Combination.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 25 (AP).—A merger of trans-continental bus lines, involving 285 buses and other assets amounting to $1,100,000, was announced here this afternoon when the Nevin Bus Lines, Inc., of New York, took over three other companies.

The lines involved are the Paradox, operating between Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, Casper and Cheyenne, Wyo.; the Continental Stages, Inc., of Chicago, operating through Pittsburgh, Akron, Fort Wayne, Chicago, Salt Lake City and Kansas City, and the Silver Arrow Line, operating through Detroit, Toledo, Massillon, and Pittsburgh.

NASH STOCK RISES SHARPLY

Advance Accompanies Packard Merger Rumor, Denied by Macauley.

The reports in Wall Street of negotiations for a merger of the Nash and Packard Motor Companies, later denied by Alvan Macauley, president of the latter organization, were accompanied by active buying of Nash stock, which at one time placed it almost 10 points higher than the previous day's close. The first sales recorded on the ticker aggregated 32,000 shares, at $115 a share, as against a final quotation of 109⅞ on the previous day. Heavy trading took place in Nash all day, a total of 232,400 shares changing hands, and the close, at 116¾, showed a net gain for the day of 7⅞ points.

Packard moved within a narrower range and closed with a fractional gain for the day at 142¾.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and in the Financial Markets.

New confidence on the part of speculative interests was reflected in yesterday's rather excited buying of a large number of "trading favorites" on the Stock Exchange. United States Steel probably did most, in the view of professional Wall Street, to set in motion the latest demonstration. That stock, over which traders can get enthusiastic on any flurry of strength, rose 9 points above the closing price of the day before in uncommonly heavy trading. Although selling off 5 points from the day's high figure of 192¾, it closed with a net gain of 4 points. Other stocks which made notable gains were Allied Chemical, American Smelting, By-Products Coke, Commercial Investment Trust, American Sugar, du Pont, Electric Auto-Lite, Mack Trucks, United States Industrial Alcohol and Shubert Theatre. Many stocks failed to participate in the advance and a few closed the day below the final quotations of the day before.

Explaining the Rise.

Professional operators made the most yesterday of such new developments as could be used for "constructive" purposes. The increase of $48,000,000 in brokers' loans, announced the afternoon before, was generally discussed as a "bullish development" in spite of the fact that the total borrowings were lifted to the highest figure in history. Professional Wall Street's theory was that the increase might have been much larger, therefore it was the signal to buy stocks. Stock market interests also capitalized the resumption of common stock dividends by Bethlehem Steel. The mood of the market seemed to be to put a favorable interpretation on any news and to ignore news which would not admit of such interpretation.

The Long and the Short of It.

Despite the misgivings which many traders have had concerning the future of the market ever since the break in December, the recovery and subsequent progress made since that time were admitted yesterday to be in line with one very significant fact about general public participation. The average trader never sells short. On the short side of the market, which is for the present the unprofitable side, have been arrayed only the habitual bear element and sold-out bulls. Were the myriad of small traders in the market as ready to sell short as to go long of the market, the periodic over-sold condition of the market and the subsequent shake-out would admittedly be less frequent and hardly as disturbing as they have hitherto been.

Reserve Banks Sell Securities.

The reduction of $36,000,000 in the New York Reserve Bank's holdings of United States Government securities this week, the first important change that has taken place in that item since the time of the Treasury financing of last December, attracted attention in Wall Street yesterday as a possible indication of Federal Reserve policy toward the money market. The Reserve Bank also sharply reduced its holdings of bills purchased in the open market; but that action had been anticipated by the readjustment in the rates on bankers' acceptances, and the previous intimations that the Reserve Bank in the future was to hold more aloof from the acceptance market. The sale of securities is one of the most powerful instruments in the hands of the Reserve Bank in the tightening of money rates, though its current purchases so far have not affected rates. The government security holdings of the New York Reserve Bank are now $58,000,000 below those of a year ago, and those of the twelve Reserve banks combined are down $220,000,000.

Money Easy in London.

Continued ease in money rates in London was the subject of comment yesterday in relation to the depression in sterling, which has already caused several shipments of metal from London for New York and is expected to bring in further large amounts of the metal next week. The Bank of England so far is taking no measures whatever to stiffen money rates as a protection for exchange. The Bank's statement of Thursday showed a reduction of about $30,000,000 of government security holdings and a decrease of about $15,000,000 of holdings of other securities. If, as some persons here believe, the purpose behind these sales was the pushing up of money rates, they have not succeeded.

New Financing Increases.

A pronounced broadening of activity in the flotation of new bond issues has been an outstanding feature of the investment situation this week. It was the first week this year in which bond offerings exceeded the $100,000,000-mark, and all the major classifications were represented in the expansion. It was noted, however, that several of the larger issues contained provisions of one kind or another for conversion into stock, showing that possible appreciation in value still enters largely into the considerations of investors buying bonds. New offerings of stock this week also were exceptionally large, one investment trust alone selling more than $100,000,000 of its securities. The bond offerings have been so small in recent weeks that dealers' supplies had become depleted, as a result of which the new offerings this week have found a ready market.

A Larger Exchange Membership.

Judging by comments heard in stock market circles, the plan, announced yesterday, providing for 275 additional seats on the Stock Exchange has a better chance of being approved than any that has yet been submitted. Because it is proposed that each present member shall receive a substantial direct monetary benefit, the prospects are that a majority of the membership will support the plan, according to informal canvasses that were made. The Exchange's object is to enlarge the membership as soon as possible. The governing authorities realize that it may take three years, under the proposed plan, to fill all of the 275 additional seats, but the probability is that a large number of the new seats will be sold within a few months after the approval of the plan.

MONEY.

Friday, Jan. 25, 1929.

Stock Exchange call money remained firm at 6 per cent, unchanged, and no concession from that rate obtained in wire trading. While demand was light, supply was only fair and nothing was left unloaned at close. Time money was a good deal more active, although quotations remained unchanged at 7½@7¾ per cent. Commercial paper and acceptances were likewise unchanged in quiet trading.

REVISE RAIL BILL TO SPEED MERGERS

ROAD MAJORITIES TO RULE

Minority Stockholders Could Be Overridden—Broad Powers for Commerce Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A railroad consolidation bill by Senator Fess of Ohio, said to have the approval of President Coolidge and President-elect Hoover, is about to be submitted by a subcommittee to the full committee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

The Fess bill, which has been under constant revision for months, is designed to permit railroads to acquire other systems by stock purchase, bring about consolidations and operate the combinations under a new name. Senator Fess believes the bill can be presented to the full committee Tuesday and passed by the Senate before this session ends.

According to the Ohio Senator, the bill would produce the greatest change in the railroad situation since the Government returned the roads to their owners after the war. Friends of the measure declare that both Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover feel that, with the bill's passage, the carriers could proceed with improvements which have not thus far been made effective because of the uncertain legislative situation. As drawn, the bill would block out minority stockholders who have been successful in preventing unification plans, notably in the attempt of the Van Sweringens to put through their merger plans, which the Chesapeake & Ohio minority group opposed.

Measure Has Wide Scope.

The bill provides a hearing for the minority group, but would automatically permit a railroad to join a consolidation if the majority stockholders favor it and if interstate commerce rules and regulations are satisfied.

Consolidations, as differentiated from mergers, are made possible. The interstate commerce bill of 1920 expressly prohibited consolidations. Under the Fess bill, it would be possible to form an entirely new corporation to issue securities representing the value of all the carriers in the consolidation, and operate under a new name, while the individual companies would lose their identities.

The Interstate Commerce Commission may order included in a consolidation any small or weak lines, even if the small lines do not want to enter the consolidation and even if the consolidation interests do not want them. If the commission feels it to be in the public interest to include the weak lines, it would be given authority to make such an order. Objections that the weak lines would boost their sale price sky high to defeat the commission's order have been met by a provision authorizing the commission to prescribe the terms of the purchase.

Would Repeal Mandate of 1920.

The bill would repeal the mandate of the 1920 law, under which the Interstate Commerce Commission was ordered to chart a complete plan of unification of railroads for the entire country. This mandate has been protested time and again by the commission, which contends it is utterly unable to formulate such a plan. President Coolidge also has urged that the mandate be repealed.

Some railroad authorities, among them the Van Sweringens, object that the repeal would nullify the years of planning which they have carried on independently, but Mr. Fess and other committee members do not agree that this would be so.

Senator Fess says the bill would remove objections of State commissions, which contend that it is planned to enact a Federal or national corporation act. The bill says on this point:

"Nothing in this title should be construed to authorize or provide for the creation, directly or indirectly, of any Federal or national corporation; and all the powers, rights, privileges and franchises granted by this act to any corporation now existing or hereafter created, are, and shall be deemed to be, supplementary and in addition to or in modification of, the powers, rights, privileges and franchises of such corporation granted by its charter, or existing under the laws by virtue of which it was or may be created."

Majority Principle Adopted.

One provision is intended to dispose of the opposition of minority stockholders by permitting consolidation interests to condemn holdings of minority stockholders under the right of eminent domain, if the Interstate Commerce Commission approves a consolidation.

The subcommittee, according to Senator Fess, realizes that this procedure is a radical departure from past and present practice, but believes it fully justified.

"It is simply adopting the principle upon which everything is operated in this country," said Mr. Fess. "In our government affairs the majority rules. The majority of every board of trustees rules. It seems to me we propose only government sanction, or recognition, of an already established and recognized practice."

Senator Watson, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission, has talked over the proposed bill with Mr. Hoover, according to Senator Fess. Almost without exception, Mr. Fess said, railroad and shipping interests have declared themselves in favor of it.

Gets Interest in Airplane Concern.

Tynchon & Co. has acquired an interest in the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation of Buffalo, which contracts for government training planes, it was announced yesterday. The Consolidated Company has recently completed a large flying boat for the Navy Department which is now undergoing tests at the Anacostia Naval Air Station, Washington.

RAILROAD EARNINGS.

Reports for December and the Twelve Months of 1928 and Previous Years.

The Erie Railroad System shows for 1928 a net income of $10,002,884 after taxes and charges but before sinking fund appropriations. This is equivalent, after allowing for 4 per cent dividend requirements on the first and second preferred stocks, to $4.93 a share earned on 1,511,167 shares of common stock. It compares with $8,613,650, or 63 cents a common share, in 1927.

The report of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines for 1928 shows a net income of $7,466,263 after taxes and charges, equivalent, after dividends on the convertible preferred stock amounting to $3,763,871, to $4.61 a share earned on 809,119 no-par common shares. This compares with $5,994,810, or $4.80 a common share, in 1927.

The Pere Marquette Railway Company reports for 1928 a net income of $8,464,971 after taxes and charges, equal, after estimating dividend requirements on the 5 per cent prior preferred and preferred stocks, to $16.17 a share earned on 450,460 shares of common stock. This compares with $7,176,924, or $12.11, a common share, in the previous year.

The Maine Central Railroad Company in a preliminary statement for 1928 shows a net income of $788,431 after taxes and charges, equivalent, after allowing for dividend requirements on the 5 per cent preferred stock, to $5.31 a share earned on 120,071 shares of common stock. This compares with $551,025, or $3.34 a share, in 1927.

The Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company for the year shows a net income of $300,902 after taxes and charges, equivalent, after dividend requirements on the 4 per cent preferred stock, to $4.69 a share earned on 30,000 shares of common stock. This compares with $145,482, or $3.63 a share, on 40,000 shares of preferred stock in the previous year.

ARBITRATION GROUP PLANS STATE LAWS

MORE TRIBUNALS SOUGHT

A plan to establish nation-wide effectiveness of commercial arbitration by the enactment of State arbitration laws, patterned after the United States arbitration law of 1925, was begun yesterday at a luncheon of the American Arbitration Association at the Bankers' Club, 120 Broadway. About sixty business men attended the luncheon.

This project also seeks an enlargement of the association's national system of tribunals for settling business disputes, and also an educational movement to demonstrate to business men throughout the country the advantages of arbitration.

General James G. Harbord presided at the luncheon, the speakers being William C. Redfield, former Secretary of Commerce; Charles T. Gwynne, vice chairman of the board of the association; Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company; Morgan J. O'Brien and Moses H. Grossman.

"More than 1,500 tribunals in as many different cities, with more than 5,000 arbitrators available, have been established as the American Arbitration Association's system of facilities," Mr. Gwynne said. He referred to this as "an achievement possible in no other country in the world." The arbitrators, who serve without compensation, include former judges, bankers, business executives, manufacturers, professional men. It is planned to expand the system to cover every commodity and every important commercial centre in American business.

Mr. O'Brien, referring to the legislative program, pointed out that "under the common law all arbitration agreements were illegal." This is being remedied, he said, by statutes which make an agreement to arbitrate valid and enforceable at law. The New York law, passed in 1920, is said to be a model act and similar laws are in force in California, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Oregon and Pennsylvania.

Mr. Redfield called commercial arbitration the "most humane way of settling disputes." He endorsed it strongly as being "economic, wise and civilized," and said that "we must first have peace among ourselves before we can hope to have peace between ourselves and others."

The Arbitration Association's special undertaking to extend commercial arbitration is to be directed by an executive council, of which General Harbord is president. Mr. Sisson is to be chairman and General Samuel McRoberts, president of the Chatham Phenix National Bank, will be treasurer.

RETAIL MARKET HERE DULL

Bidders, However, Show Tendency to Raise Prices—Syndicates Being Reorganized.

Next week's aggregate of municipal bond awards will exceed this week's total, although both amounts are comparatively small for this season of the year. Next week's figure will reach $21,488,121, compared with this week's revised total of $13,705,395. The increase is accounted for by inclusion of two large issues, $8,500,000 city of Cleveland improvement bonds and $4,720,000 city of Rochester (N. Y.) various improvement bonds.

This week's largest issue was that of $2,580,000 Atlantic City (N. J.) convention hall bonds, which were sold on Thursday, with the $2,050,000 city of Yonkers issue next in size. Borrowing this week was done by forty-six communities, while next week's financing will represent the requirements of only forty-two municipalities. The weekly average for the year to date is $23,935,879.

The most striking tendency in the municipal bond market this week was that of bidders for new issues to raise the market. For a fortnight dealers had been inclined to cut prices, but this week one major issue actually fetched a higher price than a similar issue of bonds of the same city last October. Some dealers have been buying for stock, while others have been particularly anxious to lighten their present lists until something like a real demand for municipal bond develops.

There were probably fewer municipal bonds sold at retail this week than in any week since December. Insurance companies and institutions did what little buying was noted. A few small issues were cleaned out, but the larger ones still on dealers' lists were cut down to any extent. The closing of the syndicate books on the issue of Chicago Sanitary District bonds saw no change in the list price of a 4.25 per cent basis on the unsold balance.

Price changes were comparatively few this week. Dealers unable to sell any considerable amounts of bonds are refraining from bidding on new issues and are allowing their lists to run out. This is particularly true of houses with small retail distributing power and others to which the municipal market is a distinct sideline.

Interdealer trading has virtually ceased to exist, and when a municipal house bids for a new issue it must be in a position to dispose of it at retail or have sufficient investment accounts at hand in which to tuck away sizeable blocks. Competition for new issues seems to be as keen as ever, but the number of bids for an issue averages much less than when the same communities were in the market before.

There has been a decided revamping of syndicates this week. Various check-ups have been made by the larger houses which act as syndicate managers, and houses with little or no chance of distributing their portion of an issue are being dropped wherever possible. In some instances there has been a general scaling down of commitments in these syndicates so that new names may be added. Where exceptionally large issues are concerned there has been a tendency toward consolidation of standing syndicates. Some of these syndicates have stood unchanged for several years.

The following list of important issues of municipal bonds to be sold next week and on subsequent dates is compiled from a calendar prepared by The Daily Bond Buyer:

Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Bonds.

P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., announced yesterday that Feb. 11 would be the expiration date for the authorization given them by the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Company to accept the first mortgage 6½ per cent bonds of the company, Series A, due 1940, ex-warrants at 105 and interest, in exchange for fifty-two and one-half shares of common stock for each $1,000 face value bond, and the one-year 6 per cent convertible gold notes of the company, due Dec. 1, 1929, at par and interest, in exchange for fifty shares of common stock for each $1,000 note.

German Province to Borrow $4,000,000 Here on Bonds

One of the first pieces of foreign municipal financing in some time is announced. It is an issue of $4,000,000 of bonds of the Province of Hanover, State of Prussia, Germany. The bonds will be marketed in a few days by Lee, Higginson & Co. and associates. The proceeds will be used for the Harz water-works. The securities will bear interest at the rate of 6½ per cent and will mature on Feb. 1, 1949.

An issue of $1,000,000 6s, due on Aug. 1, 1957, was offered by the same bankers in August, 1927. The loan and the plans for the water-works have been approved by the German Reich and the State of Prussia, both of which are sharing the cost with the Province of Hanover. The construction is for the benefit of the City of Hanover and the larger municipalities of the Leine Valley.

The present direct debt of the province, including this issue, is reported by the bankers at $15,800,000, or $5 per capita. Direct and contingent debts combined amount to $38 per capita.

BOND ISSUES TOTAL $116,717,000 IN WEEK

UTILITY OFFERINGS LEAD

A total of $116,717,000 in new bonds was offered publicly in the week ended yesterday, the largest aggregate since the week of Dec. 7, and the first time this year that the figures have gone above the $100,000,000 mark. All the major classifications participated in the expansion, and the offerings were readily absorbed by investors, several issues selling at premiums soon after they were placed on the market.

The offerings, by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Public utility	$51,000,000	$ 7,750,000
Investment Corps.	28,000,000	12,000,000
Industrial	21,500,000	2,500,000
State and m'pal.	9,800,000	6,537,000
Foreign	6,417,000	4,000,000
Railroad		562,000
Total	$116,717,000	$33,449,000

Important public utility financing took place during the week, the outstanding feature being an issue of $25,000,000 by the Associated Gas & Electric Company. Other important issues in the public utility groups included $10,000,000 by the Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company, $8,000,000 by the Penn-Ohio Edison Company and $4,000,000 by the Northern Texas Utilities Company.

The American International Company brought out a $25,000,000 issue of debentures which was heavily oversubscribed and promptly sold at a premium in the open market. In the industrial field, the feature of the week was a $20,000,000 issue of 6s of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

The principal borrowers in the State and municipal field were Cook County, Ill., with a $4,250,000 issue; Yonkers, with a $2,050,000 sale; Portland, Ore., which floated $1,000,000 of bonds, and the State of Tennessee, with a $1,500,000 offering. The week's foreign financing consisted of an issue of $6,417,000 British Columbia 4½s, placed with investors on a yield basis of 4.80 per cent.

The long period of inactivity in new bond financing, in which weekly offerings were kept well below the $50,000,000 mark, had enabled dealers to clear out their supplies pretty thoroughly, so that a ready market existed for the new offerings, with the investment demand broadening and a firm tone prevailing in the prices of listed bonds.

Several of the larger offerings of the week carried provisions for conversion into stock, and new financing through the sale of stock also continued on a high plane. Important bond offerings are scheduled for next week.

Sao Paulo Bonds Drawn.

Speyer & Co. and the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation announced yesterday that bonds for $45,000 of the State of Sao Paulo 7 per cent secured external water works loan of 1926 had been drawn for the sinking fund and would be payable on and after March 1 at par.

$52,000,000 LOAN TO CITY IN VIEW

4½% INTEREST FORECAST

$2,300,000 of Last Issue of Bonds and Corporate Stock Still in Bankers' Hands.

Inquiries received in the municipal bond market in the last few days indicate that the city of New York may be in the market in the near future with an issue of $52,000,000 four-year notes, one which was not included in the last financing done by the city in November, when $55,000,000 of long-term bonds and corporate stock was marketed.

Last week the National City Company, as head of the nation-wide syndicate which purchased the November issue, cut the price on the unsold portion of the loan from a 4.15 to a 4.20 per cent basis. Yesterday it was said at the offices of the company that this unsold balance of slightly less than $5,000,000 had been reduced to $2,300,000. The syndicate has not been dissolved, although usually a sixty-day time limit is placed on municipal bond groups. Some members of the syndicate are understood to have greatly exceeded their commitments in sales to date, while others have gone considerably under the mark.

A new issue of New York City bonds, if brought out at this time, would have to retail at close to a 4.30 per cent basis for short bonds. This would mean that the city would have to pay at least 4½ per cent for the loan, since in order to retail on a 4.30 per cent basis, a bid of only slightly above par could be made. Even at this figure, bankers said yesterday the successful syndicate would have to have sufficient banking strength in itself to carry bonds for a considerable period. In this connection, a deposit of part of the proceeds of the loan in any of the banks of the syndicate would naturally reduce the cost to the syndicate and enable it to make a higher bid to the city for the bonds. Where out-of-town municipal sales are concerned, the deposit, or "kick-back," arrangement is an important one. For this reason New York syndicates bidding for major issues in other States usually find it convenient to include a local bank in the group.

CHANGES IN CORPORATIONS.

LeBoutillier on United States Mortgage and Trust Board.

Among the changes in directorates and official positions announced yesterday was the election of George LeBoutillier, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to the directorate of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company to fill a vacancy. Gladding B. Coit, heretofore assistant treasurer, was elected treasurer. George T. Webb has resigned as a member and chairman of the board of directors of the Seneca Plan Corporation.

W. V. Kelley was elected a director of the Armour Company, increasing the board to twenty-one members. Other directors were re-elected. At an organization meeting W. C. White and G. A. Eastwood were elected vice presidents.

Bond Issue for Fabrics Finishing.

Additional financing for the Fabrics Finishing Corporation, scheduled for next week, will take the form of an issue of $1,500,000 first mortgage ten-year 6 per cent convertible bonds, Series A. The bonds will be offered by a syndicate composed of Swetsch, Heinzelmann & Co., Inc., Thompson Ross & Co., Inc., and J. S. Ackerman & Co., Inc., who earlier in the week marketed an issue of common stock of the company. The bonds will be convertible at any time at the rate of forty shares of no-par value common stock for each $1,000 bond.

U. G. I. STOCK TRADE BASIS.

Shares Said to Be Valued at $168.75 Each in United Corporation Deal.

A cash value in excess of $168.75 a share was placed on United Gas Improvement shares which were exchanged for stock in the United Corporation by the organizers of the latter company, according to a Philadelphia dispatch to Dow, Jones & Co. giving what is understood to have been the actual basis of exchange.

According to this understanding, five shares of the United Corporation, valued at $25 a share, and ¾ of a share of $3 preference stock of the new company, or $43.75, were exchanged for each share of United Gas Improvement stock turned in. In addition warrants to subscribe to common stock of the United Corporation at $27.50 a share were given, making the total value $168.75 plus the value of the warrants, which has not as yet been determined.

J. P. Morgan & Co. on Thursday announced that temporary receipts for United Corporation shares would be exchangeable on and after Feb. 1 for permanent certificates.

ARMOUR & CO.'S BIG YEAR.

Its Net Earnings Were $11,326,425 —Surplus Is $46,788,115.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—F. Edson White, president, at the annual meeting of Armour & Co. today submitted his report covering operations in 1928. The company handled $900,000,000 of business, earned a net income of $11,326,425, paid out slightly more than $9,000,000 to preferred stockholders and closed the year with a surplus of $ 46,788,115.

Willard C. White and George A. Eastwood were made vice presidents of the company. Mr. White will be in charge of general plant operations and Mr. Eastwood will supervise the by-products subsidiaries.

The old directors were re-elected and one name was added to the board, that of William V. Kelley. F. Edson White was re-elected president and Philip D. Armour first vice president.

ATTORNEYS UPHOLD LOUISIANA'S BONDS

New Highway Issue Declared to Be Direct and General Obligation of State.

$10,000,000 TO BE SOLD

Loan Repayable Principally From Tax on Motor Fuels—Interest Limited to 5 Per Cent.

That the issue of $10,000,000 State of Louisiana road bonds, which will be sold to the highest bidder on Feb. 26, constitutes a direct and general obligation of the State of Louisiana, and not a limited tax issue, was the statement issued here yesterday by Thompson, Wood & Hoffman, municipal bond attorneys. The law firm had been retained by the State to decide the status of the issue and furnish the requisite legal opinion to the purchasers. Its statement clears up a situation which threatened to keep many New York houses from bidding on the issue, which, as a limited tax bond, would command a much lower price than if backed by the full taxing power of the State.

The issue, according to the act under which it was authorized, is payable principally from a tax of 1 cent a gallon on "gasoline, benzine, naphtha or other motor fuel." It was authorized by the voters of the State at the November election. The financing next month is, therefore, the first instalment for the State's comprehensive road program. The interest rate is limited to 5 per cent, and the maturity to twenty years. The bonds will mature serially.

Taking a leaf from the highway program of the State of North Carolina, which has built an elaborate system and is paying for it solely from revenues obtained from gasoline and motor vehicle taxes, Louisiana expects to build a highway system and obtain the cost from the users of it. The significance of the opinion rendered yesterday by Thompson, Wood & Hoffman lies in their statement that if the one-cent tax is not sufficient to meet the service requirements on the road debt, additional levies from this or other sources may be provided by the State.

L. B. Baynard Jr., secretary of the Board of Liquidation of State Debt, will open sealed bids on the issue in Baton Rouge, La., on Feb. 26. Bids must be for all or none of the bonds, with the bidders naming the rate of interest at not to exceed 5 per cent.

Several New York syndicates have signified their intention of bidding for the bonds if assured that the securities were a direct and general obligation of the State. In some States full taxing power is not obtainable, since various charters specifically limit the amount of taxes that can be imposed so that such limits would prevent full service on so large an undertaking as a State highway system. In Louisiana the taxing power is not so limited.

ASK COMPENSATION FOR INDUSTRIAL ILLS

SHE WARNS OF CHEMICALS

Survey Commissioner Obtains Data for Its Recommendations to Legislature on March 1.

An increase in industrial disease from the use of chemicals in manufacturing was indicated yesterday in a proposal made by Miss Frances Perkins, State Industrial Commissioner, at an informal conference of the Industrial Survey Commission for an amendment to the workmen's compensation law which would include all occupational diseases in the class with accidents for compensation claims.

The conference was held at the State Labor Department building, 124 East Twenty-eighth Street, by the commission to receive suggestions from insurance and labor representatives on proposed changes in the law. The recommendations made yesterday and those obtained at previous hearings will form the basis for a report by the commission to the Legislature on March 1.

John M. O'Hanlon, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, agreed with Miss Perkins's suggestion regarding occupational diseases, declaring that bruises and callous conditions suffered by cleaners and other workmen from constant kneeling often set up irregularities in the body which result in disease and general disability. Miss Perkins emphasized the effect of chemicals in producing disease, and mentioned the dangers of methol chloride, emanations from radioactive properties, dust from chemicals and other poisoning agents which affect the lungs and other parts of the body.

Miss Perkins condemned the "bargain table methods" in the medical examinations conducted to determine a claimant's injuries. She said the decision in compensation cases ought to be based on the report of the department's physician, although recognizing the right of the insurance company's doctor and the claimant's private physician to examine the injured person. The Industrial Board should have the power, she said, to determine the claimant's earning capacity.

Mr. O'Hanlon proposed a maximum weekly compensation of $30, declaring that the present rate of $25 weekly does not represent two-thirds of the average worker's wage. Mr. O'Hanlon digressed to recommend legislation to regulate the issuance of injunctions so they could not be issued until the accused had a hearing in court, and urged trial by jury for alleged violators of injunctions.

Among the recommendations submitted by Leon S. Senior, secretary of the Compensation Inspection Rating Board, representing sixty insurance carriers, was an amendment which would exclude persons engaged in voluntary service not under contract of hire from the class entitled to compensation for injuries. Such a group, it was pointed out, would include voluntary workers in religious institutions. Miss Perkins maintained, however, that such persons, by receiving maintenance, could be classed as employees and thus be entitled to compensation.

CHASE AND GARFIELD UNITE.

Bank Merger to Be Effective at Close of Business Today.

At the close of business today the Garfield National Bank will be formally merged with the Chase National Bank, in accordance with action taken by directors of both institutions last November and ratified by the stockholders at their annual meetings on Jan. 8. The Garfield Bank will become a branch of the Chase National, continuing its business at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street.

The consolidation, which was arranged on a share-for-share basis, adds the Garfield's assets of about $22,721,000 to the resources of the Chase National, which stood at the record total of $1,450,806,237 on Dec. 31, last.

COUNTY TRUST CO. PLANS TO EXPAND

Directors Propose Increase of Capital to $4,000,000—New Stock for Holders.

CALL MEETING FOR FEB. 15

Trustees Selected to Buy 3,000 Shares for Benefit of Officers and Employes.

Directors of the County Trust Company of New York, of which James J. Riordan is president and on whose board are former Governor Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob, William F. Kenny, Howard S. Cullman and Vincent Astor, have voted to increase the capital stock from $1,000,000 to $4,000,000, and have called a meeting of stockholders for Feb. 15 to ratify the plan. The bank, which opened for business on Feb. 28, 1926, with the former Governor as the first depositor, reported assets as of Dec. 31, 1928, of more than $35,000,000, with deposits amounting to $22,000,000. It is said that the assets have been increased by about $5,000,000 since the first of the year.

It is proposed to offer an additional 30,000 shares of $100 par value each, of which 27,000 shares will be offered to stockholders at $200 a share, in the ratio of 2.7 shares of new stock for each share now held. The remaining 3,000 shares are to be sold at $300 a share to a board of trustees selected by the directors of the bank, to be held for the benefit of the officers and employes of the company.

In a letter to stockholders, James J. Riordan, president, remarks on this point that stockholders will receive subscription warrants for full shares and fractional warrants for less than full shares, such fractional warrants to be used only when combined with other fractional warrants so as to aggregate full shares. He says that the trustees of the officers and employes' stock will be John J. Raskob, Arthur Lapman, John J. Pulleyn and William F. Kenny, all of whom are included in the board of directors.

The meeting of stockholders will be held at the principal office of the bank, 97 Eighth Avenue, Manhattan. Stock transfer books of the company will be closed on Feb. 9 and will reopen Feb. 16.

Bankers for Chilean Cities.

The Chilean Government has designated the Grace National Bank, Brown Brothers & Co. and E. H. Rollins & Sons as official bankers for the municipalities of the republic, it was announced yesterday, in connection with loans amounting to about $24,000,000. The Grace National, on behalf of the group, said the credit requirements of the municipalities would be taken care of by means of consolidated loans.

MERGER IS APPROVED FOR BROOKLYN BANKS

Stockholders of Brooklyn Trust and Mechanics Ratify Plan of the Directors.

Stockholders of the Brooklyn Trust Company, of which George V. McLaughlin, former Police Commissioner, is president, and of the Mechanics Bank of Brooklyn approved yesterday the merger of the two institutions in accordance with the terms submitted by the trustees and directors early this month. More than 90 per cent of the stock of the two institutions was represented at the special meetings of stockholders.

The capital of the Brooklyn Trust Company is to be increased from $2,080,000 to $3,000,000. Of the new capital, $4,000,000 will be exchanged for stock of the Mechanics Bank of Brooklyn on the basis of one share of Brooklyn Trust, par value $100, for two shares of Mechanics, par value $50. The balance of the new capital, or $1,920,000, represented by Brooklyn Trust stock, will be offered to stockholders of that institution of record Jan. 26 at $400 a share in the ratio of 0.923 new shares for each share held.

H. M. DeMott, president of Mechanics, will become vice chairman of Brooklyn Trust and two new members will be added to the latter organization's board of trustees. It is planned to make the merger effective early in February.

North Carolina Land Bank.

The North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank reports for 1928 net earnings of $181,916, equivalent to $21.70 a share on the 7,000 shares of capital stock. This was $1,685 more than in the preceding year. On Dec. 31, last, the bank had mortgage loans in force amounting to $14,983,070; farm loan bonds outstanding, $13,800,000; real estate, $115,539; capital stock paid in, $700,000; surplus, reserves and undivided profits, $500,803.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

LONDON MONEY IS EASIER

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The general tone of the Stock Exchange was less firm today. The gilt-edged market was slightly easier, but prices showed practically no change. Oil shares were dull with a few falls among the leaders. The rise in the price of rubber to 11d. per pound made for firmness among the shares, but the movements of prices were not extensive.

In the industrial market prices showed numerous moderate falls. There were sellers of Courtaulds, Imperial Tobacco, United Molasses and other shares recently in demand. Mond Nickel letters closed at $69.60. Marconi shares advanced and further rises occurred in cable issues. Ner-Sag shares closed at about 10s. and Ner-Sag overseas shares at 2s., after having been lower.

Money conditions on Lombard Street were easier and fresh night accommodation was available at 3 per cent. The dollar exchange was lower at 4.85 15-16.

French Bourse Active.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The domestic market was steady under the influence of improving monetary conditions, and many industrial shares were in good demand on the Bourse today.

The trade figures for 1928, issued today, showed an excess of imports over exports to the value of 2,000,000,000 francs. Exports totaled 53,000,000,000 francs, against imports of 51,000,000,000 francs. These figures show a slight increase of imports over 1927 and a decrease in exports of 3,250,000,000. The unfavorable balance might have been considerably greater had it not been for the large decrease in imported foodstuffs. The decrease in exports was chiefly due to a decline in external sales of manufactured articles.

Reichsbank Shares Advance.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—The Boerse opened rather weak and nervous today on account of a lack of purchasing orders from the Provinces and abroad. The drop of 3 points in Harpener shares also influenced the markets unfavorably, but only a few stocks lost more than 1 to 2 points.

The situation changed quickly, however, when an unexpected demand for Polyphone artificial silk, Dye Trust and other shares was made, and speculators found themselves compelled to seek covering. The feature of the day was the advance of 6 points in Reichsbank shares.

Stimulated by the further reduction of the private discount rate to 5½ per cent and the large offers of contango loans, the improvement continued throughout the afternoon. The highest quotations were noted at the closing hour. Call money was plentiful at 5½ to 5½.

URGES NEWSPRINT UNITY.

Sweezey Says Cooperation Is the Solution for Canadian Mills.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25 (by the Canadian Press.)—Cooperation among the Canadian mills is the solution to the present newsprint problem, not the placing of an export tax on pulpwood, R. O. Sweezey, director of the Lake St. John Power and Paper Company and of the Port Alfred Pulp and Paper Company, declared today. He is here primarily in connection with the Beauharnois power project.

"With $750,000,000 invested in the newsprint paper business in Canada, the industry has every right to command the attention of all those who think," Mr. Sweezey said. "It is costing the industry some $40,000,000 a year because some people haven't been thinking far enough ahead. Efforts have been made to 'beat the game' of supply and demand.

"But the outlook is not so dark as it may appear. With the right kind of cooperation Canadian plants should be well on the upgrade to success again within twelve or fifteen months."

FORD STOCK FOR GERMANS.

Wall Street Hears of Early Offering —Report Not Confirmed.

Reports received in Wall Street by cable from Germany yesterday that stock in the Ford Motor Company of Germany would shortly be offered to the public created wide interest in view of the heavy buying that has taken place here recently in the British Ford company and in Ford of Canada, the only two Ford organizations whose securities have been made available to outside investors.

The reports said that of an issue of 5,000,000 reichsmarks capital stock of the German company, the Ford Motor Company of England would retain 3,000,000 reichsmarks and that a syndicate headed by the Deutsche Bank would offer 2,000,000 reichsmarks publicly in Germany.

When the Ford Company of England stock was brought out recently in London at £1 a share, the price was quickly bid up to a high point fractionally above $24 a share on heavy American buying. The stock closed yesterday on the New York Curb Exchange at 17¾. Ford of Canada closed on the Curb at 655.

Many cables were sent to Berlin by New York bankers and stock market traders in an effort to get official confirmation of the reports, but none was received.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 25 (AP).—The municipality has decided to sell the Ford Motor Company of Holland 28,000 square meters (roughly seven acres) of land. The land will be used to make Rotterdam the company's port of import for the whole of Western Europe.

FOREIGN TRADERS TO MEET.

Sixteenth National Convention to Be Held in Baltimore in April.

The outstanding feature of American foreign business last year was the development in the exportation of manufactured products to the preponderating portion of 70 per cent of the export trade, according to James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, in issuing a call yesterday for the sixteenth National Foreign Trade Convention, to be held at Baltimore on April 17, 18 and 19. This will be the first gathering of the foreign traders on the Middle Atlantic seaboard since 1922, when they met in Philadelphia.

The program of the convention includes one new feature. This is a conference of representatives of thirty-five foreign trade clubs, export managers' associations and similar local groups of foreign trade executives. The convention will consider economic improvement in Europe, air transport, progress in the Far East, Canada as the best customer of the United States, investments in Latin America and shipping and foreign trade.

Paper Group Re-elects Jones.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sterling slipped another slight fraction to a new low for the year yesterday, checks selling down to $4.84 15-32 and cables to $4.84 27-32. The market was a thin one, bankers and dealers experiencing great difficulty in working off their orders, which was only accomplished after considerable time on the wires. Reports that $1,500,000 gold had been engaged, in addition to the $7,500,000 publicly announced, failed of confirmation in banking circles, although it was admitted in the same quarters that the new consignment was likely.

QUIZ LIGHTING MAN ON UTILITIES LOBBY

HE TELLS OF CONFERENCES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—The Federal Trade Commission's power utilities investigation today touched on the 1926 primary campaign of Thorne Browne for re-election to the Nebraska Railway Commission, with Horace M. Davis of Lincoln, former director of the Middle West division of the National Electric Light Association, testifying as to what he knew of the stand taken toward Browne's candidacy by State utilities interests.

Asked whether he had been told by any utility man of contributions being made by the power companies for Browne's campaign, Davis said he had heard about it, but immediately expressed the opinion that he had not answered the question and said that no such information had been given him by any one within the industry. Later he testified that he had learned of conferences attended by utility men at which contributions to Browne's campaign had been discussed. He declined to name his informant.

"I will ask you," said Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, "to give me the name of the man who told you what was said to have transpired at a meeting attended by him at which utility men were in attendance where the subject of a contribution to Mr. Browne's campaign was discussed."

Names Frank E. Helvey.

The witness demurred until ordered to answer by Commissioner McCulloch, presiding. Then he named Frank E. Helvey, who he said was secretary for the Insurance Federation of Nebraska at Lincoln. He said Helvey was not a utility man.

In another instance Davis refused to name a man with whom he said he had discussed possible contributions by utility companies to Browne's campaign, but Healy did not request that an answer be ordered. The witness said it seemed to him they had discussed how much would be needed, and added that he could not remember whether a sum was agreed on. The discussion was said by him to have ended there, and he gave as the reason that Browne was a Republican and he a Democrat, which, he said, placed him "under suspicion" in Republican circles.

He testified that Browne had eventually succeeded him in representing utility interests. A letter written by him was introduced which noted Browne's defeat for re-election and said:

"Our people were particularly interested in him and lost immeasurably in his defeat. They figured they owed him something—true enough."

Asked to explain these remarks, Davis testified that Browne was considered a capable man and that his work on the Railway Commission, generally speaking, had been satisfactory to utility companies having matters before it.

Helvey Makes Denial.

OMAHA, Jan. 25 (AP).—Horace M. Davis, testifying before the Federal Trade Commission today, has Frank E. Helvey "mixed up with some one else," Helvey declared when told of Davis's testimony in the public utility investigation.

"I never told him anything about Mr. Browne's campaign fund, for I never heard anything about it and never knew anything about it," he declared. "He's got me mixed up with some one else."

James E. Davidson, president of the Nebraska Power Company, the largest utility in the State, said he did not know whether the utilities had helped Mr. Browne or not.

Long Island Lighting Meeting.

Stockholders of the Long Island Lighting Company have been called to vote on Feb. 5 on the issuance of 200,000 shares of $100 par value new preferred stock, of which 100,000 shares are to be known as Series B 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, 50,000 shares as Series C 6½ per cent cumulative preferred stock, and 50,000 shares as Series D 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, all of which will have the same privileges as the present Series A 7 per cent preferred stock. Holders of stock of record of Jan. 25 will have the right to vote.

DEFENDS PUBLICITY IN POWER INDUSTRY

Arkwright at Dinner of Light Men, Says Consumer Benefits From Advertising.

The advertising and publicity appropriation of the electric light and power industry were defended in an address last night by Preston S. Arkwright, president of the National Electric Light Association, who declared that the future expansion of the industry and the reduction of cost depended upon the consuming public's familiarity with the industry.

Speaking at a dinner given at the Hotel Roosevelt last night by the Metropolitan Section of the National Electric Light Association, Mr. Arkwright asserted that public favor or ill-will toward the industry is everywhere controlled by commissions, councils and legislatures, and only by acquainting the public with the industry's business can the maximum of service and a minimum of rates be realized.

Mr. Askwright did not name the Federal Trade Commission, which has been conducting hearings into charges that the power utilities have been appropriating huge sums of money to influence public opinion in connection with such power projects as Boulder Dam, and other enterprises in which the industry is vitally interested.

The speaker pointed out that the cost of electric light service has steadily decreased since the inception of the industry forty-seven years ago.

UTILITY GIVES RIGHTS.

Pacific Gas and Electric Offers One New for Ten Shares Held.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company is giving its common stockholders the right to acquire additional common shares of $25 par value in the ratio of one new share for each ten shares outstanding on Feb. 8, 1929. Rights will be mailed to stockholders on or before March 1 and will expire on March 20. This is the fourth consecutive annual offering of common stock by the company at the par value.

The company has arranged to permit payment for the stock to be made either in full at the time of subscription or in four instalments, the final date of payment for the last instalment being fixed at June 20. Certificates, fully paid, will be issued as of April 1, or in the case of stock paid for on the instalment plan as of July 1, 1929.

TWIN CITIES FARES RAISED.

Anticipating Increase, Car Patrons Establish Corner in "Tokens."

ST. PAUL, Jan. 25 (AP).—Street car fares in Minneapolis and St. Paul today were ordered increased to 10 cents cash or six tokens for 45 cents by the State Railroad Commission. The order changes the fare from 8 cents cash or six tokens for 40 cents.

The commission held that the transit company was entitled to a return of not less than 7½ per cent on the fair value of its property.

Anticipating the fare increase, street car patrons established a corner in tokens and of 3,000,000 in circulation a few weeks ago the transit company holds less than 50,000, according to V. O. Law, passenger agent. Conductors were ordered this week to sell only three tokens at a time.

Winnipeg Electric to Sell Stock.

The Winnipeg Electric Company will offer to stockholders of record of Jan. 31 50,000 shares of no par stock common at $60 each on the basis of one share for each three shares held. The sale has been approved by the Municipal and Public Utilities Board of Manitoba. The proceeds will be used in part for development of the Seven Sisters Falls on the Winnipeg River. The directors have authorized an increase in the stock from 150,000 to 500,000 shares.

Time for Nickel Shares Extended.

The time for deposit of shares of the Mond Nickel Company, Ltd., for exchange for stock of the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., under the agreement dated Dec. 20, 1929, has been extended to Feb. 1.

WHEAT ADVANCES IN BULLISH MARKET

Outside Interest Is Reported to Be Increasing With Improved Buying.

FOREIGN MARKETS HIGHER

May and July Corn Sell at a New High on the Crop—Oats and Rye Go Up.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Outside interest in wheat today was much broader than of late, and there was general commission house and local buying which swept prices up nearly 2 cents from the finish of the previous day, with all deliveries selling within a fraction of the best prices on the crop. The close was at net gains of 1 to 1¼ cents. Apprehension of damage to the new crop in Kansas and Nebraska influenced sentiment, which became more bullish during the course of the day.

Winnipeg closed ¾ cents higher, with export demand slow at both coasts. Liverpool was ¼ to ½ penny higher and Buenos Aires unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Export sales of 200,000 bushels were reported in all positions.

Primary arrivals today aggregated 780,000 bushels; week ago, 727,000 bushels; last year, 972,000 bushels. Shipments, 879,000 bushels; week ago, 740,000 bushels; last year, 974,000 bushels.

"The large 1928 wheat crop is reducing the import need of many countries as anticipated," the report said, "yet it is equally apparent that low wheat prices, relatively high prices of feedstuffs and the short European corn crop are contributing to a generally heavy consumption of wheat. The net result seems likely to be a continued large importation and a total movement of wheat into consumption substantially above average for continental Europe."

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Financial Statements Issued by Industrial and Other Companies.

The White Rock Mineral Springs Company reports for the year 1928 net income of $1,150,214 after Federal taxes and charges, equal after first preferred 7 per cent dividends to $20.20 a share on 10,000 shares of second preferred stock, and $4.04 a share on 200,000 shares of no par common stock. This compares with $1,063,678, or $18.66 a share on the second preferred and $3.73 a share on the common in 1927.

A. M. Byers Company.

The A. M. Byers Company and subsidiaries report for the final quarter of 1928 net income of $420,708 after depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, equal after allowing for dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred stock, to $1.57 a share on 199,340 common shares of no par value. This compares with net income of $498,859 or $1.97 a common share in the preceding quarter, and with $259,171 or 76 cents a common share in the final quarter of 1927.

Bush Terminal Company.

The statement of the Bush Terminal Company and subsidiaries as of Sept. 30, 1928, shows total assets of $46,137,457, compared with $45,-338,612 on Dec. 31, 1927, while surplus was $5,962,431 against $5,862,201. Current assets totaled $3,129,203 and current liabilities $1,647,122 as contrasted with $6,094,529 and $8,997,031 respectively on Dec. 31, 1927.

Hall Lamp Company.

The C. M. Hall Lamp Company reports for the year 1928 net profit of $1,027,832 after charges and Federal taxes, equal to $2.57 a share on 400,-000 no par shares of stock. This compares with $430,180 or $1.05 a share in 1927.

MOVE FOR CLEARING HOUSE.

Bankers in Hudson County Start Survey Through Committee.

A committee appointed by the Hudson County group of the New Jersey Bankers Association instituted yesterday a survey to determine the advisability of creating a Hudson County clearing house for the sixty-nine banks in the county. The banks now clear through the Federal Reserve Bank in New York. The committee is to report within a few weeks.

Robert J. Rendell, president of the Hudson City Savings Bank of Jersey City, was appointed president of the committee. General William C. Heppenheimer, president of the Trust Company of New Jersey, is vice president.

BUTLER BROS. BUY CHAIN.

Freeman Stores, With Nine Units in Southwest, Acquired.

Purchase by Butler Brothers of the Freeman Stores, a chain of nine stores operating in Arkansas and Oklahoma, was announced yesterday. These stores and several others on which leases have been signed will comprise the first units in the national chain of variety stores to be opened by Butler Brothers, according to F. S. Cunningham, president. Licenses have been obtained for all States and the Dominion of Canada.

The new wholly owned subsidiary, Scott Stores, Inc., has taken title to the Freeman Stores and will develop as rapidly as possible a large chain of similar stores.

Change in Atlantic Securities.

The stockholders of the Atlantic Securities Company have authorized a change in capitalization from 100,-000 shares of $100 par to 500,000 no par shares and an exchange of one old share for five new ones. The exchange will increase the outstanding stock from 21,650 to 108,250 shares. The company, an investment trust headed by F. S. Smithers & Co. and A. Iselin & Co. interests, has issued its first report, covering 1928. This showed net realized earnings of $349,236, equal to $16.12 a share on 21,660 old shares. However, funds were paid into the treasury over a period of time so that realized profits equaled 20.40 per cent on the average amount of funds available.

WHEAT EXPORTS FELL 55,000,000 BUSHELS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A survey by the foreign service of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture shows that exports of wheat, including wheat flour, in the last six months of 1928 were 100,790,000 bushels, as compared with 155,790,000 bushels in the same period of 1927.

Canada, on the other hand, exported 278,826,000 bushels during the six months, as compared with 170,835,-000 in the same months of 1927, an increase of about 108,000,000 bushels.

Exports from Argentina jumped to 61,558,000 bushels, as against 40,120,-000 in the previous year, and Australia's exports were 39,013,000 bushels, a gain of about 7,000,000 bushels.

The United States led all nations in 1928 in production of wheat, its total being 902,749,000 bushels, a gain of about 80,000,000 bushels, as compared with 1927. Canada produced 500,619,000 bushels, a gain of 60,-000,000.

The Bureau stated that latest figures last the estimated 1928-29 world wheat crop, exclusive of Russia and China, at 3,730,000,000 bushels, as compared with 3,565,000,000 bushels in 1927-28, an increase of 4.6 per cent.

Low prices had increased consumption, the report said, and the prediction was made that, although the 1928 crop of Europe was more than 100,000,000 bushels greater than that of 1927, European takings would be well above those of 1927-1928.

"The large 1928 wheat crop is reducing the import need of many countries as anticipated," the report said, "yet it is equally apparent that low wheat prices, relatively high prices of feedstuffs and the short European corn crop are contributing to a generally heavy consumption of wheat. The net result seems likely to be a continued large importation and a total movement of wheat into consumption substantially above average for continental Europe."

COTTON PRICES DROP 14 TO 19 POINTS NET

MORE CALL FOR NEW CROP

The completion of January contract engagements with final trading in that month at noon yesterday created an easier tendency to prices on the Cotton Exchange, and after a decline of a dollar a bale, the list ended with a loss of 14 to 19 points on the day.

A smaller decrease in the visible supply than a year ago, which brought the supply of American cotton above last year's figures for the first time this season, influenced professional sentiment. As near months approached 19¢ cents scale buying orders were uncovered at each point of decline, which developed a greater degree of resistance, while an increased demand for new crops appeared as prices worked nearer a basis of 19 cents. Exports for the week aggregated 166,000 bales, compared with 130,000 a year ago.

Throughout the morning belated covering of January held the spot month around 20 cents and at a premium of 7 points over May. After the execution of over-night selling orders in both March and May had supplied trade demand slightly under the 20-cent figure, fluctuations were confined within limits of a few points for two hours. Final trading in January from 19.98 cents to 20 cents compared with a final price of 20.40 cents for December a month ago when January was selling around 20.20 cents and May at 20.25 cents. With January off the board, increased pressure both here and in New Orleans carried quotations off 15 points, with July below 19¼ cents. Yesterday's quotations follow:

Furs Advance in Canadian Auction.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 26 (By the Canadian Press).—The Winter sale of the Canadian Fur Auction Sales Company closed tonight. The values of skins sold during the five days totaled $2,257,587. At today's session an average of 83 per cent of the furs offered were sold. Red fox, wolf, timber wolf and otter skins formed the bulk of the business. There were 5,230 red foxes, and of this number 90 per cent sold at advance of 30 per cent in comparison to September prices, with $71 as the top price. Wolf skins advanced 20 per cent, with Western Canada extra large pelts being sold as high as $33.50. Fine timber wolf skins $68 was the top price. Otters sold at an advance of 25 per cent. The top price paid for extra dark skins was $75.

TARIFF PLEAS FLOOD HOUSE COMMITTEE

Night Session and Extra Day Allotted to Hearing on the Agricultural Schedule.

BIG INCREASES ARE ASKED

Poultry, Fish, Fruit and Grain Interests Demand More Protection —Canadians Are Uneasy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Requests for time by persons from all sections of the country who want to be heard in advocacy of higher tariff duties on farm products became so overwhelming that the House Ways and Means Committee today decided to hold a night session and to devote Saturday, an extra day, to hearings on the agricultural schedule of the tariff law.

This necessity arose despite the cutting from ten to five minutes the time allowed each witness for stating his appeal.

Witnesses today asked for 50 to 400 per cent higher duties on poultry products, for similar increases in duties on fresh vegetables and fruits, for doubling the duty on corn, and for adding to the present duty on wheat supplementary levies on account of protein content above 11 per cent.

Higher duties on fish which are included in the farm products schedule, also were asked. Requests for abandonment of some of the prevailing duties on fish comprised about the only expressions for lower tariffs. Maintenance of a few rates as they stand was asked.

Poultry Council's Demands.

The appeal for higher duties on poultry products was made on behalf of the National Poultry Council and poultry organizations in several parts of the country by Knox Boude, Sebastopol, Cal.; Harry R. Lewis, Davisville, R. I., and Professor John E. Rice, Cornell University.

They asked that the duty on live poultry be increased from 2 to 4 cents a pound, on dressed poultry from 6 to 10 cents a pound and on eggs in the shell from 5 to 12 cents a dozen; that a 25 a head duty apply to live poultry brought in for breeding purposes, this duty now being 50 cents a head or 20 per cent ad valorem.

A duty of 4 cents was asked for baby chicks. For whole eggs imported in frozen, liquid or processed forms, a duty of 12, now 6 cents a pound, was asked.

For dried egg albumen the request was for a duty of 60 cents a pound; for "melange" dried egg products, 36 cents, and dried egg yolk 30 cents a pound, these products now being subject to a duty of 18 cents a pound.

Complaint was made of large importations of turkeys from Argentina, a threat of large importations of smaller poultry from Soviet Russia and of egg product importations from China.

Spokesmen for Gloucester, Mass., fishery industries asked for a rectification of duties on codfish so as to widen the margin between boneless and non-processed fish and assure for the first a protection of 2½ cents a pound duty. It was asked that the duty on haddock fillets be increased from 1 to 2 cents a pound, complaint being of Canadian competition. A 2-cent pound duty was asked for swordfish and F. W. Bryce, New York City, asked on behalf of 106 organizations in twenty-nine States that duties on salmon, mackerel, blue fish equalize the differences between production costs in this country and abroad.

T. F. Waley, a New York importer, asked that the kippered herring duty be not increased, saying that nothing comparable is found in the waters of this country. Walter E. Ruprecht, New York City, said that there was no justification for duties on either herring or mackerel.

Higher Grain Protection Asked.

J. W. Shorthill, Omaha, Neb., secretary of the Farmers National Grain Dealers Association, in which, he said, are more than 4,000 cooperative elevator organizations, presented a plea for raising the duty on corn from 15 to 30 cents a bushel. He complained of importations from Argentina. He said that shifting from horse to motor power had eliminated need of 150,000,000 bushels of corn a year for feed but thought much of the volume could be utilized in making industrial alcohol.

W. W. Thatcher of St. Paul for the Northwest Agricultural Foundation, asked that the present duty of 42 cents a bushel apply to wheat or not more than 11 per cent protein and that a supplementary duty of 3 cents for each ½ per cent of additional protein be imposed for the benefit of the hard wheats of the Northwest. At a "rough guess" he thought that 35 per cent of that grown in the Northwest would be within the supplementary duty range.

For Florida fresh fruits and vegetables a request was made by S. S. McCahill of Miami for a scale of duties averaging 2 to 500 per cent of present ones. The request was for 2 cents a pound, now 25 cents a crate on pineapples; 25 cents a pound, now 35 per cent ad valorem, on avocados; 6 cents a pound, now 1, on green peas and beans; 4 cents a pound, now half a cent, on tomatoes; 5 cents a pound on cucumbers, 1½ cents a pound on cabbage, 3 cents a pound on eggplant and 2 cents a pound on squash, these now being subject to duties of 25 per cent ad valorem.

He asked that the duty on limes be raised from 1 to 2½ cents a pound and those on oranges and grapefruit from 1 to 2 cents a pound each. He asked for a new duty of 4 cents a pound on green corn.

The proposed duties on pineapples and grapefruit were asked also by Captain E. B. Lassene and Commissioner Davila, who spoke for Porto Rican fruit growers.

Egbert A. Smith, for Western cherry growers, asked that duties on cherries be increased.

Talk of Tariff War By Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—Public sentiment in Canada would in all probability be aroused by the action of the United States in placing tariff barriers in the paths through which formerly Canadian exports to that country passed, said A. H. Darby, addressing the tariff advisory board in session here today.

While deprecating any move on the Dominion's part to retaliate against the measures which the United States was taking to protect her industries, Mr. Darby suggested that there was possibility of Canada entertaining serious plans for tariff war with her southern neighbor unless:

"On the other side of the boundary between this country and the United States," said Mr. Darby, "we are at the present time very sensitive to any trends, indeed any increases of tariffs against Canadian products. We have very strong demands indeed for the increase on a considerable variety of articles which enter into trade between Canada and the United States.

"In my view, that will have two regrettable consequences. It will interfere seriously with the trade between the two countries, imposing artificial obstacles in the way of it. Every industry of Canada, indeed, must suffer, and it will arouse in the minds of the Canadian people a temper in which they are likely to demand that some retaliatory measures be adopted.

CHECK PAYMENTS ABOVE 1928 MARK

But the Total Money Turnover Last Week Was Below That of the Previous Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Commerce Department in its weekly review of business conditions today stated that the volume of money turnover during the week ended Jan. 19, as reflected by check payments, was smaller than in the preceding week, but showed a substantial gain over the corresponding period of 1928.

Operations in steel plants showed some curtailment from the previous week, but were on a higher level than in the same week of last year. Factory employment in Detroit, indicating activity in the automobile industry, showed substantial expansion, as compared with both the previous week and the same week of 1928.

The output of crude petroleum, covering the latest reported week, showed further gains over both the previous week and the same period of last year. The production of bituminous coal was also greater than in either prior period.

The general level of wholesale prices was fractionally higher than gain also over the corresponding period of a year ago.

Copper prices, though showing no material change from the previous week, were 20 per cent higher than last year. Iron and steel prices showed no change from the previous week but were higher than a year ago, while prices for cotton averaged higher than in either period.

Loans and discounts of Federal Reserve Member Banks showed a further contraction from the previous week, but were larger than a year ago. Interest rates on both time and call money averaged higher than in either the previous week or the same week of last year.

Prices for stocks were higher than in the preceding week. Bond prices, reflecting higher interest rates, were lower than in either the preceding week or the same period of a year ago.

Receipts of cattle at primary markets during the week ended Jan. 12 were lower than a year ago. Hog receipts, on the other hand, were larger than last year. Receipts of wheat showed a decrease of the same period of 1928.

RICHARDSON TO RETIRE AS NAVY PLANE EXPERT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Captain Holden C. Richardson, No. 13 among licensed pilots, designer of the NC naval boats which flew the Atlantic in 1919 and rated as an authority on floats and hulls for seaplanes and flying boats, will retire from the navy March 1.

Captain Richardson is to become designing engineer for the Great Lakes Aircraft Corporation, which recently took over the plants at Cleveland of the Glenn L. Martin Company, builders of several hundred of the navy's large all-purpose planes.

Captain Richardson has been inspecting plants and airplanes under construction for the navy for sixteen years. His work at the Washington model basin laid the foundation for the development of modern airplane floats and hulls. He also did pioneer work in the development of catapults for launching planes from the decks of battleships.

Captain Richardson, as commander of one of the NC boats which made the ocean flight in 1919, was forced down in the Atlantic 1,200 miles and 15½ hours out of Newfoundland. His plane landed in heavy seas off the Azores, the first scheduled stop in the Atlantic hop.

While the whole nation worried over the disappearance of the flying boat, Captain Richardson sailed the plane through heavy seas to Punta Delgada. He pushed the plane to its moorings under its own power, rejecting assistance.

During his early service he was a naval constructor and later an inspector at various aircraft and engine plants. In 1923 he accompanied the commission for adjustment of foreign claims arising out of the World War to London. He is now attached to the Bureau of Aeronautics.

NEW INTERCOASTAL LINE ANNOUNCES SAILINGS

A. P. Hammond Heads Company to Operate Between Pacific and Atlantic Ports.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—The Hammond Line, Inc., with A. P. Hammond as president and general manager, is soon to enter the intercoastal trade, according to an announcement made here today by Mr. Hammond, late general manager of the California & Eastern Steamship Company, which has been taken over by K. D. Dawson of Portland. Headquarters of the new line will be in Los Angeles, Mr. Hammond said.

The new line will come into the trade with a fleet of five steamers as a nucleus for a twenty-one days' service between Philadelphia and New York on the Atlantic coast and Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle on the Pacific coast. Two more ships will be added later to enable the company to maintain a fortnightly schedule, Mr. Hammond said.

The first sailing from the Atlantic coast will be the steamer New Britain from Philadelphia on Feb. 15 and New York on Feb. 19. The company's terminal in Philadelphia will be at Pier 24 South, while in New York the company will use the Norwegian-American Line pier in Brooklyn.

The new line has made application for membership in the Intercoastal Conference in the C class.

BUSINESS EXPANSION SEEN BY REVIEWS

Weekly Surveys Report Signs of Upward Trend, With Retail Trade Aided by Weather.

FACTORY INDUSTRY LEADS

Although there has not yet been time for first-quarter trends to be wholly shaped, definite evidences of expanding commercial operations have appeared, according to the weekly reviews of business. Early developments have been mainly favorable and constructive factors have retained their force, it is said.

Mid-Winter weather conditions continue to favor indoor operations, especially in factory industry, which maintains its lead over other forms of business activity. Cold and frequently stormy weather has tended to retard business by salesmen on the road, while retail trade has been helped by the weather, mainly in population centres. In all three lines, however, operations are relatively more active than a year ago.

Bradstreet's review of the state of trade says:

"In the list of favored industries, iron, steel, automobile, implement and machinery manufacturing lines seemed to have an unquestionable lead, but cold weather very generally helped the coal industry; copper mining was active under the stimulus of large foreign and domestic takings, and oil-well and gas supplies, electrical goods and radio materials were bought freely. In other lines, shoe manufacturing maintained earlier activity, rubber footwear sold freely and rayon and silk manufacturing was at high points. Flour milling operations in the Southwest were buttressed by large sales, this partly due to the strength of wheat, while grain prices generally were close to the high points of the season. More furniture also has been sold of late.

"In the list of less fortunately situated trade, dry goods buying outside of large centres was reported rather spotty, building operations were interfered with in many instances by weather conditions, and buying of wool, knitwear and jewelry was spotty."

Dun's weekly review of business says:

"Considerable divergence marks current retail trade, activity in sections where there has been the stimulus of low temperatures contrasting with a retarded distribution in other localities where unseasonable weather has prevailed, and mercantile collections reflect the unevenness of conditions. The insolvency record, however, has not revealed the full normal January rise in number of failures, and elements with a widely disturbing effect are conspicuous only by their absence.

"Continued declines in hide prices, with a naturally weakening influence on leather quotations, have formed the chief point of unsettlement in commodity markets. But there has been the overshadowing feature of the increased buoyancy of certain metals. The further advance in copper to the highest level attained at this period for several years is especially noteworthy, both domestic and foreign consumers buying heavily of this product, and steel scrap has gained steadily in strength. Other outstanding phases of the industrial situation include larger demands for materials from railroads and automobile makers, in which pressure for deliveries is more evident, and steel output is sustained at a rate above the average."

TOBACCO CROP INCREASED.

BOSTON, Jan. 25 (AP.).—The New England Crop-Reporting Service today announced an increase in the country's tobacco crop of 25,000,000 pounds, the total production in 1928 being 164,779,000 pounds, the service estimated. The increase was most pronounced in Wisconsin.

In the Connecticut valley production totaled 39,212,000 pounds, compared with 37,661,000 pounds in 1927. A reduction for 1928 of about 400,-000 acres in the potato acreage of the country is indicated in reports from growers, the Crop-Reporting Service also reported. Potatoes will be grown on 3,436,000 acres this year. Reports indicated that nearly 7,500,-000 bushels of potatoes were left in the ground last year because of the low price. On Jan. 1 the total stocks in the thirty-five late producing States aggregated 120,635,000 bushels, compared with 99,746,000 bushels last year.

AIR 'ATTACK' LAUNCHED ON 'FOE' FROM CANAL

Defenders Locate Black Fleet 400 Miles Off Shore—Climax of War Game Nears.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Jan. 25.—Four "enemy" battleships of the Black Fleet have been reported 400 miles from the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal, and at 11:25 A. M. today airplanes from the aircraft carrier Lexington of the Blue Fleet were ordered to attack, according to information obtained from military headquarters. The position of the Lexington was not given, but "enemy" battleships were reported 300 miles southeast of Cape Mala.

No report has been received yet of an engagement between the fleets participating in the war games now being carried out here. The Blue Fleet defending the canal made its first contact with two separate groups of the attacking Black Fleet about noon on Thursday. The contact has been maintained, although the "enemy" plans are still obscure.

The defenders have been active in their efforts to locate the "enemy" aircraft carrier Saratoga and information received at noon today indicated success. So far the Black Fleet has not succeeded in closing in sufficiently to permit launching an attack against the canal. The defense air forces are constantly alert, fearing the Black planes may evade the Blue Fleet and bomb the canal tonight or tomorrow morning. The "enemy" has about 100 airplanes and the defenders 150.

The time for the Black Fleet to accomplish its mission is constantly growing shorter and decisive action is expected soon.

REDUCTIONS SPREAD IN CRUDE OIL PRICES

HUMBLE ALSO CONFORMS

Changes Vary According to Field, With Some Advances on the Low Grades.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New York, yesterday reduced crude oil prices in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas to meet the reduction announced on the day before by the Carter Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The reduction averaged about 16 cents a barrel.

The Humble Oil and Refining Company, also a subsidiary of the Standard of New Jersey, yesterday reduced the price of high-grade Texas crudes, conforming to the Carter company's reductions in Oklahoma and Kansas. Humble at the same time advanced the price of some of the low-grade Texas crudes. The price changes vary according to the field.

On Ranger, North Texas, Mexia, Powell, Bogey Creek, Richland, Wortham, Lytton Springs, Currie, Moran and Nocona crudes the prices were reduced from 1 to 32 cents a barrel. Crude of 32 degrees gravity was posted at $1.08 a barrel, with a 3-cent differential for each degree above. On oil below 32 degrees the new differential is 6 cents a barrel. The top price, under the new schedule, is $1.44 a barrel, which applies to crudes of 44 degrees and higher. The minimum price for oil of less than 25 gravity is 60 cents a barrel.

Carson and Hutchison County crudes, including the Panhandle field production, are now priced at 78 cents a barrel for 32 gravity. This is an advance of 2 cents. The top price is $1.14 a barrel for 44 gravity and higher, a reduction of 22 cents. The minimum is 72 cents for oil of less than 32 gravity, an advance of 3 cents.

TIN FUTURES DEPRESSED.

Prices at New Low Level on Exchange—Most Sales Made Late.

New low levels were made in tin futures on the National Metal Exchange yesterday, closing price being from 5 to 15 points lower. The turnover was 205 tons. The market closed easy. Most of the trading was done in the last few minutes. For the first time January was in the best demand, with fifty-five tons sold. No transferable notices were issued and no transfer price was named for today.

ASKS CHANGE IN CHARTER.

Coffee Exchange in Court for Permit to Deal in Securities.

The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, Inc., 113 Pearl Street, applied in the Supreme Court yesterday for permission to extend its corporate purposes to permit it to deal in securities. The petition, signed by Frank C. Lowry, president, and Frank C. Russell, secretary, asks that in addition to the present provisions of its charter permitting the purchase and sale of coffee and sundry grocery articles, the words be added "and the stocks and securities of corporations producing, treating or dealing in any of such articles." The application will be heard on Monday.

Three memberships on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange were sold yesterday at $21,000 each, this figure representing an advance of $1,000 over the last previous sale. R. E. Atkinson was the purchaser in all three instances, the sellers being K. Worms of Newman Brothers & Worms; Christian De Waal of Stewart, De Waal & Co., and Edwin H. Marshall of Marshall & Willey, Kansas City, Mo.

Huth Fur Offerings Announced.

Five days will be required to sell the raw furs that will be put up here on Feb. 4 and days following by Frederick Huth & Co. in the first section of its annual Winter sale. The second section will be given over entirely to the sale of 5,500 silver fox. With a collection of 10,200 silvers to be offered by the New York Auction Company on Monday and following days, the Huth total means that within two weeks 15,700 silver fox skins will be put up for sale in this market. This is by far the largest number ever offered anywhere in the same space of time. The first part of the Huth sale will begin with an offering of 5,000 badger and close with 5,500 red fox.

Wall Paper Officers Elected.

Announcement was made yesterday of the election of Langdon B. Wood of Buffalo to the presidency of the Wall Paper Manufacturers of America. Mr. Wood succeeds Henry Burn of Brooklyn, who resigned after nine years as head of the organization. Other officers elected were Robert Griffin of Jersey City, vice president, and P. S. Marshall of Glens Falls, secretary and treasurer. A new office of executive vice president was created. It will be filled by E. D. Belknap, with headquarters at 461 Eighth Avenue. Indications in the wall paper field point to a steady increase in sales, with modernistic patterns playing an important part in the improvement.

Leathers Ordered for Autos.

Makers of upholstery leather have been receiving a substantial volume of business from automobile manufacturers for high grade or topgrain leathers for use in roadsters and convertible cars. Indications are that the orders from this source will show a marked gain over last Spring, owing to the increased emphasis given sports cars using leather upholstery. The color range of the leathers is more varied than a year ago. Leather dealers also note some pick-up in the call for leathers from the furniture trade in line with greater Spring production.

Ensembles Still Lead in Buying.

By far the larger percentage of orders placed for Spring ready-to-wear are for ensembles. Unless the verdict of consumers to the early offerings of the new models by retailers is adverse, it appears likely that the ensemble will receive the major share of business to come. The belief is that consumer acceptance is practically certain, owing to the favorable response to this type of garment last year. Orders are being divided between dress and coat ensembles, the difference being whether the coat is the principal feature or the dress achieves that distinction.

To Report on Central Rug Buying.

A committee of carpet and rug buyers of the Hahn Department Stores, Inc., has been appointed to study the application of central buying to this merchandise and is surveying the resources of the market. The committee will make its report on Monday at a special meeting of all the carpet and rug buyers of the Hahn group. The personnel of the committee comprises H. Thomas of the Jordan-Marsh Company, Boston; N. Scripsema of the Herpolsheimer Company, Grand Rapids; H. Nathanson of the Quackenbush Company, Paterson, N. J., and D. Byron of Rollman & Sons Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Storm Helped Sales of Rubbers.

Retail stocks of rubbers and other protective footwear for both sexes were materially cut into by the consumer demand resulting from yesterday's storm. However, wholesalers were of the opinion that no great volume of duplicating can be looked for right away unless additional storms continue to produce "bad footing." There will be some repeat business forced by the reduction of retail stocks, wholesalers said. They added, however, that the lateness with which the season's first real slush storm came and the long time that protective footwear was dormant will tend to make retailers careful of their future commitments for a while.

Shoe Imports Worry Trade.

Reports in the women's shoe trade tell of notably increased competition from foreign manufacturers, notably one in Czechoslovakia and another in France. This competition on a price basis, it was said yesterday, although regarded as unimportant for several years, is now being given a great deal of attention, as the imports have risen. Representatives of the trade are engaged in a campaign for a rise in duties. The men's shoe trade is held practically free from foreign competition.

Glass Trade is Optimistic.

Eastern jobbers of glass meeting here during the week displayed marked optimism as to the outlook for the year, The American Glass Review will say today. Views expressed were in sharp contrast to the opinions held at similar meetings this time last year. Slight stimulus was noted in the window-glass field in the Eastern territory. One sheet-glass company has withdrawn from the market owing to the large volume of business already booked. The demand for laminated glass reflects the early opening up of activities in the automobile industry.

Coal Demand Again Fluctuates.

True to form, the demand for anthracite eased off somewhat this week with the rising temperatures. Another thing that tends to give the market a quiet appearance, Saward's Journal will say today, is the fact that the collieries are now working more regularly. With tonnage in better supply the situation is easier, even if the volume of business does not suffer any serious shrinkage. Bituminous continues to move in good volume from all the seaboard mining districts. Taking the country as a whole, the movement of soft coal is slightly heavier than before the holidays. At that time the top market for 1928 was reached.

Gray Goods Volume Small.

Although gray goods trading was fairly well spread yesterday, the volume of business was limited. Printcloth sales had among them spot and near-by 39-inch 68-72s at 8½ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 7¼ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 6¾ cents. Low-count printcloths sold at 5 cents for 38¼-inch 44-40s, 5½ cents for 38½-inch 48-squares and 6½ cents for 44-inch 48-squares. Sheetings were dull, but among the sales were spot 40-inch 2.85s at 11½ cents and 36-inch 56-60, four-yard goods at 8¾ cents. Small quantities of 37-inch 3.25-yard drills were moved at 10¼ cents. A fair inquiry for broadcloths was reported and prices based on 8¾ cents for 80-60s.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES PASSED $319,000,000

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Sears, Roebuck Company, mail order house, had the most prosperous year in its history in 1928. New high records were established in volume of business and earnings.

The annual report shows net sales of $319,778,787, as compared with the previous high record of $268,731,794 in 1927. The total revenue was $338,760,314, as against $277,502,586 in the preceding year. The operating expenses were $289,809,473, an advance of $43,849,990.

The net income totaled $26,907,902, as compared with $25,022,552 in 1927, the previous high record. This is equivalent to $6.26 a share on the 4,294,418 shares of no par stock outstanding and compares with $5.95 a share on the 4,200,000 shares of stock outstanding in 1927.

The William Wrigley Jr. Company issued a preliminary income account for 1928 tonight, showing net income of $10,268,648. This is an increase of $401,301 over the preceding year. The net profits for the last quarter of 1928 were $2,392,955, as compared with $1,871,348 in 1927.

WOOL MARKET QUIET.

Little Change in Prices, but Some Irregularity.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "The market this week has been rather on the quiet side. There has been an increasing interest in wool on the part of the manufacturers, however, as the week has progressed, more especially in the finer wools and one or two of the large mills have already secured a sizable nest-egg in fine Texas wools against the new season, or possibly against current contracts, for the mills have still a fair volume of old business on the books.

"New prices named by the American Woolen Company on staples, practically unchanged, or in a few numbers slightly lower than six months ago, should prove attractive to the buyers of cloth.

"Foreign markets are fairly steady, although fine wools are not quite up to the level of early December either in London or in the colonies. Crossbreds are very firm."

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Hog prices were on the downgrade today. After being 15 to 25 cents lower early, the market weakened gradually and closed at the bottom with prices off around 25 cents. A top of $9.75 was made early or 40 cents under the best figure of Thursday, but few loads sold above $9.60. The day's average was 20 cents lower at $9.45. Bulk of desirable weights sold early at $9.40 to $9.70 with the close around $9.10 to $9.50. Packing sows were $8.40 to $9. Packers bought 25,400 and shippers 18,000 with 10,000 left over. Receipts 47,000 with 20,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Cattle were in slow demand and the market was steady. Quality was lacking. Best steers sold at $13.90 and bulk of best cattle brought $11 to $12.50. Receipts were 9,000. Fat lambs were strong to 25 cents higher. Main sales were at $16.50 to $17 with a top of $17.45. Sheep were steady at $7.25 to $9.75 with a top of $10.50. Receipts 10,000.

RUBBER IRREGULAR, WITH LOSSES AT CLOSE

After a price movement in crude rubber futures that showed alternate waves of advances and declines, final figures for the list of seven active deliveries revealed losses of 10 to 40 points. Sales totaled 1,967 contracts, and 27 transferable notices.

The price changes were rapid and over a fairly wide range, the list appearing to be sensitive to the changes on the London exchange. During the early trading, losses of 40 to 100 points were recorded, but as the foreign market steadied local values shot forward again 50 to 100 points from the bottoms. Offerings at the close brought the further downward revisions. The selling came chiefly from dealers, commission houses and speculators, while the buying was of a mixed character.

London opened firm with gains of ¼d. to ½d. and after dropping the improvements turned steady at the close with slight margins in the Spring deliveries. Spot and February were unchanged at 10⅞d., March up ¼d. at 11¼d., April-June, ¼d. up at 11¼d., July-September unchanged at 11⅜d., October-December ¼d. lower at 11½d. Singapore was closed.

ASKS FOR HEARING ON HOME RULE PLAN

Westchester Association Has Substitute for Measure Before the State Senate.

ALBANY POLL IS REPORTED

Mrs. Vanderlip and Mrs. Mitchell Say Most Officials Were Friendly or Non-Committal.

The Board of Governors of the Home Rule Association for Westchester County met yesterday at the Women's City Club, 22 Park Avenue, to hear a report on the conferences of Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip and Mrs. Willie Gemmill Mitchell with State Senators and Assemblymen in Albany recently in regard to the Home Rule amendment to Section 26, Article 3, of the State Constitution proposed by Senator Walter W. Westall of White Plains. The association is opposing the amendment on the ground that it is ambiguously worded. If it is passed by the present Legislature it will be placed on the ballot this Fall.

The association has outlined an amendment of its own, on which the opinions of the legislators at Albany were sought. The Board of Governors voted yesterday to ask Senator George R. Fearon, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to grant them a hearing on Feb. 5. They will also ask the Westchester County Supervisors to hear them at White Plains on Feb. 4.

Governor Roosevelt would like to have an amendment changing the form of government for all the counties, according to Mrs. Vanderlip and Mrs. Mitchell. Most of the seventeen other State officials they approached were non-committal or friendly to their amendment they said.

Both amendments are planned to pave the way for a charter form of government in Westchester and Nassau Counties. In Mr. Westall's amendment the association objects to the following words: "The adoption of such form of government by the county shall not preclude the Legislature from amending or modifying such a plan." The association contends that the word "not" should be omitted.

There shall be in each county, except in a county wholly included in a city, a board of supervisors, to be composed of such members and elected in such manner as is or may be provided by law. The Legislature may provide by law for forms of government for the counties of Westchester and Nassau, or either, subject to adoption and approval by the electors of any such county at a general election in an odd-numbered year.

Such form of government shall deal with all the property, affairs, functions and management of the county, and no additional offices, officers, commissions or departments shall thereafter be established except by amendment thereto.

Any such form of government may include the transfer to the county or to county officers of any functions now exercised by towns or town officers, village or village officers, and city or city officers, and such functions shall not thereafter be abolished, impaired or transferred except upon referendum to the towns, villages or cities, respectively, the functions, officers, property or powers of which are in any wise impaired.

Such forms of government may not be changed, amended or modified except by referendum to the electors of the county as therein provided, except on message from the Governor that an emergency exists and the concurrent action of two-thirds of each house of the Legislature.

The association is now circulating a petition among the voters of Westchester County urging the adoption of its amendment.

Besides Mrs. Vanderlip and Mrs. Mitchell, those at the meeting yesterday were Winfield L. Morse of Tarrytown, acting chairman; Mrs. Clarence W. Francis of New Rochelle, Herbert McKennis and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Howes of Scarsdale and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gridley of Larchmont.

ROEBLING ESTATE ASKS $956,816 TAX REBATE

Executor Contends Its Value Is $24,491,236, Nearly $5,000,000 Less Than Federal Estimate.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 25 (AP).—Maintaining that the government has imposed an overtaxation of $956,810.38 in the inheritance tax against the estate of Colonel Washington A. Roebling, the Trenton Trust Company as executor has filed a petition for readjustment with the Board of Tax Appeals at Washington.

The petition discloses that the value of the Roebling estate is set by the Trenton Trust Company at $24,491,236.73, nearly $5,000,000 lower than the Tax Bureau's valuation. The petition bases the claim of error in the Bureau of Internal Revenue's estimate on the value of 68,877 shares of stock in John A. Roebling's Sons Company.

In assessing the taxes due the government from the estate, the value of which it determined at $29,318,640.56, the bureau estimated these shares as worth $165 each. The total of the Roebling's Sons stock would thus be $10,589,700.

The contention of the Trust Company, in the statement filed by its attorney, State Senator Clarence E. Case, and sworn to by its trust officer, Nelson L. Petty, is that these shares have a market value of but $90 each, which would make their aggregate value $5,748,930.

SHUMAKER LOSES APPEAL.

But Indiana Dry League Official Gets Stay of Prison Sentence.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25. (AP)—Judge Robert C. Baltzell, in Federal court here, overruled this morning the petition of Dr. Edward S. Schumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-saloon League, for a writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. Schumaker, who is seeking to evade serving a sixty-day sentence imposed by the State Supreme Court for contempt, obtained a 30-day stay of execution. This was granted at the request of Ethan A. Miles, counsel for Schumaker, to permit time for perfecting further legal action that may be contemplated.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REAL ESTATE

MADISON AV. LEASE IS RESOLD TO BING

Gresham Realty Company Acquires Block Front From 49th to 50th Street.

The Gresham Realty Company, Alexander S. Bing, president, has purchased the lease on the block front occupying the west side of Madison Avenue, Forty-ninth to Fiftieth Street, it was announced yesterday. The lease was sold by Max N. Natanson, operator, who bought it last week from a client of the Laurenmac Corporation. The Leonard S. Gans Company acted as broker.

Although the purchaser has no definite plans for improving the site, the property will probably be improved with a large building.

Several new deals on and near Second Avenue were announced yesterday, following the purchase on Thursday of the northwest corner of Second Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, valued at $1,000,000, by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum, operators, from J. P. Morgan, in whose family the property had remained for thirty-five years.

Solon B. Lilienstern bought yesterday the five-story apartment house at 252 East Eighty-ninth Street, 75 feet from the southwest corner of Second Avenue, through Joseph Goldsmith and Samuel Sason, brokers.

The newly organized 821 First Avenue Corporation purchased the southwest corner of First Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, consisting of a five-story flat. The property was sold by the Forrest Chambers Holding Corporation, and the purchasers, with associated interests, control 348 East Forty-sixth Street, immediately adjoining, giving them a frontage of 100 feet on the street. Samuel B. and Bernard Pollak, attorneys, represented the buyer. The same attorneys announced on behalf of the 209 East Forty-fifth Street Corporation that the latter had extended its plottage by the purchase of 211 East Forty-fifth Street from Eliza Ramsey. Robert C. Balmanno was the broker in the deal.

The Morway Realty Corporation, Thomas Bornstein, president, purchased from Simon Strunin and Isaac Albert the five and four story buildings at 318 and 320 East Forty-seventh Street, on a plot 50 by 100 feet. Harry H. Brill was the broker. Samuel B. and Bernard Pollak represented the purchaser.

Julius L. Pines, attorney, representing the Alperson Realty Corporation, announced the sale by the corporation of 2,291 Second Avenue, 25 by 110 feet, to the Hauschild Realty Corporation.

Irving Bachrach and Ira Rosenstock, operators, purchased from Josephine F. Burghart, one of the heirs of George Ehret, the five-story structure at 1,594 York Avenue, northeast corner of Eighty-fourth Street. Samuel Sason and Arthur Lichtner negotiated the deal.

An investor acquired from Frank Schwartz and Fannie Stark the five-story apartment house at 508 East Eighty-third Street, between York and East End Avenues, on a lot 25 by 100 feet. The sale was negotiated by Butler & Baldwin, brokers.

Paul A. Dietze disposed of the property at 524 East Eighty-second Street through Hyman C. Wolfe and Oscar Rosenbaum, brokers. The property is being resold.

Samuel J. Flash, who has been active in the Carl Schurz Park section, and who has accumulated large holdings in the vicinity of Seventy-ninth Street, has sold 410 East Seventy-ninth Street, on which is a five-story apartment house. The buyer is J. H. Brown, a Brooklyn builder, who has recently completed a physicians' building at Madison Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. The brokers were Douglas L. Elliman & Co.

The estate of Samuel Sachs, through the Chemical National Bank of New York as executor, has sold the property at 53 East Tenth Street to the Gwynne Realty Corporation. The property is 27 by 94 feet and was sold for $75,000. Julius L. Pines acted for the purchaser.

OTHER MANHATTAN SALES.

Deals in Business and Other Parcels Reported Yesterday.

In the Columbus Circle district Philip Scheiner has purchased the two-story garage at 229-235 West Sixtieth Street, on a plot of 100 by 100 feet. The property was sold by Marcus & Goldstein and is now occupied by the Dodge Service Corporation. Louis Bayer acted as broker in the sale of the property.

The two five-story tenements, on a plot of 50 by 100 feet, at 311 and 313 West 119th Street have been sold by Sol Freidus. The property was held at $75,000 and was sold through Albert Hyman, broker.

The Biltover Realty Corporation has disposed of the five-story structure, 25 by 100 feet, at 56 West 106th Street. The purchaser has assembled a plot at this point through R. Solove, broker.

The Audrin Realty Company, representing Bing & Bing interests, purchased from the Issur Realty Corporation the four-story dwelling at 69 East End Avenue.

The estate of Charles Frederick Hoffman purchased from the Eighty-fifth Street Association 1,446-1,470 Lexington Avenue, southwest corner of Ninety-fifth Street, three three-story dwellings.

Ansel A. Koegler sold to the City Realty Operators, Inc., the three-story dwelling at 160 West Ninety-fourth Street.

Anna Segal sold to the newly formed Pine Street Realty Company 10 Cedar Street, a six-story building. Earlier in the week the purchasers acquired the adjoining structure at No. 8.

Bank Leases in Seventh Avenue.

The Bowery and East River National Bank has leased the corner store and basement in 282 and 284 Seventh Avenue, northwest corner of Twenty-sixth Street, for fifteen years, at an annual rental of $18,000, with renewal option for five years on similar terms. The lessor is the 282-86 Seventh Avenue Corporation, Samuel Cohen, president.

BRONX PROPERTIES SOLD

New Dealings in Improved and Unimproved Holdings.

Another deal was added yesterday to the increasing number of transactions along the Concourse. William Keogh, president of the Keogh Amusement Company, bought from Walter Keogh the five-and-one-half-story apartment house at 2,327 Grand Concourse. The building accommodates ten families and occupies a plot 50 by 100 feet. It was held at $135,000 and adjoins the new 183d Street subway station. Mr. Keogh bought the property from the Kearns estate at auction last Spring. Armstrong Brothers negotiated the deal yesterday.

A block on the north side of Eastern Boulevard, from Leland to Theriot Avenues, has been sold by B. Moore through Louis M. Weiss & Co., brokers. The property fronts 200 feet on the boulevard and 103 feet on the avenue. It faces the blockfront recently reported sold by the same brokers on the opposite side of the boulevard.

The Sagene Realty Corporation sold the one-story taxpayer at 5,211 and 5,213 Broadway. The Hamasin Realty Corporation, the purchaser, plans extensive alterations at the expiration of present tenancies. C. J. C. Muller acted as broker.

Rullman Brothers sold for J. Clarence Davies the vacant plot, 50 by 102 feet, on the north side of Palisade Place, about 140 feet west of Popham Avenue.

LEASES IN CHANIN BUILDING.

Fairchild Aviation Corp. Takes Forty-eighth Floor.

The Fairchild Aviation Corporation, Sherman M. Fairchild, president, has leased for a long term the forty-eighth floor in the Chanin Building at Forty-second Street and Lexington Avenue, which will be opened for tenants next Tuesday. The space leased will be used as Manhattan headquarters for all the company's subsidiaries except the Fairchild Aerial Camera Corporation and Fairchild Aerial Surveys, Inc., which will remain in the present offices at 270 West Thirty-eighth Street. The parent company opened a new airplane factory in Farmingdale, L. I., last year. Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., and Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., Inc., arranged the lease for the Chanin Construction Company.

One of the first lessees in the Chanin Building was the Pan-American Airways, operating company for the Aviation Corporation of the Americas. The Pan-American company, with which Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is associated as consultant, will occupy half of the thirty-fourth floor.

TO CONSOLIDATE UNITS.

A factory in Clifton, N. J., has been leased for consolidation of several radio manufacturing units under one roof, according to C. A. Earl, president of the Charles Freshman Company, Inc., and chairman of the Freed-Eisemann Radio Corporation. The former company now operates factories in the Bronx and Brooklyn, with an assembly plant in Chicago. The Freed-Eisemann company also operates a factory in East New York. It is expected that consolidation of these factories will effect a considerable saving in operating expenses. The New Jersey plant has more than six acres of floor space on one level. It was built about seven years ago. Clifton is on the Erie Railroad, about twelve miles from New York. The Cross & Brown Company arranged the lease.

TO JOIN BUILDERS' GROUP.

Westchester Concerns to Accept the Charter of Better Homes Today.

A group of Westchester County builders of homes have made an intensive study of the National Better Home Builders' Association, which has been operating principally in the Middle West.

The national association has agreed to issue a charter for the formation of a Westchester County chapter. It has been decided to accept this offer and officially organize the Westchester County chapter at a meeting at the office of the New York Title and Mortgage Company, 162 Main Street, White Plains, next Thursday.

It was announced yesterday that the organization committee as at present constituted consists of the following:

Bank Sells Brooklyn Factory.

The Williamsburg Savings Bank has sold the factory parcel, 100 feet square, at the southeast corner of Kent Avenue and Rodney Street, Brooklyn. A three and a four story building, each 40 by 80 feet, are on the plot. The Technical Service Company was the broker.

TEAR GAS MEETS RAIDERS.

Bomb Exploded Among Rochester Squad Seizing Gambling Machines.

ROCHESTER, Jan. 25 (AP).—Tear gas and a smoke barrage were used against a police squad here today when they made the second raid within a week on an alleged gambling machine warehouse, following vacation of an injunction that brought the first raid to an end.

Fred Iseman, said to have been sent from Cleveland to place 194 slot machines in condition for distribution, was arrested as the bomb-thrower. He was burned on the leg when he released the bomb and was taken by police to a hospital.

After the raiding squad had seized the machines on the floor of the warehouse they started down the cellar and were met with a barrage of smoke and acrid fumes that sent them gasping to the open air.

B. & O. Buys West Side Block Near Its Terminal Warehouse

An entire block of property on the extreme west side has been purchased by Baltimore & Ohio interests, it was learned yesterday. The property is bounded by Eleventh and Thirteenth Avenues, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Streets, and has been acquired from the trustees of Daniel Kingsland de Beixedon.

The site is opposite the Baltimore & Ohio freight terminal and storage warehouse, which occupy the block to the north, lying between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Streets. The purchase has been made for the railroad in the name of the New York Transit and Terminal Company, a subsidiary of the Baltimore & Ohio.

LEASEHOLD DEALS.

Manhattan Parcels Reported Under New Control.

A new four-and-one-half-story store and office building at 157-61 East Eighty-sixth Street, former site of the Yorkville Theatre, has been leased to H. King & Co., Inc., by the 157 East Eighty-sixth Street Corporation, Jacob Lashin, president. The lease is for thirteen years, at a total rental of $155,000, according to Julius L. Pines, attorney for the lessor. The plot is 76 by 100 feet. L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co. were the brokers.

The Westbar Holding Company, Jesse L. Goldberger, president, leased from the estate of William Farrell, Inc., the hotel at 334-65 West Street, northeast corner of Barrow Street, for ten years from Feb. 1. Rentals are to be $7,000 net for the first five years and $10,000 for the next five years, with a renewal privilege for five years at $13,000 and for five years additional at $16,000.

The Third Avenue-111th Street Gas Station and Garage, Inc., bought from the Wezco Realty Corporation, William Weiss, president, a twenty-one-year lease covering the garage at the southeast corner of Third Avenue and 111th Street. The plot is 110 by 100 feet.

Louis Bayer leased for Witkin & Levine to the Optimo Garage Corporation for twenty-one years the two-story garage, 100 by 100 feet, at 65 Goerck Street.

HEAVY CONSTRUCTION UP.

Awards Last Week Show Activity in Commercial Projects.

The trend in heavy construction operations in the United States continues upward, with pronounced activity in commercial buildings. Awards on big jobs, all classes of operations, for the past week were valued at $65,765,000, against $32,350,000 in the corresponding week last year, Engineering News-Record reports. In the total for the past week $35,780,000 went into commercial buildings, including large residential projects; $1,355,000 into industrial buildings; $6,918,000 into streets and roads, and $21,712,000 into miscellaneous engineering operations.

Contracts let throughout the country since Jan. 1 were valued at $345,320,000, which compares with $202,983,000 in the same period in 1928. With the volume of contemplated construction also higher than a year ago, the outlook continues to be favorable.

SHIP BOARD STUDIES EIGHT BIDS ON LINES

Subcommittees Take Up Fiscal and Construction Facilities Behind Proposals.

CHAPMAN OFFER IN FAVOR

Winchester, Now Operating Merchant Line, and Gibbs Interests, However, Urge Their Bid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Shipping Board formally took up today the eight bids it has received for sale of the United States and American Merchant lines and designated Commissioner Albert H. Denton, chairman of its Finance Committee, to inquire into financial aspects, and Commissioner Hutch I. Cone, chairman of its Construction Loan Fund Committee, to investigate features of the offers involving new construction.

Indications were that several days would elapse before any detailed consideration would be given by the board to the proposals for purchase of the services.

Interest continued to centre chiefly in the aggregate bid of $16,300,000 by P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., of Chicago and New York, for both lines; and the belief was expressed in responsible administration circles that the sale would probably be made to that company.

Winchester-Gibbs Plea Presented.

The assertion that an analysis undertaken for their firm of all available data showed that net losses exceeding $10,000,000 within ten years would result from operation of the United States Line and the American Merchant Line under the bid made to the Shipping Board by P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., was made yesterday in behalf of the Winchester-Gibbs-Standifer interests. The analysis, it is understood, was brought to the attention of members of the Shipping Board in Washington.

The Winchester-Gibbs-Standifer bid for the lines was $10,000,000, or more than $6,000,000 less than the Chapman bid. In a statement accompanying the comparative analysis of the two bids, for the purpose of showing advantages which might compensate for the difference in price, it was argued that under existing conditions the Chapman bid could not result in financially successful operation.

The statement also stressed the phase of the law requiring the Shipping Board to take into consideration the probabilities of permanency of operation of lines which are turned over to private enterprise. It was asserted that the individuals behind the Winchester-Gibbs-Standifer offer insured operation of the vessels, in the event their bid was accepted, by persons of long experience and proved ability.

J. R. Winchester & Co. now operates the American Merchant Line, while Gibbs Bros., Inc., supervised the reconditioning of the Leviathan and other vessels for the Shipping Board and operated the Leviathan for a time.

The Winchester bid provided for the purchase of the Leviathan, Republic, George Washington, America and the five vessels of the American Merchant Line, together with the Mount Vernon and the Monticello, for $10,000,000. It agreed to create two new express mail steamers by rebuilding the two latter ships from the hull at a cost of $14,000,000, the work to be completed within two years.

The Chapman bid, of $16,300,000, was for the same ships, together with the President Harding and the President Roosevelt. These two ships were to be continued in the transatlantic mail service. A second proposition provided for the construction within three years of two new ships comparable to the Leviathan at a cost of $25,000,000 each, which would, when completed, supplant the Harding and the Roosevelt.

Would Reconstruct Two Vessels.

It is urged in the statement in behalf of the Winchester bid that the Harding and the Roosevelt are unsuited to the transatlantic service and that until two new vessels capable of carrying mail in competition with European vessels in the matter of speed are put in service the United States will remain severely handicapped. The cost of reconstructing the Monticello and the Mount Vernon would make possible economically sound operation, it is asserted, while the cost of two wholly new vessels such as those proposed in the Chapman bid would, it is further argued, make such financially successful operation impossible.

The Monticello and the Mount Vernon are each more than 700 feet long, about 150 feet less than the Leviathan. Their reconstruction would cost 40 per cent less than similar new ships built in this country, it is estimated in the analysis, and this saving would bring the net cost down to a point lower than the cost of similar vessels constructed in Europe.

It is also urged that the Winchester bid, by not including the President Harding and the President Roosevelt, would be advantageous in that respect from the government's viewpoint. These two vessels, it is suggested, would then be available as additions to American-owned craft now sailing to South America, a service for which, it is declared, they are far better suited than for the transatlantic. Their use in the South American trade would provide weekly, instead of fortnightly, mail sailings, it is asserted.

HOMERIC 2 DAYS LATE IN ROUGH CROSSING

Storms Give Liner Slowest Trip, but She Prepares for New Cruise in Record Time.

The White Star liner Homeric arrived yesterday afternoon forty-eight hours late after making the passage of 3,004 miles in 8 days, 20 hours, 36 minutes at an average speed of 14.55 knots, the slowest time since the vessel entered the North Atlantic trade eight years ago. Her worst day's runs were Jan. 21, 200 miles, and the following day 238 miles. The log card commenced with moderate gales and rough sea, then to fresh gales with heavy swell and rough sea, followed by three days' strong westerly gales with high head seas. This weather continued till noon Thursday when it moderated and the Homeric steamed the last 400 miles at 19½ knots. She leaves today at noon for Cook's annual cruise to the Mediterranean with more than 400 passengers.

As soon as the liner was made fast at her pier, foot of West Seventeenth Street, lighters started to pump 7,000 tons of fuel oil, 4,000 tons of fresh water into the vessel, while 250 men worked all night loading 2,000 tons of cargo and 1,000 tons of stores for the cruise. Colonel John O'Neill, pier superintendent, said it was a record turn around for a ship the size of the Homeric to do in twenty hours.

Captain E. R. White, R. N. R., the master, said that it had been an unusually rough Winter passage, without any let-up from the Channel to within 200 miles of Nantucket Lightship. No damage was done to the ship and none of the passengers or crew was injured.

Among the passengers was the Duchess of Hamilton, who was scheduled to deliver an address at 2:30 P. M. yesterday, and Charles Edward Russell, the Socialist writer.

Another passenger was Sir Arthur Salter, director of the Economic and Finance Section of the League of Nations, who will visit Yale University today to receive the Howland prize.

Charles S. Dewey, financial adviser to the new Republic of Poland, also was aboard the Homeric, as were Dr. and Mrs. James H. Cousins, who have spent thirteen years in India, and Sylvia Townsend Warner, English author.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—A demand for a complete financial accounting of the operations of both the Port of New York Authority and the Bridge and Tunnel Commission was made by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York, today as he announced his intention to introduce a bill to require such detailed reports to the Legislature.

The Assemblyman insists upon the publication not only of the total overhead costs but of the names and salaries of executives, counsel, secretaries, engineering chiefs and others on the payroll.

The first criticism, even by implication, of the Port Authority from the Democratic side of the Legislature was seen in Mr. Cuvillier's references to omissions in previous reports by the Authority.

"As the Port of New York Authority was created by an act of the Legislature and the States of New York and New Jersey," he said, "it should report in detail to the respective State legislatures and not act as a sovereign in itself and responsible to no one for its vast expenditures."

Says Millions Are Handled.

Many millions of dollars raised mostly by bond issues were being expended by the Port Authority on its Staten Island and Hudson River bridges without adequate information, he declared, and added his desire for details on the operation of the Holland tube which is in the charge of the Bridge and Tunnel Commission.

"I shall introduce Monday night a bill amending the law with reference to these matters," he said, "and requiring that these bodies created by acts of the Legislature shall report in detail to the Legislature all expenses from all sources and in all operations so that the people of the State, and more particularly the bondholders, will know what is being done with their money."

The Port Authority has recently been under the fire of some Republican leaders who have contended that it has taken jurisdiction over a wider field than it could well handle.

Bill Aimed at Sumner.

The New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, whose head, John S. Sumner, has often come into spectacular conflict with alleged indecencies on the stage and elsewhere, was the object of attack by Mr. Cuvillier in another bill introduced today. It proposed the repeal of an old section of the penal law, which empowered agents of the society to make arrests for the circulation of obscene literature.

The women jurors bill, killed in committee last year, was presented again today by Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, Republican, of New York. It allows women to serve on juries if they so desire.

Senator Charles A. Freiberg and Assemblyman Arthur Swartz, Republicans of Erie, offered a bill providing for regulation by the State Athletic Commission of amateur boxing exhibitions. Permits would be issued only to corporations of associations duly licensed.

Heads New Shipping Company.

Colonel Edward C. Carrington, chairman and president of the Hudson River Night Line, was elected president of the Great Lakes and Atlantic Transportation Corporation at a meeting of the directors yesterday. The company was organized recently to merge the principal operators on the New York State Barge Canal and the Hudson River.

Forecast of Flying Weather.

ZONE 2 (MIDDLE ATLANTIC STATES)—Clear or partly cloudy sky Saturday; diminishing northwest or west winds surface and west-northwest gale, diminishing, aloft.

ZONE 3 (SOUTH ATLANTIC STATES)—Cloudy to partly cloudy sky Saturday, some risk of local showers in Florida; moderate winds, mostly north and northeast, at surface and fresh to strong westerly aloft.

ZONE 5 (OHIO VALLEY AND TENNESSEE)—Partly cloudy sky Saturday; gentle to moderate variable winds surface and fresh to strong northwest, backing to west, aloft.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—Pressure remains abnormally low from Newfoundland southeastward over the ocean to the Azores. The disturbance that was over the Mississippi Valley Thursday night has moved northeastward to Northern Ontario with increased intensity. And a secondary is central off the Southern New England Coast and moving northeastward. A disturbance of wide extent is moving southeastward with centre over Western Washington. Still another disturbance is central northwest of Hudson Bay.

Generally fair weather will prevail Saturday in the Washington forecast district, but the western disturbance will move rapidly southeastward to Western Texas and the Southern Plains States and then probably northeastward and it will be attended by much cloudiness Sunday east of the Mississippi River, and precipitation, mostly in the form of rain is probable by Sunday night except in the North Atlantic States.

The temperature will be lower Saturday in the Atlantic States, while it will rise slowly Saturday over the Ohio Valley and Tennessee and colder Sunday in the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley and Tennessee.

Progress proclaims the Golden Age of VITAPHONE

VITAPHONE TALKING PICTURES usher in a new era of Progress—Knowledge—and world-wide understanding among people.

For Vitaphone brings you face to face with the great personalities of the age. Recreates before you every action—sound—emotion—heart-throb—that well up out of the life of today.

Vitaphone incarnates the living voice. It is the next thing to life itself. Its realism and fidelity to life make it unique—unapproached—in this age of marvelous achievements. Vitaphone leadership is outstanding.

The time has come to know the difference between Vitaphone and mere "sound effects." Make no mistake. Be sure you see and hear the real Vitaphone. Then you are assured of entertainment—as ALIVE and thrilling as the performances of living people.

Bear this in mind always. You can see and hear Vitaphone exclusively in WARNER BROS. and FIRST NATIONAL Pictures. Read announcements below featuring current Broadway Vitaphone attractions.
